Saltonstall calls for further review of Alba well plans

BY RYAN BENTLEY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

In a recent press release, Democratic House candidate Connie Saltonstall of Charlevoix noted that she'd sent a letter to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's regional environmental manager in Chicago seeking a full environmental impact study for Beeland Group's proposed injection well.

Sensing some unresolved questions about a controversial injection well proposed near Alba, an area candidate for the Michigan House of Representatives is calling for more study of the plans by environmental regulators.

Beeland is a subsidiary of Jackson-based CMS Energy, which is responsible for controlling the seepage of caustic shoreline contaminants along parts of the Bay Harbor resort corridor.

CMS, a former partner in Bay Harbor, has installed collection lines in affected shoreline areas to capture seepage before it enters surface water. Having paid to dispose of the seepage at other parties' sites, CMS would like to develop its own well to allow better control of costs and the disposal process. For the longer term, the company hopes to create on-site systems that would treat the seepage before releasing it into Little Traverse Bay.

The well would be used to inject seepage some 2,100 feet into the ground, into an area that's separated by rock and hundreds of feet from drinking water sources above.

The proposal has prompted concerns from some Alba residents, environmentalists and local officials. Though CMS has noted that the well would include safeguards to prevent contamination, critics have questioned whether groundwater and nearby river watersheds would be fully protected.

"They're disposing of (contaminants) in a place where if there's a problem with the well, it goes into our watershed, our groundwater," Saltonstall said.

Nick Choate, press secretary for U.S. Rep. Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, said last week that Stupak also favors a full environmental impact study concerning the well plans.

As of last week, EPA regional spokeswoman Phillippa Cannon said the agency hadn't received any formal requests for such a study.

"I was also told that the permit review process for this well was the functional equivalent of an EIS," she added. "EPA has already completed its permit review and issued a final decision. The matter is now under appeal with EPA's Environmental Appeals Board."

EPA and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality announced in February that they'd approved permits for the well. Several groups — including Friends of the Jordan River Watershed, Star Township and Antrim County — have filed to appeal the permits at both the state and federal levels.

Democratic candidate Mike Webster recently indicated he'd be dropping out of the 105th District race, so Saltonstall won't have an active challenger for this August's Democratic primary.

Incumbent State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, R-Kewadin, recently dropped his candidacy for the state Court of Appeals and decided to seek re-election to the House seat. Other GOP candidates have withdrawn from the race.

Elsenheimer has raised his own concerns about the Alba well, indicating that the $40,000 bond which MDEQ is requiring Beeland to post for it is inadequate to cover cleanup if environmental problems arise.

But MDEQ has indicated that its rules for injection well permits don't leave latitude for a higher bond amount. Citing the considerable time it would require, agency spokesman Bob McCann said DEQ isn't inclined to change the rules as Elsenheimer recently sought.

The brothers said their main objective was to provide a quality product at an affordable price.

"We knew that there was a need for a product that would cover the concrete bases that quickly become eyesores," Bradley said. "Companies spend millions of dollars building these complexes, offices and headquarters, but there always seemed to be a detractor from the finished product, the concrete bases. We are confident we have provided an outstanding solution to this problem."

In doing so, the pair said they remain committed as an organization and as a team to keep their product local.

"We had to overcome some obstacles that presented themselves and continue to do so, but we feel long term it was the best decision we could have made," Bradley said. "We feel it is the type of product that can eventually inject some life into an otherwise struggling economy."

He added, "Although we continue to have multiple offers to either manufacture overseas or in different states, we are still committed and enthusiastic about the opportunities our local companies have presented to us."

Women's Health is Our Specialty

Northern Michigan's leader in women's healthcare offers advanced cervical cancer screening system.

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is leading the way in cervical cancer screening with the implementation of the ThinPrep® Imaging System. The ThinPrep Imaging System, approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), is the first fully integrated, interactive computer system that combines imaging technology with human interpretation to produce a screening method that is more effective and efficient in detecting precancerous lesions. This way, patients can seek treatment early, before abnormalities develop into cancer. Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is using the ThinPrep Imaging System for all cervical cancer screenings.

Cytology Specialty Lab Technician, Nicole Marquis, BS, using the ThinPrep® Imaging System.

"Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is committed to providing our patients with the best new technology to detect disease early and the ThinPrep® System enables us to do that," said Judith Hoschner, MD. "Using the ThinPrep System offers significant improvements over previous screening technologies. Making this technology the standard in our practice was simply the right thing to do."

According to American Cancer Society estimates, nearly 11,150 women in the United States will have been diagnosed with cervical cancer in 2007 and about 3,670 will die of the disease. Cervical cancer is almost 100 percent curable if detected early. More than 30 published studies with more than 500,000 patients have demonstrated the improved performance of the ThinPrep Pap Test compared to the conventional Pap smear.

Mary Ivey, MD, of Charlevoix Women's Healthcare, is currently using the ThinPrep collection method for her patients and sending specimens to the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Laboratory for analysis. "Although we know that the original pap smear test has decreased the death rate for cervical cancer," said Ivey, "the increased accuracy of ThinPrep has significantly helped to identify abnormalities early for prompt treatment and follow-up."

The ThinPrep Pap Test is a liquid-based test that uses a fluid medium to collect and preserve cervical cells. Specimens are first collected by the clinician with a cervical sampling device as is normally done so there is no difference for the patient; then, instead of smearing the cells on a slide, the device is rinsed into a vial, capturing virtually all of the cells. The specimen is then sent to the laboratory where a processor eliminates obscuring debris and distributes a uniform, representative thin-layer of cells on a microscope slide. The ThinPrep System improves the quality of the specimen, which can result in more accurate diagnoses and fewer unnecessary repeat tests.

"What further sets Northern Michigan Regional Hospital apart from other providers is the availability and approachability of our pathologists and technical staff. Referring physicians have local access for questions and consults, and we provide on-site training and support. Results are readily available day or night via our Web-based portal, which has proven to be a huge satisfier for healthcare providers throughout the region," said Adolfo Ceniza, MD

"Also," adds Marcia Shattuck, MD, "we are happy to address any questions or concerns from patients, and are eager to explain the true benefits of this remarkable technology now available to them."

Multiple specimens can be processed at one time.

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed aboard the Alwilda, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodheck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodheck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

Courier welcomes new staff writer

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Fresh out of college, fresh out of Midland and ready to bring you the news.

A.J. Hoffman, a recent Central Michigan University journalism major, joined the Charlevoix Courier staff on May 27.

"I've always wanted to be a writer," he said. "I was probably in high school in my freshman year when my grandfather suggested (I would) make the most money in writing via journalism."

Hoffman added, "After I began studying journalism, I found a lot of heroes in the field like Hunter S. Thompson, Edward R. Murrow, gosh, just all kinds of people. Even some of my favorite writers: Kurt Vonnegut, Capote, they started out as reporters."

Hoffman, who enjoys playing guitar, photography, music and stand up comedy, said his number one goal is to tell his readers the truth

"I'd just like to get out alive and not cause too much trouble

Beware new booster seat law

As of July 1, new Michigan law will require children who are under 8 years old and less than four feet, nine inches tall to be properly secured in a child restraint while traveling in a motor vehicle.

"Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children," said Bert Notestine, who coordinates the local chapter of the SafeKids Coalition for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Seat belts are designed for adults. Booster seats, used along with seat belts, provide children with the best protection in a car accident."

Current law requires that children under age four ride in a child restraint. Legislation introduced by Senator Michelle McManus extends the requirement to include older children who also are not optimally protected by seat belts alone.

Partners for Child Passenger Safety (PCPS), conduct the world's largest ongoing study of children in crashes, and analyze actual crash data from 16 states, including Michigan. PCPS reports that the risk of injury for a four to eight year old child is reduced by 59 percent when using a child restraint. Children in seat belts alone are four times more likely to suffer head or brain injury as compared to those in a child restraint. States that have passed similar laws have also determined that child restraint use increases dramatically when required by law.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. For more information on child passenger safety, call Notestine at (231) 347-5022 or visit www.michigansafekids.org.

For generations our families have fished and enjoyed the Jordan River. Now this area's environmental integrity is threatened by Bay Harbor's toxic waste.

It is unbelievable that CMS would forcefully pursue placing an industrial waste well within the Lake Charlevoix and Jordan River Watersheds.

This beautiful, protected, wild scenic river can NOT be put at risk.

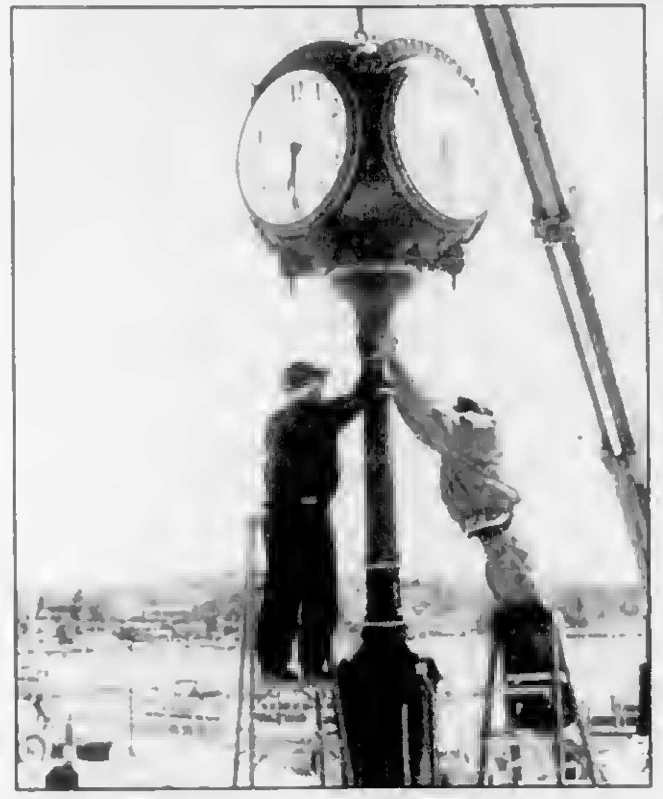
Chicago Club donates timepiece



A four-dial clock was put up recently to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Chicago Club's existence. It was a gift from the Club to show the City of Charlevoix its appreciation. In both pictures, a worker from the Verdin Company (left) and a city worker (right) work together to install the giant timepiece in East Park on Wednesday, May 28.

CHARLEVOIX

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

On Wednesday, May 28, the City of Charlevoix installed a 17-foot tall, four-dial clock on Bridge Street at the entrance of East Park.

The gift to the community, which is meant to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Chicago Club's existence, fits in well with the unique style of the rest of downtown according to city officials.

"We wanted to do something for the City of Charlevoix," said Jerry Balch, manager of the Chicago Club for the past 25 years. "It's a beautiful town and we wanted to give something back to it."

The clock was bought from the Verdin Company out of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The company custom builds these larger than life clocks and then sets them up.

Verdin has done work for the Walt Disney Company, the Smithsonian Institute and Notre Dame University.

To recognize the club's appreciation for the community, in 2006, it decided to raise separate funds to mark the occasion of the Chicago Club's anniversary.

"There used to be a huge four-sided clock on top of the National Bank down the street, but that bank isn't even there anymore," said Ginnie Cash, who has been a member of the Chicago Club for 50 years. "We ran through a number of ideas to celebrate the occasion, but this was the best one."

She added, "It was nice having people go through the city and know what time it was."

Members of the Chicago Club have contributed to numerous causes in Charlevoix, including the Chicago Club Fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation (CCCF) and the Quick Action for Kids program (QAK).

The Chicago Club is a summer resort association that was founded in 1881 by citizens of Chicago who enjoyed Charlevoix and saw it as a good place to vacation together.

The Club is also responsible for supporting causes such as the community swimming pool and giving over $200,000 in gifts to the CCCF.

East Park renovations are expected to be completed by the middle or end of June.

EDITORIAL

You may be sick of hearing about high gas prices, Michigan's economy and what may or may not be the beginning of the end for the environment, but we urge you to support HR 6003, the Passenger Rail Investment Improvement Act.

HR 6003 could be the beginning of a revolution in energy efficiency, economic stimulus and yes, Al Gore, even environmental friendliness.

OK, so restoring Michigan's railways to their former glory won't be easy or cheap, but imagine what eventual statewide rail service could do to free congested highways, bring mass transit to underserved areas, invite tourists to our countryside for pennies on the petroleum buck and, for all you who think the next ice age is right around the corner, even decrease carbon emissions.

The Michigan Department of Transportation currently receives an annual sum equal to what Amtrak gets nationwide. That means while MDOT works to keep up on its crumbling roads, there are trains on tracks, many decades older, still safely operating.

The demand for railways has grown such that Michigan can no longer meet the need. It has the extra cars, but not the funding to make them rail ready.

To put the cost of all this in perspective, in 2007, the government handed out approximately $1 billion to Amtrak, $16 billion to the airline industry and $32 billion to the auto industry in subsidies.

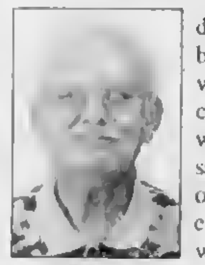
It has continued this way since the auto boom of the early to late 20th century; coupled with cheap gas of decades past, trains have been largely ingnored as the superior mode of transport.

The steak days of cheap oil are over and, even if the hippies are wrong and peak oil has not yet been reached, it someday will, and with it our quick and steady descent into a Mad Max flick.

Let's not wait until it is too late to get ourselves back on track; call your mayor, your state and federal senators and congressman today.

Visit MARP.org for more information.

Prognostication 101



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

In the decades before the weather channel, it was necessary to rely on the accumulated wisdom of someone like the old fisherman, who had spent so many years watching the developing weather, that he could provide a reasonably accurate forecast by looking up at the clouds, feeling the wind and searching his memory.

Sometimes it was unclear what clues he might be using in his predictions, but he seemed to be able to see just a little way into the future.

Seeing into the future is at least difficult and, some would suggest, nearly impossible.

What clues could we possibly use to predict what might happen to our nation in the next decade or two? And more important, how could we know for sure what the clues mean?

A few authors, David Brooks and others, have suggested as a clue to the future that our society is fragmenting in ways that are politically and socially problematic.

But, they can't determine what the clues they see mean for the future.

Trying to predict the outcome of the nearing national elections engages and enriches a whole flock of pundits. The clues they see are often more interesting than in their predictions.

One of the most remarkable clues is in the distribution of votes in recent elections. With computers, it is simple to examine past voting records for all localities in great detail. If we look at voting by county across the nation, a remarkable pattern is emerging, like the distant clouds watched by the wise old fisherman.

In 1976, 26 percent of counties nationwide could be described as landslide counties. That is, one party so dominated the voting that the alternative party had no chance.

A landslide county was won by 60 percent of the vote or more. By 1992, 38 percent of all counties nation-wide were landslide counties, and in the 2004 election, 50 percent of all counties were won by a landslide by one party or another.

That is a big clue, but no one seems to know what it means for the future.

The total vote nationally is almost evenly split between the political parties, but the distribution is such that Republicans are completely dominant in some counties and Democrats in others.

In the last national election half the counties provided no contest, and one party dominated completely.

What difference would it make in our national character and our future if 75 percent of counties were so dominated?

Brooks and others have suggested that we are separating ourselves into regional and local groups, with each group so confident of its point of view that there is no discussion. We have simply chosen sides and aren't listening to outside opinions.

Exit polls from many of the recent primary elections seem to support that idea. We all know by now, on the basis of TV reporting, that each candidate has definite groups of supporters.

Clinton is supported by white, working class voters and Obama by the better educated and the young.

We hear almost constantly that Hispanic voters support this, black voters support that, female voters support this and young voters support something or someone else. What may be a mere majority in some young group is converted into something like a certainty. It confuses me, and I can only suppose that other voters and prognosticators are equally confused. The future seems murky indeed.

Where oh where is the wise old fisherman who could look at or interview a few voters, stare off in the distance and tells us that tomorrow is going to be a Clinton or an Obama day, or even a McCain day?

Anxiety, excitement in this writer's life

A.J Hoffman

I have oneweek's worth of clothes stuffed into a duffel bag including a dress shirt and tie, a dress coat that's a little too big for me sprawled over the back seat, a six pack of beer, a cereal bar and a rack of CD's loaded up into my well used, yet durable, 2002 Saturn.

The car has over 104,000 miles on it and needs an oil change. Plus, there's an annoying sound coming from the back driver's side tire. It sounds like a tin can is rattling inside the axle and this is just one of the many things that scares the hell out of me as I drive 160 miles to Charlevoix.

I just graduated college, my girlfriend of two years is now my ex, my 15–year-old dog just recently had to be put to sleep, and that's not even half of the story.

All of this truly means the end of something for me. But, at the same time, I've been told that this is only the beginning of life for me as an adult.

I'm worried they won't like me, I'm worried the Pistons are going to lose to the Celtics, I'm worried I'll die on the way to Charlevoix due to all of the twists and turns along M-32, I'm worried that my ex-girlfriend has already found somebody new and that I have no chance at ever getting her back, I'm worried that the woman I'm renting a room from might be a serial killer because I've never met her in person.

Right now, I'm most worried that this column might be too random, like a Palahniuk novel.

I am afraid that I might accidentally put myself in a position where I have everything to lose and nothing to gain.

Fast forwarding to almost a week later, I see that there's more to be afraid of by looking back: My hometown, my family, friends, the economy, etc.

But looking ahead: The start of my career, a whole new town, new friends, a fresh start and a clean slate, the future is far more optimistic and it outweighs the past.

As a reporter here, I will do my best to be fair and accurate.

I think I'm being pretty accurate in saying that all of the people here are incredibly nice.

Kindness goes a long way with me and it's made me enjoy the job and the place for the short time that I've been here.

So, despite how scary this whole life changing experience has been for me, I think that even if my car dies here in Charlevoix, it wouldn't be a bad thing.

GAS AND GASBAGS

Editor:

My goodness Mrs. Gennett, your emotional insight contributes to a lively opinion page. "Yes, we can shout from the rooftops that it's government driven. Why else would oil executives be brought in to map out the plunder of Iraq? Nothing gets done in America that doesn't pad someone's pocketbook. If war wasn't good for someone's profit we wouldn't go there."

Are you really that cynical? Could our leaders of business and government be that bad?

Why is a basic economic principle like the law of supply and demand so hard for some to understand? Perhaps it's because a scapegoat or villain like "big oil" or speculators are so easy to grasp.

Perhaps you noticed, Mrs. Gennett, that, when the Chinese communists adopted partial capitalism their economy starting growing like crazy. They buy and burn a lot of oil and gas. Economic growth in India is also very strong and they are actively breeding as well.

As free markets create wealth folks dump their Mackinaw Island type transportation in favor of more hydrocarbon fueled vehicles like your roomy comfortable PT Cruiser. That creates rapidly rising global demand for gasoline.

The bottom line is demand for oil is growing faster than supply. Has production of easy to extract crude peaked? We don't know for sure. What the market does know for sure is that it will. That will likely be sooner rather than later and it won't be pretty. We will look back fondly at our bargain $4 gas.

Our country desperately needs a real national energy policy. We need to conserve and provide economic incentives for alternative sources of energy. Here in northern Michigan wind has great potential. We also need to drill in some sensitive areas and use more nuclear power to generate electricity. It's time to compromise and gore all the sacred oxen.

Here on Beaver Island gas cost $5.20 a gallon. We buried the cynical blame game in favor of change. You ought to see all the electric cars, bikes, mopeds and new small fuel efficient cars. We plan trips more carefully. We follow the well known conservation tips mentioned in your column.

You said, "Consumers aren't in control of this, we are at its mercy." You're wrong. It's time to put the simplistic blame game aside.

If we reduce demand prices will decline in the short term. If we demand better government we can develop a national energy policy that jump starts the fossil fuel replacement process.

THANK-YOU

Editor:

The Roloff family would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone that helped make the 14th Annual Bryan Roloff Memorial Benefit a big success again this year.

Thank-you so much for all the hard work and delicious food.

To all the businesses and everyone that donated all the items for the silent auction and door prizes, we certainly appreciated everything you did for us.

I would like to name each and everyone of you but I'm afraid I'll miss someone.

To all of you, we would like to say how much it means to us and just how grateful we are to you.

Thanks for being so generous.

A special thanks to our friends, family and everyone that stopped by to help us celebrate Bryan's Life and music. It certainly was a wonderful day: delicious food, lots of fun and the music was awesome.

Last but not least, all the bands: Miss Conduct, Peril, Soul Shine and Namus, this benefit couldn't have taken place without you.

Thank-you for being here with us again this year and helping us keep Bryan's memories alive.

You shall always hold a special place in our hearts.

Barry Loper, we must say "thanks" for coordinating all the bands this year. You did a great job and we appreciate it.

ENOUGH WITH THE JUNK FOOD

Editor:

Do you know what kids at Charlevoix Middle School have for lunch everyday? Most likely it's junk food.

How can we help them eat better? Charlevoix Middle School and Charlevoix High School should have open lunches.

If we had open lunches kids would probably not have pizza and a cookie everyday.

They could have something different every day.

They also could have the same thing everyday if they chose to.

The point that I'm trying to make is that, if (the schools) had open lunches, kids would have a larger variety of what they ate for lunch.

The second reason that I have is that open lunches should help local restaurants.

The children would go and spend their money and that would help the restaurant. It could help a little or it could help a lot, but it would help either way.

The third and last reason that I have is that the school would save money.

If fewer kids ate at the school, the school could order less food, therefore saving their money.

They could then use that money for something different.

So, having open lunches would benefit the kids making them healthier.

It also would help the school and local restaurants money-wise. Clearly having open lunches is a good idea.

BE CAREFUL

Editor:

A word of caution:

As the weather warms up and walkers and bike riders come out in greater numbers, motorists need to be aware of their surroundings and use their mirrors, especially when backing up, or leaving a parking place.

Also they should avoid flinging their doors open without looking to see if anyone is alongside.

I, myself, have been a victim of this, and I assure you it's not fun to land on the pavement while trying to bicycle through town.

Another thing motorists should be aware of are the two crosswalks on Petoskey Avenue used by the golfers.

Let's all make it a safe summer for all who enjoy the outdoors and our town.

P.S. All you bikers remember to walk your hikes across the bridge.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

• Navy Seaman Lyle R. Sundelius, son of Tina M. and Scott A. Sundelius of Charlevoix, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Sundelius completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness. The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations." This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage and commitment. Its distinctly Navy flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor. Sundelius is a 2004 graduate of Northwoods Baptist Academy of Charlevoix.

• Jacklyn Heckendorn, a graduate of Charlevoix High School, has received the Sterling G. Murray Memorial Grant from Michigan State University's College of Education. She was presented with the honor during the college's annual Awards Reception, April 18, at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

A junior majoring in English, secondary education, with a psychology minor, Heckendorn realized her passion for teaching while working as a summer camp counselor for diverse high school students. A dean's list student, she was a tutor at Eastern High School and Pattengill Middle School in Lansing this school year. Heckendorn eventually hopes to teach overseas. Her parents are Kirk and Kathy Heckendorn.

• Lake Superior State University awarded Elyse Michrina recognition by awarding her a Summa Cum Laude Outstanding Business Graduate Associate's Degree. She also received the Summa Cum Laude medal.

• May 16, Michael S. Dupuis received his B. A. in finance from the Mendoza School of Business at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana. Michael was a 2004 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He will be working for US Bank as an alternative asset funds manager in Milwaukee, Wis. He is the son of Mark and Molly Dupuis of Charlevoix.

Lauren Eldredge

• Lauren V. Eldredge graduated on May 3 with a degree in elementary education from Michigan State University. While attending MSU she was a member of ZETA Tau Alpha Sorority. She will be doing her internship in West Bloomfield in the fall. She is the daughter of Doug and Nancy Eldredge of Charlevoix.

• Lauren Dupuis, A 2007 graduate of Charlevoix High School finished her freshman year at the McDonough School of business at Georgetown University, Washington D.C. with a cumulative grade point average of 3.925. Lauren is studying international business with a minor in Chinese. She is the daughter of Mark and Molly Dupuis of Charlevoix.

• Following are Hope College Seniors who were candidates to graduate with bachelor degrees. Each student was awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree unless otherwise noted:

Amanda Boss, daughter of Wilson and Judy Boss, awarded a Bachelor of Nursing/Nursing;

Shayna Drost, daughter of Chris and Danya Drost, awarded a Social Studies Composite;

Katherine Madison daughter of Herman and Carol Madison awarded a degree in English and Physical Education.

• Alma College announces Charlevoix Area graduates: Taylor Fisher of Charlevoix is a candidate for a Bachelor of Science degree in biology. He is a 2004 graduate of Charlevoix High School and the son of William and Tori Inglis.

Long legs and a lot of miles

BY LOUISE NELLE
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A very tall man recently came walking along US-31 in Charlevoix and Emmet County on his way to the Upper Peninsula.

Wearing 3-foot stilts, the man is Neil Sauter of Blissfield and he is on a mission to walk 830 miles across Michigan to raise awareness for United Cerebral Palsy of Michigan. And yes, he will be doing it all while wearing stilts.

Sauter, 25, began his trek May 5 in Lambertville on the Ohio-Michigan border. Although he could have worn regular shoes, ever since he began wearing stilts in parades one year ago he has enjoyed entertaining people and wanted to add a fun component to his walk.

Sauter passed through the Charlevoix-Petoskey area and after eight weeks of traveling expects to reach his final destination, Ironwood on the Wisconsin-Michigan border.

Throughout the eight weeks, because of a limited budget, he will rely on the generosity of others for some of his food and the chance to pitch his two-man tent in a yard.

Although his first week was slower because he was still getting into shape, Sauter said, "I'm getting stronger now and it's getting easier in some ways ... The hardest part really has been dealing with the wind. It blows me around a bit."

By week three, he said his trek was going well and he had already raised $8,000 to support the productivity and independence of people with cerebral palsy and other disabilities.

However, some difficulties have already crept up, which is what he expected. Because stilts are not meant for long distances, they have already started to show some wear and tear, such as the pads, making his shins and calves sore. He admitted that stilts are not the most comfortable footwear for long distances. They are heavy, exhausting to use and he is not as agile when they are strapped to his legs.

Plus, the fact that he was born with a mild form of cerebral palsy makes his trek a little more challenging.

"It causes my feet to turn in when I walk and my calf muscles tend to tighten up," he said. "It makes it more difficult for me to get a nice even stride with the stilts."

Despite the challenges, Sauter remains positive and continues to put one stilt in front of the other. And as anyone can imagine, he has received various reactions

OBITUARIES

Irene Endress Protzel: died May 25, 2008

Irene (Bugai) Endress Protzel, 85, left her earthly body on Sunday, May 25, 2008.

She had spent 21 months with the kind and compassionate staff of Tendercare nursing home, battling thyroid cancer and dementia.

She was born in Big Rapids, the second daughter of Joseph and Louise (Larson) Bugai.

She grew up in East Jordan where her father had moved his family for business.

After graduating second in her high school class at 16, Irene enrolled at Marygrove College in Detroit for one year.

Subsequently, Irene traveled to Los Angeles, where she worked as a window designer for the famous May Co. Department store, and then in the animation department of Disney Studios.

She also volunteered at the Hollywood USO, and after months of listening to the heartbreaking stories of the soldiers she served, she enlisted in the US Marine Corps Women's Reserve.

She transferred to the Quantico Marine Base in Virginia where she remained until her discharge at the end of World War II.

She then entered American University in Washington DC to pursue her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in painting.

While in college Irene met her first husband, Federico Alfredo Endress, from Chile. After the birth of their son, Eric, she moved with Alfredo to Caracas, Venezuela, where she became pregnant with their second child, Mary.

Her second husband was another American University friend, from Peru, German Protzel. They had a daughter, Michelle.

Irene worked as a teacher for 29 years, first in the Muskegon Heights elementary schools and then, after receiving her Masters degree in Education at Michigan State, in the Lansing School District as a Reading Specialist.

At retirement, she moved to Charlevoix for 11 years, and finally settled in Traverse City in 1996.

Irene's great loves were traveling and Lake Superior. Her homes were filled with hand picked stones, gathered over decades of endless treasure hunting. Her Dad's beloved cabin on the Two-Hearted River was her base for exploration all over the UP and the Superior coastline.

Irene was preceded in death by her parents, Joe and Louise; her brother, James (Buddy) Bugai; and her beloved daughter, Michelle Protzel (AKA: Mich Breighton).

She is survived by her beloved son and devoted caretaker, Eric Endress and her daughter Mary Endress (Eric Pearson), both of Traverse City; her sister Jean B. Muha of Ellsworth; nieces Lynn, Lori, Lisa, and Mary Jessica; nephews Michael, Jeffrey, David, Mark, and Gary; and loving friends: the Cihak family, Yenyun Wang, and Irene's "adopted grandson," Charles Wang.

There is no public memorial planned.

Eleanor D. Pancoast: died May 21, 2008

Jinx Pancoast died peacefully at her home in Windmill Harbour, Hilton Head, S.C. on May 21, 2008, surrounded by her children. She was born in Kalamazoo, MI and was the daughter of the late Velma R. and Wayne L. McCane. Upon graduating from Michigan State University with a degree in Education, she became a social worker for a Family Service agency. Following the start of her own family, Jinx's interests focused on community events and philanthropic pursuits. While living in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area of MI, she served on the board of the Junior Women's Symphony, Meadowbrook Women's Assoc., Pine Lake Country Club and The Village Club. Quick to volunteer her services, she had an incredible gift for getting others "enthusiastically" involved as well.

Jinx had a very successful career in Real Estate sales for a number of years. Following her marriage in 1978 to her beloved husband, the late Bob Pancoast, her talents shifted from the selling of homes to the selling of antiques and "worthy accessories". Antique shows and later a seasonal antique shop in the resort community of Charlevoix, MI became the vehicles in which to showcase her good taste and talents. Following the sale of Rose Cottage Antiques, and while still summering in MI, Jinx turned her attention to service on the Development Council of the Charlevoix Area Hospital and as a board member of the Friends of the Pool project, the Charlevoix Historical Society and the Charlevoix Enrichment Foundation.

Jinx's service and commitment to her primary residence of Hilton Head, SC was unbridled. Jinx's community involvement included co-chair of the National Juried Art Show for the Hilton Head Art League, board member and special events chair for the Orchestra League and co-chair for its Musicales. She was a proud member of the South Carolina Yacht Club, serving as a board member and on the Membership and House Committees.

Jinx is survived by her children: Deb (Whitcroft) and Phil Harmon of Harbor Springs, MI; Lisa (Whitcroft) and Doug Olander of Alma, MI; Rick Whitcroft of Colorado Springs, CO; Rusty Whitcroft of Glendale, CA; Pat and Kimiko Pancoast of London, UK; Chris and Marilyn Pancoast of Golden, CO; Jim and Mary Pancoast of Dayton, OH; Curtis and Valerie Pancoast of Calera, AL, and 12 grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her cherished husband, Robert L. Pancoast.

A Memorial Service will be held at Windows on the Waterway, 5 Waterway Lane, Hilton Head Plantation on Wednesday, June 4, at 4 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Hospice Care of the Low Country, P.O. Box 3827, Bluffton, S.C. 29910, or to charity of one's choice.

The Island Funeral Home and Crematory is in charge of arrangements.

OBITUARIES

Memorial service: James R. McAlister

The life of James R. McAlister (Lt.Col.USAF-Retired) of Charlevoix and Jonesboro, Ark. will be celebrated in a service on June 16 at noon at the Community Reformed Church. His body was interred, with full military honors, at Arlington National Cemetery on January 7, 2008.

He and his family have maintained a home in Charlevoix since 1971 when he was stationed at the Bayshore Radar Auto Track Facility (Bayshore Bomb Plot). During this time, he served two tours in Vietnam. He was an Navigator and Electronic Warfare Officer with over 4,300 hours of flight in the B-52H aircraft. He died of a combat related injury on Nov. 9, 2007. All those who knew and loved Jim are invited to attend. His obituary was listed in the Nov. 14, 2007 Courier.

Zonta hosts Michigan women authors

The Zonta Club of Charlevoix hosted their annual Literary Delights featuring three Michigan women authors, including a former Charlevoix Courier reporter on May 17. This event was held at the public library to raise funds for Zonta's projects.

Carole Eberly, now of Elberta, near Frankfort, began her professional writing career at the Courier in 1966.

Since she was 5 years old Carole had wanted to write. She would say words and she and her mother would make them into poems. But, in 1966, she had just graduated from Michigan State University and of three journalism openings in Michigan, she decided to come to Charlevoix because she knew there was quite a bit of water around it.

In 1968, she left to become the first woman, at least for any length of time, to cover the Michigan Legislature. Later she wrote her first book "Michigan Cooking...and Other Things," obtained her MA in journalism, and a Ph.D. in American Studies.

She has traveled extensively in her career, had a position teaching at Central Michigan's Department of Journalism, and written many more books, usually with recipes included.

You can find the complete collection of Carol's books at www.eberlypress.com.

The Charlevoix Zonta Club uses Literary Delights as a fundraiser for college scholarships and Sights on Success program for sixth- through eighth-grade girls in the area.

Approximately one-third of services dollars collected by Zonta are used to financially support major international projects often set up in conjunction with the United Nations agencies UNICEF and UNIFEM.

The Zonta Club of Charlevoix presently provides $3,500 in scholarship money annually for women planning to attend or currently attending college.

The Sights on Success (SOS) program is a day-long event offered free of charge for sixth- through eighth-grade girls. The program focuses on activities that promote self-esteem, goal setting and confidence building.

10 things you never knew about Leyland Barta

Leyland Barta is the Office Manager at Winchester Funeral Home. He has lived in Charlevoix since 1967, though he is not a native. His wife's name is Sue and they have three children together: A daughter named Denise, 22, and twins Scott and Rachel, 20. They also have three pets, a dog named Molly and two cats.

Q 1. What is your favorite food to eat or prepare?

A. Ribs.

Q 2. What are your hobbies?

A. I umpire at softball games and referee volleyball games.

Q 3. What do you like most about Charlevoix?

A. The people. I can't walk down the street here in town without saying hello to about 12 different people.

Q 4. If you could change one thing about yourself or your world what would it be?

A: I would lose weight.

Q 5. If you could meet anyone, who would it be?

A: Ronald Reagan.

Q 6. What is something nobody knows about you?

A. I chaperoned the high school band camp for the last eight years.

Q 7. What's your favorite movie of all time?

A. The Game, with Michael Douglas.

Q 8. How did you get into your line of work?

A: Ron was looking for somebody, and we were both substitute teachers. We had known each other and been friends for a long time.

Q 9. What book most influenced you?

A. The Bible.

Q 10. Where do you see yourself in five years?

A: Doing the same thing. I enjoy my life, so hopefully I'll still be doing what I do.

Women's Giving Circle award reception planned

The Hestia Women's Giving Circle will award grants to seven local programs serving women and girls at its second Annual Meeting and Membership Reception planned for June 18.

"We are very excited to be able to provide nearly $42,000 in support and seed money to these promising projects," said Denise Simon President of the giving circle. "The Annual Meeting will give us an opportunity to announce and distribute these grants and also encourage additional women to join the Giving Circle."

The Hestia Giving Circle formed in 2006 with the leadership of Planned Parenthood staff and volunteers.

Its goal is to promote the economic self-sufficiency and well-being of women and girls in Emmet and Charlevoix County.

The circle is named for the Greek goddess Hestia, who expresses her love and concern for others through thoughtful acts.

The Giving Circle provides an opportunity for women to pool their donations to make a significant impact and to also educate themselves about issues facing women and girls in our community. Giving circles are a relatively new phenomenon that is improving the quality of life in communities, especially dealing with women's issues.

There are currently 22 members of the Hestia Giving Circle, and the group is actively seeking new members.

The annual membership fee is $1,000, and all of the funds received are distributed directly to local organizations serving women and girls.

The funds are held as a donor-advised fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, which assists in the grant review and funds distribution.

"We set the membership at a high level because we hope participation in the Hestia Giving Circle will be a serious and intentional commitment for members," said Simon. "It is more than a donation; it is an opportunity to play a meaningful role in women's philanthropy and the status of women in our community. However, we've eased the financial burden by allowing the membership to be paid in quarterly installments throughout the year, and two women can share a membership and one vote."

The Hestia Annual Meeting and Membership Reception will be held Wednesday June 18.

Representatives of the seven projects receiving funding will each give a presentation on the work they are doing. Officers for the coming year will be elected and a short annual report and financial report will be presented.

"We welcome any women interested in learning more about the Women's Giving Circle and women's philanthropy to attend," said Martha Lancaster, Hestia Secretary "Because the reception is being held at a private home, we request those interested in attending to call 525-2326 by June 11 to confirm attendance and get directions."

For more information about the Giving Circle or to join, contact Lancaster at 526-2326 or Leah Cole at Planned Parenthood 347-3710 extension 15.

Trike-a-thon

Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School has once again broken a record. This year the children raised $1,400 for the St. Jude's Children's Hospital. This yearly event encourages exercise along with the spirit of giving. The children did roughly 50 laps around the parking lot's designated route which included stop signs, speed limits, and imaginary moving cars to be aware of. Bike Safety had been taught throughout the week, and tickets were issued for those who broke the rules.

Dozens of ecstatic seniors toss their caps in the air following commencement ceremonies on Sunday, June 1 at Charlevoix High School.

Elizabeth Kur, a Rayder valedictorian and Courtney Chamberlain, a salutatorian, shared the stage to give their graduation speeches to their fellow classmates at Charlevoix High School last Sunday. There were 112 Rayder graduates this year.

Nicholas Wimmer, valedictorian, and Nicholas Williams, salutatorian, share the stage to give their graduation speeches to their fellow classmates on Sunday June 1 at Charlevoix High School.

Aaron Smith, Director of Year-Round Hoops for the Detroit Pistons, gave the official commencemant address to the graduating class of 2008 at Charlevoix High School. Smith showed off his championship ring from the 2003-2004 season and told the graduating class to "find your passion, and don't let anyone laugh at your dream."

S.A.N.E.: 'Prescription drug abuse on the rise'

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

According to S.A.N.E. unit commander D/Lt. Ken Mills, drug enforcement has continued to remain a strong arm of law enforcement despite repeated budgetary reductions over past and current years.

"The difficult economic times for our state have continued. This, along with word of projected grant reductions, may effect the way S.A.N.E. is funded in the future," Mills stated in his annual report. "S.A.N.E. has generated a good amount of money through forfeiture the past couple of years, but becomes more reliant on these dollars each year."

He added, "It is unfortunate that S.A.N.E. relies so heavily on forfeiture funds to operate, but with each entity facing difficult budgetary decisions, it is necessary."

During a recent telephone interview Mills spoke of the largest threats he sees to the people of northern Michigan.

"We've really seen a lot of prescription drugs," he said. "We feel like it's the biggest problem we're facing up here."

Mills said cocaine availability seems to be decreasing.

"We have had some good success getting into these groups (cocaine dealers)," he said. "It's still out there, but we'd like to think we've had an impact on the availability of it."

Some of the more serious investigations of note, according to S.A.N.E. officials, include a case involving suspects from Cheboygan purchasing cocaine from suspects in West Branch with the intent to sell said contraband throughout northern Michigan.

"S.A.N.E. followed the Cheboygan suspects to West Branch and, with help from the drug team in West Branch STING, witnessed the transaction and identified the suspects," Mills stated. "S.A.N.E. contacted the Cheboygan suspects and seized the crack cocaine."

He added, "Three people were arrested in this investigation."

Other drug busts include seizure of more than two ounces of crack cocaine, one ounce of powder cocaine, prescription drugs, a handgun, digital scales, cash and surveillance equipment from a home in Emmet County. Both the suspect and his girlfriend were arrested in the case.

Last March, S.A.N.E. personnel arrested four suspects, two from Charlevoix County, two from Emmet County after an investigation which led to the discovery of the sale of powder cocaine in Charlevoix.

More than three ounces of powder cocaine, two pounds of marijuana, scales and cash were seized.

In August, 2007, S.A.N.E. seized 247 marijuana plants through 17 investigations in the following counties: Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Chippewa, Emmet, Mackinac and Otsego. Nine people were arrested in conjunction with these cases.

Drug arrests totaled 203 in 2007.

Following are some of the drugs picked up during S.A.N.E. busts, amount of each seized and the street value of each drug:

- 218 grams cocaine - $23,991
- 82 grams of crack cocaine - $9,020
- Six doses of ecstasy - $180
- 686 marijuana plants - $686,000
- 202 pounds of marijuana - $202,095
- 196 doses of methadone - $979
- One dose of methamphetamine - $100
- 96 doses of morphine - $4,290
- 156 doses of OxyContin - $3,120
- 185 doses of Vicodin - $18,500

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema said, while cocaine, marijuana and methadone continue to pose problems in the area, it is medicine which seems to be the fastest growing choice of drug dealers and abusers.

"One of the biggest things I've seen as county prosecutor is prescription drugs," he said. "I've realized a big spike in prescription drugs from doctor shopping all the way down."

Jarema warned citizens to remove labels from their medicine bottles before discarding them to help prevent misuse of the information by criminals.

"Be cognizant when throwing prescription bottles out and shred them," he said. "And, report any suspicious activity."

Jarema added that buying and selling prescription drugs illegally carries the same penalty as dealing in any controlled substance.

There were 200 complaints originated last year with 326 intelligence reports received. There were 30 search warrants executed in total in 2007.

Of the 507 arrest counts charged on the 203 suspects arrested, the most numerous counts include: cocaine delivery including crack, 87; maintaining a drug house, 98; delivery of marijuana, 103; possession of marijuana, 31; delivery of synthetic narcotics, 33; and delivery of opium or a derivative thereof, 59.

Total revenue was $519,894.23 with total expenditure of $473,749.03.

Charlevoix ranked second for most complaints with 39, just under Chippewa County's 44, and Charlevoix came in second in the number of arrests with 34, just under Chippewa County's 55 arrests.

S.A.N.E.'s yearend balance is up from 2006 with $188,949 last year, compared to $146,275 the year before. The lowest balance in 10 years was 2004 with $79,771. The highest balance was in 1998 with $328,331.

Anyone suspecting illegal drug activity is advised to report it via S.A.N.E.'s toll-free

Two Republicans vie for First District Congressional seat

Goldthorpe

Hooper

Linda Goldthorpe of Luce County and Don Hooper of Iron River are both seeking to unseat Bart Stupak in the upcoming congressional race for the first district of Michigan.

• Goldthorpe lives on the site of her great-grandfather's resort in Luce County with her husband of 19 years, George Miller (United States Marine Corp.) and their sons, Isaac and Joshua.

A third-generation graduate of Northern Michigan University, she also attended Lake Superior State University and Ferris State University before obtaining a law degree at Thomas Cooley Law School in Lansing.

Concern for people fuels Linda's campaign. Upper and northern Michigan residents should matter as much as the environment, and their lives and livelihood require immediate attention.

Goldthorpe envisions northern Michigan supported by local industry with jobs for all, and sees the free market with fewer regulations as key to development. As a pro bono attorney, Linda has watched the decay of our liberties and privacy with real concern, and seeks to halt the devaluation of our dollar and expansion of top-heavy government. She also believes that limiting government to its surprisingly small Constitutional role would accomplish much towards these goals.

"As a child, I remember singing 'God Bless America' in a two room schoolhouse, and waving to police officers with happy confidence. Since then, I've watched our freedom, and subsequently, our trust in government, decline dramatically," she said. "Our government ignores its own Constitution, while simultaneously spouting the necessity to spread democracy abroad."

Goldthorpe is pro civil liberty and privacy, pro second amendment rights, anti oppressive taxation, pro border security and against the death penalty.

• Hooper was born, raised and educated in Iron River. He served in the United States Aviation Engineers during the Korean War. Honorably discharged after tour of duty.

He is married with four children.

Hooper was educated at North Park College in Chicago where he majored in English literature and a minor in speech.

He has served as an intermittent lay preacher for Grace Covenant church, intermittent lay pastor in a church in Northern Wisconsin, served as a Sunday school teacher and superintendent at Grace Covenant in addition to time as a bible camp director at Hagerman Lake.

Hooper has also worked as an underground miner, headed a trucking company and worked in retail and wholesale in the grain and farming industry.

According to his Web site, Hooper also lists the following accomplishments and membership to various organizations:

• Co-Founded the first deep water search and rescue organization (SCUBA) in the State of Michigan, before State Police provided. Rescued and recovered individuals from rivers, deep lakes, and mine shaft sump about 1,800 ft. under ground.

• National Rifle Association since 1987, on board of directors for A.C.E. (Americans for Constitutional Enforcement)

A keepsake collection of historic sports and recreation photos from Charlevoix and Emmet counties

Petoskey News-Review
petoskeynews.com • local news you can't get anywhere else

Dear reader,
Woven into the history of Charlevoix and Emmet counties are the families who worked hard, and when the work was done, they played.

In November, The Petoskey News-Review will publish, They Came To Play, a pictorial history book featuring sports, recreation and leisure activities including: skiing, golf, tennis, boating, hunting, snowmobiling, baseball, hockey, bowling and more.

This limited-edition book will capture Charlevoix and Emmet county folks at play from the 1800's through the 1970's. Your family snapshots will help us see who we are today by reliving who we were yesterday.

Please look through your old photos and find those special sports, recreation or leisure gems. Then call Dena Sydow at the Petoskey News-Review, 231-439-9313, to arrange a time when you can bring your photos in to us. Dena will review your photos and ask you a few questions about the story behind your pictures and ask you to sign a release. If we use your photos in the book, we will include your name as the the contributor. Time is short, we need to see your photos before August 15.

Thank you for sharing,

Sincerely,

Doug Caldwell
President & Publisher

Start collecting your favorite sports and leisure photos from Charlevoix and Emmet counties from the 1800's through the 1970's. Look for the ads in the News-Review on how to submit photos and pre-order this special, limited edition book.

Helping hands

Josh Kruzel (left) from Harbor Springs High School helps paint the inside of the Moms-n-Tots Home located at Charlevoix High School. Kruzel is in his third year of woodworking and drafting for Brad Reed's class. Reed's class volunteered to work with Brian Certa's class to fix the vandalized building damaged in recent weeks. Kole Slabaugh (right) also Reed's student, sweeps the floor. "It was a volunteer situation," Slabaugh said. "The teacher asked if anyone wanted to come out and help, so we did."

Pittman anniversary

Bob and Betty Pittman of 206 Prospect celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary this week. They exchanged vows at the chapel at Midland Army Air Base in Texas on June 5, 1943 during World War II. Family and friends gathered to mark the occasion on Sunday afternoon at the American Legion hall in their honor. The couple retired to Beaver Island in 1984 and moved to Charlevoix in 1994. Four living children, five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren with the youngest being born on May 26, shared with them in their joy.

Kids at work

Harbor Industries observed "Take Your Kid to Work Day" on April 24. This year Harbor hosted 25 children, ages 9 to 15, for a pizza lunch and guided tour of Harbor's manufacturing facility. As always, Way Transportation brought over a big rig for the kids to climb in and blow the horn.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Charlevoix baseball falls to Red Devils

The Charlevoix Rayders' baseball season ended in the district finals with an 11-0 loss to East Jordan.

The Red Devils won their second consecutive district crown.

Charlevoix reached the finals with a 6-3 win over Indian River Inland Lakes.

"It was too bad we had to end the season that way," coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We played so well in the first game against Inland Lakes, battling back to win. East Jordan really swung the bats well against us. We didn't have an answer for them."

The Rayders' ace Ty Telgenhof gave up three runs in the first inning to Inland Lakes but blanked the Bulldogs the rest of the way.

Charlevoix scored a run in the third when Sam Balasz singled, moved up on a hit by pitch and error, and scored on a Michael Heckendorn sacrifice fly.

Charlevoix took the lead in the bottom of the fifth when with one out, Kyle Jones walked and stole second. Jones scored on a single by Cliff Jones. After the second out of the inning, consecutive hits by Heckendorn, Jon Putman and Clayton Mitchell led to four more runs.

Telgenhof nailed down the win, striking out nine without walking a batter in the seven inning complete game. With the victory, Ty Telgenhof set a school record for pitching wins in a season with 10.

"Ty seemed a little jittery early on," Allen Telgenhof said. "But once he settled in, they couldn't really get much going against him. We played very strong, error-free defense behind him."

Cliff Jones had the only two Rayder hits, a single and a triple, against East Jordan's Scott Hansen in the championship game.

Drew Largent started and took the loss for Charlevoix

"It was sad to lose, but sadder to see six seniors, all starters, play their last game in a Rayder uniform. Ty Telgenhof, Cliff Jones, Kyle Jones, Balasz, Nic Williams and R.J. Moore have all been tremendous players and great people for our program. They will really be missed," coach Telgenhof added.

Ty Telgenhof and Cliff Jones were named to the 'All-Lake Michigan Conference team. Heckendorn received honorable mention.

Recent Charlevoix Little League results

Charlevoix's Little League, Junior Division, played a double-header on May 24 in Traverse City against Traverse City East.

The final score for the first game was Traverse City 9, Charlevoix 6.

Charlevoix hitters included singles by Will Jeakle, Jesse Drost, Tom Sutton and two singles by Jordan Farmer. Tommy Zipp had a double.

Nolan Ager pitched 3 and 1/3 innings with Jeakle completing the game.

In their second game, Traverse City bested Charlevoix, 13 to 1.

Charlevoix hitters included singles by Farmer, Jeakle and Alex Waha and three singles by Andrew Potter.

Pitching for Charlevoix was Andrew Potter, five innings and Thomas Sutton completing the game.

Lady soccer wins crown

Charlevoix bested Burt Lake NCMA 3 - 0.

Charlevoix improves to 17-2 with the win over the Eagles recently.

The Rayders got on the board early when juniors Meridith Rich and KC McCary combined with Rich assisting McCary for the score.

Charlevoix went up 2-0 in the first when Rich got her second assist on a corner kick which senior all stater Becca Madison volleyed home the shot.

The Eagles played hard and went to the ball all night, giving the Rayders all they wanted through midway in the second.

Danni Bergmann sent an assist to McCary who tallied her second goal of the night for the insurmountable 3-0 lead.

The Rayders had some other chances and had a goal called back on the offside call. Shots were 18-3 in favor of Charlevoix.

Defensively, senior Emily Foster again came through on several occasions to stop the Eagles attack.

Charlevoix keeper Tammy Potter earned a school record 14th shutout in the net.

Midfieleders Madison, McCary, Kaleigh Blanchard, Madison Way and Bergmann were able to control the play against the spirited Eagles.

Charlevoix then traveled to Holton on June third to play the Muskegon area District winner in the Regional semifinals. Results were not in by press time.

Leading up to their big win over Burt Lake, Charlevoix beat Harbor Springs 4-0.

The Rayders moved into a District Final match with Burt Lake NCMA with a convincing win.

Charlevoix came out motivated and dominated play throughout the beginning half. The first tally came when junior Olivia Catt headed home a long cross from senior co captain Ariel Ramsey. A few minutes later, centerback Meridith Rich wove her way through the Ram's defense and sent home an unassisted shot for the 2 nil half time margin.

Ramsey accounted for the Rayders' two second half scores assisted by Way and fellow senior co captain Madison.

Charlevoix managed 21 shots on goal to 3 for the Rams on the night.

Defensively, Charlevoix was led by keeper Potter who earned the shutout.

Senior co captain Emily Foster, junior Rich and junior Marnie Greene controlled play well from the defensive end.

Greene played her best game of the season.

Midfielders Madison, McCary, Bergmann and Kaleigh Blanchard also played well, taking the match away from the Harbor long ball attack.

This was an emotional win for Charlevoix after being stunned the previous two years by Harbor in the tournament.

It is very difficult to beat a good team three times in the same season.

The Rayders pulled it off this year, with a combined 15 goals for and none against in three games with the Rams.

One of the participants in the June 28 Run Charlevoix Marathon couldn't even walk a block without stopping to rest before he got a heart transplant in 1996. Donald Arthur, 63, of New York City, N.Y. now regularly competes in marathons to draw attention to the need for organ donations and blood donors. You may call Arthur at (917) 647-3352 for further information about organ donation or his participation in the marathon. Run Charlevoix includes a full marathon, that is a Boston Marathon qualifying race; a half marathon; and a 10k and 5k event. Walkers and athletes with a disability are welcome. There are presently runners from 19 different states, Canada and England running in this event and presently there are over 240 runners with just under a month remaining to register. To register, visit www.redrockco.com on the web and search Run Charlevoix There is also a mail-in form available. Runners may also register from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. on June 27 in Charlevoix's Bridge Park. For more information, call Ron Suffolk at (248) 437-4524. All registered runners will receive a commemorative shirt and the half and full marathon runners receive a long sleeved shirt plus a finisher's medal. There will be an awards ceremony after the event in Bridge Park with refreshments and a raffle.

Riding to school

Three of approximately 30 high school students make their way to Charlevoix High School on bicycles recently in lieu of driving cars for a "Be Cool — Ride Your Bike to School Day." The brainchild of science teacher Tom Schultz, who started riding his bike to school a few weeks ago to save gas and for the exercise, was taken up by the students for the same reasons.

Hospice charity raffle

When Hospice of Northwest Michigan holds its annual auction benefit on June 6 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix, there will be added excitement at the end of the evening.

That's when they will draw the winning raffle ticket for a 2008 18-foot Four Winns H 180 boat and trailer.

"This new fundraiser will help us to care for people at end-of-life, especially those who have no insurance or very little income," said Lynda Bockstahler, Director of Home Care & Aging at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, who oversees hospice nursing, therapeutic, and spiritual services. "Raffle proceeds will cover hospice services for uninsured clients or for items not covered by insurance."

"Hospice of Northwest Michigan does not turn anyone away because they are unable to pay for services," she said.

"The extra funds the boat raffle is generating will really help us make our clients more comfortable," said Mary Robinson, Hospice Supervisor "We're very grateful to Four Winns for making the raffle possible."

Only 300 $100 tickets will be sold.

Winning ticket will be drawn at 9 p.m. on June 6 at the Hospice of Northwest Michigan annual benefit auction

The winner does not need to be present to win

Tickets are available at www.hospicenwm.org.

For additional information about the Four Winns boat raffle or the Hospice of Northwest Michigan annual benefit auction, call 231-582-8800 or visit www.hospicenwm.org

Library budget hearing

The Charlevoix Public Library will hold a Public Hearing at 4 p.m. on June 12 at the library, 220 W. Clinton St., for the purpose of hearing oral comments and considering written comments from the public concerning an amendment to the budget for fiscal year 2007/2008 and the annual budget for fiscal year 2008/2009.

• This hearing is open to all the public.

The property tax millage rate proposed to be levied to support the annual budget for FY 2008/09 will be the subject of this hearing.

All interested citizens are encouraged to attend and/or submit comments.

The library budget is available for review during regular business hours prior to the public hearing at the Information Services Desk of the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

Conservatory of Dance opens

Debora Knight (above, left) dances with her daughter Ciarra who will be one of two instructors teaching dance at their Charlevoix location.

The Conservatory of Dance of Petoskey recently expanded to the Charlevoix area.

Having taken over the former Charlevoix Dance Studio building at South Side Gym, Debora Knight officially opened on June

"The Conservatory of Dance, Charlevoix will run year-round with classes being offered after school hours," Knight said. "Our curriculum includes ballet, tap, jazz, hip hop, creative movement, lyrical, adult classes and some ballroom. We accept dancers from up to adult and offer intensive as well as recreational dance."

Knight's daughter Ciarra and former dance studio owner Shannon Pemble will be the two primary teachers.

"The cost of classes begin at $8.00 per class and we have many multiple family discounts available. Boy's dance for free," Knight said. "The Conservatory of Dance has a dress code for all dancers which can be easily purchased locally or online."

Knight, who began dancing at age 5, has been teaching many forms of dance for 17 years at her former studio in Manistee.

"My mother enrolled my sister and I in a ballet class. I loved it: mostly the costume and performance," she said. "I continued training in the greater Lansing area and became a dedicated Ballerina at the age of 10 when I became a member (of) Lansing's first city Ballet Company. Dance became my life. In my teen years, while continuing with the ballet company, I expanded my training to include jazz and tap and became a principle dancer for an international folk troupe which gave me a taste of performing in so many different settings."

She added, "Performance remains a strong part of our curriculum to this day."

Knight has had numerous dancers continue dance in professional careers, some in dance and others in various performing arts. Some of her students have even gone on to perform in Hollywood, for the Young Americans and the Boston Ballet to name a few.

"The Petoskey (and) Charlevoix areas offer so many wonderful things to the community," Knight said. "And, having a solid dance training center will add to the already rich performing arts community. I am so happy to be able to bring our experience to this beautiful area."

Knight and her daughter are not the only ones in the family who enjoy tapping and prancing.

"I raised two sons, Jacob and Ryan ... in the Manistee area where I directed the Conservatory of Dance. Both sons danced through school, attended Blue Lake Fine Arts Ballet ensemble for four years on full scholarship," she said. "Jacob has continued his training as a dancer for the Traverse City Youth ensemble, principle lead in many regional companies and core dancer for Traverse City's first professional dance company Michigan Dance Collective."

Knight added, "Ciarra has also attended Blue Lake Fine Arts on full scholarship and continues her training."

Classes will be held at the Southside Gym for all ages teaching ballet and hipnagazz. For further information call (231) 510-0481 or e-mail debora.Knight@gmail.com.

RN

Grandvue Medical Care Facility has an opportunity for an RN with long term care experience to join our state-of-the-art facility as a Lifestyle Facilitator. Successful candidate will possess MDS experience, strong clinical and assessment skills, experience in working with residents with dementia, and experience in care plan development and implementation. Ability to communicate effectively with residents, families and facility team members is key. Grandvue offers an attractive benefits package for full-time employment including Blue Cross/Blue Shield health insurance, Delta Dental and VSP Vision insurance, company paid life insurance and MERS retirement plan, generous paid time off packages, and premium salary commensurate with experience. Stop by our facility at 1728 S. Peninsula Road, East Jordan, to fill out an application or call Jane Korthase, Human Resource Director at (231)536-2286 with questions or to arrange a facility tour. Applications will be accepted through June 10, 2008.

RN'S & LPN's

Grandvue Medical Care Facility. We are looking for RN's and LPN's interested in working in a state-of-the-art facility that is moving away from the medical model towards a more holistic approach to care through reduced nurse to resident caseloads. Full and part-time positions available. Our Extensive benefit package includes generous afternoon and midnight shift differentials, liberal time off package, and retirement plan for full and part-time staff. Health, dental, vision and life insurance available for full-time staff. Self scheduling allows nurses flexibility to plan shifts around individual needs and nurses work alternate weekends. If you are looking for a nursing position that will challenge your abilities, encourage personal growth, and allow you to build relationships with residents and their families, please apply at 1728 South Peninsula Road, East Jordan, or call Jane Korthase (231)536-2286 with questions.

purchased at the Maxwell's shop or KRG Excavations in Harbor Springs. Children 15 and younger will be admitted for free.

The Motorcycle Memorial Tour for Randy Saddison begins at 9 a.m. on Saturday June 28 at the Little Traverse Township Hall on Pleasantview Road in Harbor Springs. The procession will make its way all over northern Michigan, including a ride through Charlevoix and ends at approximately 4 p.m. at the Saddison residence at 4524 LaCourt Road in Harbor Springs.

A celebration and fundraiser event will then occur from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.

During the celebration and fundraiser portion of the event, following the tour which is open to all riders of motorcycles or cars, there will be plenty of food and activities for the whole family.

All proceeds benefit the RSM Scholarship Fund and help offset cost of food and refreshments.

The money raised will go towards two $3,000 scholarships for trade school students.

For more information, please visit www.randysaddison.com or call Katrina at (231) 838-6867.

Tickets are available at KRG Excavations, Inc. in Harbor Springs or at Maxwell Cycle Shop in Charlevoix.

Donations can also be sent to: First Community Bank, c/o RSM Scholarship, 200 E. Main St., Harbor Springs, MI 49740.

or anger too many people," he said. "At the same time, tell the truth. As I've learned over the last couple of days, they're not always going to be happy with what you have to say, but as far as journalism goes, I just hope to be accurate."

While Hoffman worked toward his Bachelor's of Science in journalism, he wrote for the Saginaw Review, the Delta Collegiate and CM Life and has traveled all over the United States.

"It's a much more beautiful area than Midland, everywhere you turn there's water or some sort of lake," he said. "I've been to New York before, Las Vegas, Florida, and the people in Charlevoix are the nicest people I've met."

Hoffman added, "I look forward to working with everybody here."

from drivers. Sometimes, people stop to say hello and give him food and water. Other times they stop, take a picture and drive away. Some just give him a strange look.

And then there are a few drivers who have called the police. So Sauter has taken to notifying communities in advance to let them know he is coming.

Overall, though, most drivers have been courteous toward the nearly 9-foot man walking on the shoulder of the road. If you see him, stop and say hello because he loves speaking to people he passes to tell them more about his mission.

To learn more about Sauter's efforts and to see pictures from his trek, visit www.stiltstory.org.

Senior bussing program

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging and County Board of Commissioners in collaboration with Charlevoix County Transit Oversight Committee are doing their part to assist seniors with the increased demand of the high cost of gasoline by providing free transportation for seniors 60 and over by Charlevoix County Transit bus system, including use of Transit bus on Beaver Island.

Free rides for senior customers will start June 2 and last for three months.

This is a pilot program to provide more senior-friendly transportation and alleviate the cost of driving your own car, thus decreasing global demands for gasoline.

Seniors will still need to call ahead to arrange for transportation at 582-6900.

The free rides will be limited to within the county for any activity such as shopping, senior center activities and out-of-county to medical appointments, which are not reimbursed, only by using the Charlevoix County Transit bus system.

The new transit director Ray Leach and Charlevoix Commission On Aging director Sue Bergmann are striving to make Charlevoix County a senior-friendly county and to improve services provided to its elderly residents.

Cost of this program is funded by the Charlevoix County senior millage.

NOW THROUGH AUG. 17

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed aboard the Alwilda, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodbeck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodbeck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

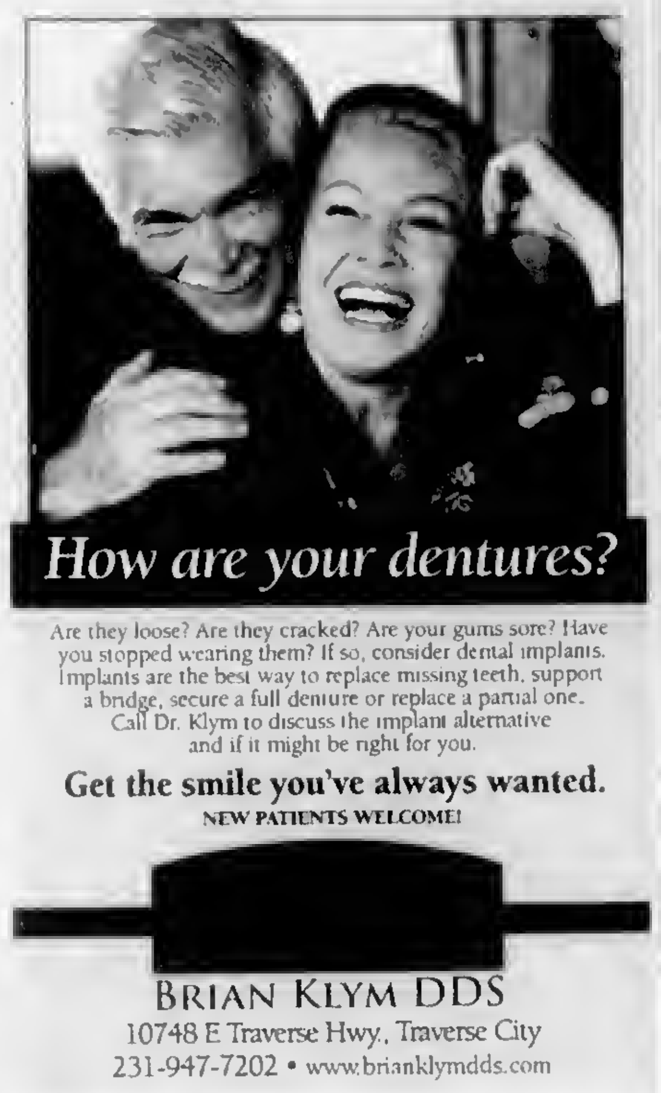
Charlevoix Historical Society Board meets at 4 p.m. the second Tuesday of the month at the Depot. For more information call 547-0373.



How are your dentures?
Are they loose? Are they cracked? Are your gums sore? Have you stopped wearing them? If so, consider dental implants. Implants are the best way to replace missing teeth, support a bridge, secure a full denture or replace a partial one. Call Dr. Klym to discuss the implant alternative and if it might be right for you.
Get the smile you've always wanted.

Closer to Le Griffon

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

After years of legal wrangling over salvage rights to what may be a 17th century ship, explorer Steve Libert now has at least some assurance Michigan officials will not swoop in and pilfer 28 years of sweat equity and intellectual property.

Libert's Great Lakes Exploration Group (GLEG) won this most recent battle following the April 22 opinion of the U.S. Sixth District Court of Appeals of Cincinnati, Ohio, demanding the Michigan U.S Western District Court, Southern Division to correct its mid-March decision not to issue an admiralty arrest to Libert's GLEG, the lower court has issued the arrest.

"The court shall issue a conditional warrant for the arrest of defendant unidentified, wrecked, and, for salvage-right purposes, abandoned sailing vessel," stated Chief United States District Judge Robert Holmes Bell in the June 2 filing. "Upon the Marshal's execution of the arrest warrant the Court shall have jurisdiction over Defendant and no person shall seize, remove, take physical possession of, or otherwise disturb Defendant without prior authorization from the Court."

The justice further stated that GLEG, "Shall disclose to Intervenors Michigan Department of Environmental Quality

City leaders consider groomer

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Dwight "Ike" Boss, Recreation Director for the City of Charlevoix, brought discussion to the table about the possible purchase of a new groomer for Mt. McSauba at the June 2 Charlevoix City Council meeting.

A groomer is a piece of equipment that maintains good skiing conditions and minimizes icy surface conditions.

"It's so important that we have a reliable groomer or else we won't be able to continue keeping the place open," said Bo Boss, manager of Mt. McSauba. "Last February, the old groomer kept breaking down on us. To purchase a used groomer is not the best idea. A new one has a lifetime of about 7,500 hours and if you were to purchase a used one, you just never know what you're going to get."

According to the proposal, a new Piston Bully groomer costs $215,000. It is re-

MDOT trucker maps

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) today announced that the 2008 state commercial trucking map is now available online.

The map is a free publication that is produced annually for truckers to use in accordance with state highway laws governing vehicle size, weight and load.

The map provides a variety of information intended to help commercial vehicle operators travel safely and efficiently in Michigan.

The map also lists structures with overhead clearances of less than 14 feet, to allow truckers to better plan their routes when over legal height transport is necessary.

In addition to explaining state highway laws governing vehicle size, weight and load, the MDOT Truck Operators Map also identifies routes with seasonal weight restrictions. Available at MDOT's Transportation Service Centers, region offices, and Michigan Welcome Centers, the map also is posted at state rest areas. The updated electronic version is available on MDOT's Web site at www.michigan.gov/truckmap.

Printed copies of the 2008 Truck Operators map can be ordered online or by contacting the MDOT Office of Communications at (517) 373-2160.

Sailboat to benefit local youth

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Thanks to the generosity of a benevolent benefactor and the hard work of some community leaders, Charlevoix now has a 16-foot, handcrafted cedar sailing vessel.

The Mackinaw style boat, which will be named by the local youth who work on her, has been donated by Seaports Great Lakes, a nonprofit group recently formed in the Upper Peninsula.

"Our intent is primarily youth oriented and exposing young people to the history of the great lakes maritime history through indigenous historical crafts such as the Mackinaw," said Seaports Great Lakes president, and longtime boat builder, Bob Schafer. "With a canoe-like stern, this style of boat was able to get off shore and back out sailing. It was very stable in the sea for moving family and cargo and fishing. It was a utility vessel for the day, the pickup truck of the water."

Aside from learning how the Native Americans employed this type of vessel, children of various ages will be able to learn the proper care and maintenance of a wooden sailboat, water safety and even how to sail.

"I was 14 when I first pulled an oar in a surf boat ... and at 23 I had my first command," said former U.S. Coast Guard Commander and one of several program effort organizers Dave Smith. "All of this comes from meeting and being involved with wonderful people such as Mr. Schafer."

The boat will likely be donated to a local nonprofit organization which will then hold the vessel in trust for the community.

"This is a teaching tool. Our intent is to donate it to a number of youth programs which could include Sea Scouts, Northwest Academy's Maritime Adventure Program and Charlevoix's family court for youth at-risk," Schafer said. "This is a new venture that is being philanthropically supported here in Charlevoix and my hope is to see youth go through an apprentice program here and in the surrounding communities."

The intent, Schafer added, is to establish a boat building program right here in Charlevoix.

"That's where Northwest Academy comes into the picture," said NWA Chief Administrative Officer Gary Stutzman. "Northwest is looking for a way to use the resources and the tremendous natural assets we have to expand our class offerings above and beyond the basic Merit Curriculum that is handed down by the state of Michigan."

He added, "We want to enhance the way we educate our youth."

Schafer got the idea to donate the boat while in a recent meeting with Northwest staff over another, as-of-yet undisclosed maritime project.

"I ... knew immediately that this is the perfect community and the perfect home for my hand-made replica of the Mackinaw," Schafer stated in a recent press release. "This group of Sea Scouts will have an opportunity to learn, first hand, the skills required to work in harmony with the elements. That's a lesson some people take a lifetime to learn."

While this first vessel is already built, there will be plenty of work needing to be done to keep it shipshape, according to fellow effort organizer Dale Hull.

"Every year, to get it ready for the season, we're going to need a whole lot of sandpaper, varnish, teak oil," he said. "All young people using the boat will be expected to participate and be involved in the process. They're going to be intimately involved with every inch of this cedar plank boat."

Students will work on the boat in Bridge Park in downtown Charlevoix.

"We really want to encourage the community to come down and inspect this vessel," Schafer said. "We want to get the youth excited about this new opportunity and really take ownership to see where this project can go."

This boat, fashioned after its 19th century cousins, will help students get out of their walled classrooms and into real world experiences.

"There are a lot of things young people can learn from sailing," Hull said. "You have to work in harmony with nature or you're going to lose. This is not a boat people often sail solo: it takes two or more crew, so working in conjunction for a common goal, that type of teamwork is enriching."

He added, "Few things are more rewarding than the skills which can be developed in sailing."

The public in general is invited to view the boat and chat with its workers over the next few weeks in Bridge Park.

NTCHS appeal second SUP

MINE

Planning Commission's mid-April decision to approve Wynkoop's second Special Use Permit (SUP).

"Our arguments are still the same: we fully expect the court to rule against him (Wynkoop)," said NTCHS member and Norwood resident Bill Gnodtke. "When Wynkoop tried to get us thrown off alleging we did not, Norwood Township citizens, have any standing, the judge ruled against him."

The ruling came out of a Traverse City circuit court on May 2 by Judge Thomas Power, the justice who has overseen the cases against Wynkoop for the last couple years.

"It's the same stuff," Wynkoop said. "They make bogus claims and sign affidavits, but to this date they have never been able to prove the claims they make."

He added, "It's important to note that, last time the judge (Power, winter, 2007) voided the decision of the planning commission because he said there was a possible appearance of impropriety because I was township supervisor. I resigned and this time we got a favorable decision anyway. And, that's with one person on the planning commission who had signed a petition against (the mine) last year and had spoken against it, but found in my favor this time around. I think that says an awful lot."

In addition to the recently filed appeal, NTCHS members have been trying to tour Wynkoop's property per a court ruling.

"We were going to be on the property on the third of June, and that never came to reality," Gnodtke said. "Wynkoop's attorney keeps refusing to let us in."

While Wynkoop once had an "open door" policy pertaining to allowing the public at large to tour his property, he has altered that to, "protect myself."

"The rules changed when these people got malicious, destructive and started lying and cheating and trying to create trouble for me," he said. "That's the difference. On numerous occasions I have told the public to contact me and I will let them on to see what I have planned."

Wynkoop said he agreed to allow several NTCHS members and their experts on his property, but the opposition changed the plan and number of individuals set to tour his operation at the last minute.

"The judge, as of today, has not signed any order," he said. "It's not a matter of us not letting them on. The point is, the judge needs to sign the order."

Gnodtke hopes the judge will hear this most recent appeal soon and offer some closure to the matter.

"We continue to think it's pretty sad that the citizens of the township have to go to court in order to get justice on this," he said. "But, it's been pretty clear that the courts, every time we have wound up in court, we've been correct and the township's been wrong."

Twice this year the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has been told Wynkoop's mine has some type of violation and both times the inspectors have found no wrongdoing.

Wynkoop called the inspections an annoyance which only serves him in the end.

"They come out and see that there's nothing bad going on out here," he said. "When (are NTCHS) going to stop costing the taxpayers and wasting (MDEQ's) time? These inspections aren't free."

Wynkoop had still not been served with papers to appear in court by press time. Look for further updates on this case in future editions of Charlevoix Courier.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

They often say that daughters marry men like their fathers. In my case, there are some definite similarities.

Looks and stature in the past were close enough that they could have been mistaken for father and son.

Educationally they differ but both are bright and have lots of information about life that they are eager to share with anyone who will listen.

Determined and strong willed, the need to be right and have the last word seems to be a common thread in this scenario as well.

Their similarities have another pattern that is carefully woven in: endless compassion and a willingness to give the shirt off their back to help someone in need.

Both are honest to a fault and possess the ability to give freely of their time and money to help make the community they live in a safer, peaceful and an aesthetically pleasing place in which to live.

Both possess enough determination in getting something accomplished that it could easily be mistaken for an obsessive compulsion.

As Father's Day approaches, I begin to reflect on past memories and time spent with dad.

His voice would boom across the room, but his words could be tender when you were injured or struggling with the day's events.

He was firm with his discipline and you knew he was in charge, but if someone had been unfair to you there was undoubting support.

Maybe it was the twinkle in his clear blue eyes or that signature space in his front teeth that looked at you when he smiled, because you always knew that even if you were in big trouble, he still loved you.

My favorite moments with him were simple and usually educational. Every question we asked was answered with a lengthy lecture comparable to any college professor's dissertation and only ended when mom broke in to say, "That's enough, they just wanted a short answer."

I enjoyed the little pleasures of carting grass clippings to a nearby field after he was finished mowing the yard. That same field became the cemetery for all of my assorted pets who passed on through the years.

Dad would make certain each little creature, on their judgment day, was carefully laid to rest into a shoe box lined with cotton.

It became a ritual for the two of us to create little funerals for everything from cats to lizards. It seems to be the simple things have become the big things that I remember best.

Only a father could be accepting of his daughter who loved horses so much that, at times, would imitate one, running around the backyard, flipping her pony tail as if it were a mane and pretending to rear by trying to touch the sky.

When a neighbor mentioned my doings, dad would just reply, "Isn't it fun to see how creative she is?"

Thanks dad, for not letting anyone think I needed psychological attention.

Dad took my interest in cap guns, horses and lariats into a learning opportunity and taught me how to use a lariat.

To this day I can still swing that rope into a beautiful circle and catch an animal, husband or a loose grandchild.

Time has passed and his bright blue eyes are dimmed with macular degeneration. A mind that could swiftly deduce what ailment you had and what medicine to take has turned to his worrying about remembering to take his own medicine at meals and bedtime.

A man who seemed so tall at five-foot-ten-and-a-half has become frail and smaller in size. But, he's still large in stature to his children.

As we grow older, we realized that his modeling of dedication to work and volunteering as well as his involvement with the Catholic Church, has rubbed off on us in some form or other.

Thanks Dad, for being the man you are and the examples you have set. Your life will never be forgotten as it's reflected in your children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Margaret Trudeau sums it best, "It's only when you grow up and step back from him or leave him for your own career and your own home, it's only then that you can measure his greatness and fully appreciate it."

To the two men in my life who mean the world to me, and to all the fathers who read this, know that you are special, and we're happy to have a day to recognize it.

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

It seems our more perfect union is less and less perfect these days; what with judges, congressmen, senators and presidents molesting or, equally terrifying, ignoring that document held most dear to freedom lovers nationwide, we find ourselves in a good old-fashioned constitutional crisis.

Lone challenges to liberty might not seem so stark, but the bites continually taken of our Bill of Rights leave it weak and tattered.

The latest black mark on America's already dismal human rights report card is the raid on the Yearning for Zion (YFZ) ranch in Eldorado, Texas.

The best part of this iron-fisted, theologically-driven legislative oppression is that Texas welfare officials decided an anonymous tip from what was likely a mentally ill Colorado woman was enough to warrant the armed raid on the community from where 416 children were taken earlier this April.

Mormons, polygamist and not, have long endured the long bloody arm of good Christian law, but never have I been so disgusted with my government. Sure, we can blame the municipal dumb-dumbs in Texas for this latest effort in a wider campaign of theological cleansing, but the intolerance and downright malice toward non-Christians in this country is institutional; From favoritism as to which holidays are celebrated in public settings, that's yours and mine, all the way up to laws passed which not only favor one religion over another, but often penalize those who choose to live the non-Christian lifestyle.

Make no mistake, if the people at the YFZ ranch would have been Apostolic, Baptist, Lutheran or Catholic, the raid wouldn't have happened; the place would have been called a "community" not a "compound"; the people would have been referred to as churchgoers, not cult members; and the hyper religious pundits constantly screaming hollow pleas that Christianity is under attack by some organized, albeit nonexistent, threat, would be raising utter chaos.

As I suspected from the beginning, there was either no, or very little, foul play occurring at YFZ. If there was, then it should have been dealt with on a case by case basis. Good gosh, the government wouldn't dream of taking all kids from Charlevoix 'cause there was a pervert on May Street. The perp', depending on his status in the community, would be arrested and only the victims would potentially be taken.

This ritual ruination comes not from the America I love, it comes from the America which ethnically cleansed its natives, that enslaved blacks, that treats gays as second-class citizens.

I will go to my grave believing America is great because of its potential to do good things. Unfortunately, our country is run by many of the people from whom the founders were looking to protect us; I find it ironic and funny in that makes-you-sick-to-your-stomach kind of way that xenophobia is so prevalent in a land built by immigrants.

Now it looks like most, if not all, of the YFZ kids will go home, but not without state-imposed arbitrary and capricious stipulations on the parents.

It is easy for the majority to ignore horrors like those imposed upon YFZ members. After all, if we're in the mainstream, we must be right. Imagine what it would be like if it was suddenly dangerous to be in the majority; Ah, that'll never happen, right?

EAST PARK APATHY

Editor:

I think more than one person can agree that East Park's construction is taking too long. Not only that, but it is wasting the cities money and water. All of these things could go for better causes.

First off, the people that are doing the construction said that they would be done by Venetian of last year. When you drive by, there are no workers. I understand why they aren't working in the winter, but things have warmed up now. If you have a set date, it is one thing to be a month off, but almost eight months, that is ridiculous.

If you have seen the plans for the park you may see the water fountains in the middle and a stream off in the corner. I like the stream but I think the water fountains are wasting the city's water.

For all I care, put the water into more drinking fountains around the city.

When this park is done, thousands of dollars will have been spent. That is money that could go to donations for the homeless or maybe fix up the local movie theater.

I just think that the park is not as important as other things.

Now don't get me wrong, I think that East Park will be a great addition to Charlevoix, but maybe not so much of the cities time, money and water.

Thank-you for taking the time to read my letter.

PALTRY PARKING

Editor:

Do you find yourself frustrated trying to find a spot to park in town? I have a solution for this! This town needs a larger parking lot. Not only would there be more space for cars and make us less frustrated, but also eliminate some parking on Bridge Street making it safer to cross the street because you can see cars coming.

If we had a larger parking lot in town, there would be more space for citizens to park, which would bring more customers to our cafes and shops in town. It would make the citizens of Charlevoix much happier.

If we eliminated some of the traffic on Bridge Street emergency vehicles could get to the emergency quicker. That would make our beautiful city safer.

So as you can see, I think it would be great to have a larger parking lot in town. Thanks for listening.

SOLVE CMS MESS

Editor:

CMS made arrangements to have the City of Petoskey take the leachate from Bay Harbor and run it through the waste treatment plant.

CMS failed to live up to their agreements. When Petoskey refused to take the hazardous waste, CMS allowed the leachate to run into the Bay for eight months.

Leachate not collected by CMS lines runs into the Bay regardless. Another waste treatment plant was approached and declined to take the leachate, because of toxicity and the severe conditions placed on equipment.

Traverse City waste treatment plant takes some of the leachate. What they will not take is trucked to Johannesburg. Now CMS has plans to truck the leachate to an injection well near Alba to save money.

The leachate presents a problem much larger than CMS or TOM or the DEQ or the EPA solutions.

Friends of the Jordan is working to keep the injection well out of Alba to protect the Jordan River Watershed.

This is what the Friends of the Jordan is responsible for.

They do not have an answer to what should be done with leachate. As long as piles of CKD remain, surface and groundwater will travel through them in perpetuity, and into the Great Lakes. The CKD is a legacy of cement manufacturing that profited a few and provided jobs for others.

All of us in this area are responsible for taking care of the place were we live. CMS is looking out for the interests of itself and Bay Harbor.

These interests do not represent the interests of northern Michigan. All people of this area must come together to find an solution that does not just move the problem somewhere else.

INDOOR SKATE IS GREAT

Editor:

Do you or your kids like to skateboard, bike, or blade? If they do, an indoor skate-park would be outstanding.

You would be able to skate, bike or blade all year-round if we had an indoor skate-park. Biking, skating and blading is good exercise, and can help you lose weight or get fit.

You could go skate or bike in the winter, spring, summer, and or fall. At the skate-park, you could hang out with your friends too. After school if you have homework, you can go to the skate-park. When you're done with your homework, you can go in and skate. You can also have competitions between you and your friends for some fun.

Last but not least you could work tricks and get better. You could practice grinding rails, doing tricks on jumps, or just ride around. It would be a lot of fun.

I don't know about you, but a skate-park would be nice. You could have endless fun all year-round.

INDOOR SKATE IS GREAT

Editor:

Do you or your kids like to skateboard, bike, or blade? If they do, an indoor skate-park would be outstanding.

You would be able to skate, bike or blade all year-round if we had an indoor skate-park. Biking, skating and blading is good exercise, and can help you lose weight or get fit.

You could go skate or bike in the winter, spring, summer, and or fall. At the skate-park, you could hang out with your friends too. After school if you have homework, you can go to the skate-park. When you're done with your homework, you can go in and skate. You can also have competitions between you and your friends for some fun.

Last but not least you could work tricks and get better. You could practice grinding rails, doing tricks on jumps, or just ride around. It would be a lot of fun.

I don't know about you, but a skate-park would be nice You could have endless fun all year-round.

Day of Caring planning, event

Planning is gearing up for the 5th Annual Community Wide Day of Caring, scheduled for Sept 16.

This event promotes teamwork and gives people a taste of volunteering, while making a difference in the community.

The Day of Caring matches teams of volunteers from businesses, schools, faith communities and community groups with non-profit agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties who are in need of hands-on help.

We are kicking off the event with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. on June 11 at the Charlevoix Library.

Representatives from businesses or other organizations interested in forming a volunteer team are invited to attend.

There is no charge to attend. Call 237-6202 to reserve your place.

In addition to providing Day of Caring information to potential volunteer teams, we will be thanking the 600 volunteers who participated last year.

• Volunteers Needed: teams from businesses, schools, agencies, faith communities, etcetera, as well as individuals are needed. Let us know your interests and availability.

• Projects Needed: non-profit agencies, schools and governmental programs can all benefit by requesting volunteer help on the Day of Caring.

To get a project request or volunteer sign-up form, contact the Day of Caring Committee at United Way 487-1006 or charemuw@sbcglobal.net

DAY OF CARING FOR SENIORS

Harbor Industries, Inc. of Charlevoix will dedicate a day to help local seniors with some spring clean-up.

Harbor has recently partnered with the Charlevoix Commission on Aging and wants to address the many needs of local seniors.

If you are interested in volunteering on June 19 for this one-day clean-up, contact Jennifer Archambault of Harbor Industries at 547-3280.

If you are a senior wanting to take advantage of this community endeavor, contact Gale Binstadt at (231) 237-0103.

Judy Willey is seen here at last year's Chair-ity Auction. The Take-A-Seat Chair-ity Auction is to be held from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. on June 25 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. This is the fourth Chair-ity Auction sponsored by First Congregational Church of Charlevoix to benefit area organizations.

Chair-ity Auction

Edith Pair, known for her creatively painted furniture, and Judy Willey, self taught free spirit, are two of approximately 40 talented area artists who have donated their time to paint reclaimed and restored furniture for the Take-A-Seat Chair-ity Auction to be held from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. on June 25 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

This is the fourth Chair-ity Auction sponsored by First Congregational Church of Charlevoix to benefit area organizations. This year's proceeds will benefit

Hiland Cottage, the new hospice house; Bay Area Substance Education Service, BASES; Northern Community Mediation; Challenge Mountain and First Congregational Church outreach. During the Silent Auction from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., and the Live Auction from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m., there will be an opportunity for guests to buy one of a kind pieces of hand painted furniture as well as an array of items ranging from car washes to diamonds.

Complimentary wine and beverages, hors d'oeuvres and dessert catered by Grey Gables Restaurant will be included in the ticket price of $25. Tickets are available at Chambers of Commerce in Charlevoix, Petoskey, and Boyne City and will be available at the door.

OBITUARIES

George Baldwin: July 29, 1921 - June 2, 2008

George Edward Baldwin of Charlevoix died on June 2 at home after fighting a battle with cancer since November of 2003. He was surrounded by his wife of 59 years, Lue, and children, Beth (Timothy) Shields of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Catherine (Keith) Mohan of Milwaukee, Wis.; George (Penni) Baldwin, Jr. of Maggie Valley, and Laura (Scott) Stebe of Charlevoix.

He was born July 29, 1921 in Cleveland, Ohio to George and Marie (Thompson) Baldwin, but was raised in Birmingham attending both Baldwin High School and Cranbrook. He attended Michigan College of Mining and Technology in Houghton, now known as Michigan Technological University, where he played hockey, until enlisting in the United States Army Air Force in 1942.

While in the service, he continued his education in engineering at The College of Mines and Metallurgy in El Paso, Texas. He was later transferred to the regular Army 12th Armored Division and sent to the American theater in Europe where he earned two bronze stars. He was also a veteran of the Korean War as part of the 297th Engineer Aviation. He remained active in the 12th Armored Division Association the rest of his life and was a charter member of the World War II museum.

On Feb. 19, 1949, he married Lula Delores Wilkins at St. Hugo of the Hills in Bloomfield Hills. They lived in Tawas, where they jointly ran an oil business. In 1959, they moved to Escanaba to build an oil refinery, but ultimately George became a pioneer in the cable television industry and developed the cable systems in Escanaba and Gladstone.

In 1966, the family moved to Charlevoix and built Lake Charlevoix Cable TV which served Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Gaylord. Later they bought Grayling Cable Services from which they retired in 1985.

He enjoyed recreational boating and was the Commodore of the Tawas Bay Yacht Club. Other interests were lake fishing, hunting on the family property near Lewiston, RVing across the country, and traveling in general, including a trip to Herrlisheim, France, a town he helped liberate in 1945.

His curiosity and intelligence kept him young and interesting and his sense of humor endeared him to all those that knew him. He will be remembered for his devotion to his family, loyalty to his friends and lending a helping hand in all the communities in which he lived.

He belonged to the Knights of Columbus for 58 years and was a member of Charlevoix's Council 7172. Additionally, he was a long-time member of the American Legion and the Elks. He was one of the original promoters of Silver Valley in Tawas and led development of their ski area. His civic affiliations included membership in numerous organizations at Nettles Island, Fla., where he and Lue wintered for over 20 years.

George will be greatly missed by his wife and four children, as well as his grandchildren: Ben and Kathleen (Shields) Roussel; Kelly Shields and Timothy Shields, all of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Abby Mohan of Huntington Beach, Calif. and Colin Mohan of Ann Arbor; Tiffany, Tristan and Isabelle Baldwin, all of Maggie Valley, N.C.; Brennan, Cassidy and Erin Stebe of Charlevoix and his one great-grand child, Marybeth Roussel. He is survived by his brother Don Baldwin of Birmingham, and step-brother Mike Flannery of Ireland.

The family plans a memorial mass at St. Mary Catholic Church followed by a celebration of his life, on Aug. 2 in Charlevoix.

Closer to the date, further details will be announced.

Memorials can be made to the Mayo Clinic, Department of Development SI-9; 200 First St. SW, Rochester, MN 55905: note George Baldwin for urology research, which also received his body for medical research; St. Mary's Catholic School Angel Scholarship Fund, 1003 Bridge St., Charlevoix, 49720, or Angel Flight for Veterans, Mercy Medical Airlift; 4620 Haygood Rd. Suite 1; Virginia Beach, VA 23455, which provided George transportation to Rochester, Minn. for cancer treatment on many occasions.

Dorothy V. Clarke, 88, of Charlevoix, died Friday, June 6, 2008 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was held at 11 a.m., Tuesday, June 10, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Rex Kibler, of the First Christian Church of Petoskey officiated and burial took place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Dorothy was born Jan. 19, 1920, in Petoskey to George E. and Bessie A. (Ehrhart) Paulus.

She was a 1939 graduate of Petoskey High School, and on Sept. 21, 1940, she married John R. Clarke in Petoskey.

They made their home in Charlevoix in 1947.

Dorothy worked at Allied Signal in Boyne City for 17 years. She was a member of the First Christian Church of Petoskey, the Marion Center Grange and the Barnard Grange.

Her husband, John, preceded her in death on Jan. 8, 1995. Dorothy is survived by her three children: Joseph R. Clarke of Umatilla, Fla., Judith (Michael) Belfy of Conway, and Barbara (Richard) Gallant of Charlevoix; nine grandchildren; eighteen great-grandchildren; two great great-grandchildren; sister, Marge Taylor of Fruitland Park, Fla.

Dorothy's brother, George Paulus, of Rogers City also preceded her in death.

Dorothy's gentle spirit and kindness will be missed by her family.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Christian Church, 308 Monroe, Petoskey, MI 49770, or to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, P.O. Box 233, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Helen Marie LaBlance: Died June 7, 2008

Helen Marie LaBlance peacefully passed away at the Sault Area Hospital with her family by her side on Saturday, June 7, 2008 at the age of 92.

City hires new summer officer

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Libby Laviolette, 23, is not only new to the community, but she's also new to the job.

Fresh out of school, she's been hired as a full-time City of Charlevoix police officer for the summer.

"After the summer, I hope to land a full-time position somewhere, but for right now this is a nice job to have," she said.

With a bright smile and charming demeanor, it's hard to imagine that she'll be on the market for a job for too long.

"I have all this reading to do," Laviolette said of her second day on the job.

Not surprisingly, she looks forward to jumping head first into the job and getting to know the area the best she can.

Laviolette graduated from Mountain State University in Beckley, W. Va.

She decided to go there because it was the only hands-on forensics school she could find.

"I've always been interested in the forensics aspect of the job. That's what made me want to go into the field," she said.

One of her long-term goals, aside from finding a full-time position, is to eventually get her Master's degree in forensics.

Though she's moved around a lot, with her boyfriend living in the Petoskey area, the summer opening in Charlevoix was the perfect job opportunity.

Some of Laviolette's heroes include her parents, especially her father.

"My Dad started out at GM with practically nothing," she said. "He went from not having much as far as a job goes to working his way up and becoming second in command to the president in his department."

Laviolette said she looks forward to getting to know new people and getting more acquainted with the area.

"I'm just glad to be here and I hope I can do everything in my power to help everybody," she added.

Grab a pole and get fishing, it's trout tournament time

By: A.J. Hoffman
Staff Writer

Go fish.

The 24th Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament begins at 10 a.m. on June 13 and lasts until June 15.

Registration for the event will be from noon to 8 p.m. on June 11 and 12 at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix.

"I've got cousins that have been coming in from New York and Chicago for years to this tournament, and that's the only time during the whole year that they get to fish together," said Dean Mikulski, an event organizer. "The spirit of the tournament is to just come out here and have fun. For most people, it doesn't matter if they win the top prize or anything, it's just an opportunity to get away."

He added, "When my sons were little, I used to bring them out and they'd participate too. Today, they're actually involved in the tournament."

- There will be a mandatory Captain's meeting at 8 p.m. on June 12.

The tournament will feature brown trout, steelhead, lake trout and salmon in the following divisions:

- Brown Trout 20 inches
- Lake Trout 24 inches.
- Steelhead 20 inches
- Salmon 24 inches

There will also be a Kids Fish Pond from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Each child participating in the event will get a free fishing pole.

- Prizes are as follow:

First place - trophy and $1,000.

Second place - $500.

Third place - $300.

Fourth place - $200.

Fifth place - $100.

Sixth through 10th places - $50.

11th through 20th places - $30.

- Following are bonus prizes:

Largest fish in each division mounted by Jeff Lutz of Lasting Memories Taxidermy.

Special trophy will be awarded for the largest fish of the tournament caught on a Michigan Stinger Spoon.

First-place lake trout will be awarded the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy.

$100 Port Prize for the largest fish weighed in each day, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Mikulski said Charlevoix's tournament, which is open to anyone, is more laid back than some.

"People like it because it's kind of informal. We don't check coolers or anything (to make sure people aren't cheating) we really trust that everyone is being honest. Over the years, we've had very few problems with that sort of thing," he said. "This tournament was founded on the idea of bringing people into Charlevoix and bringing people together."

He added, "Some people take it real serious and that's okay, but for other guys, it's just like going to deer camp. It's just about having fun. We wanted to keep it fun and affordable."

Update: How far along is East Park?

East Park Construction Update as of last week.

• Harbor Master Building

Exterior stone veneer work continues. Glass block for the rest rooms is currently being installed. More of the glass for the lakeside windows has arrived, and is being installed.

General contractor Hallmark Construction Inc. is preparing the concrete ceiling for painting.

Temperature Controls is on site and working on the heating/cooling systems.

Mechanical and electrical work continues.

Approximately 95 percent of all duct work is complete.

Field measurements have been taken for the large door leading into the public bathrooms.

Efforts continue to determine the appropriate furniture layout with which to best locate the floor plugs in the lounge room.

The layout for the communication lines for telephone, Internet and new reservation system have been finalized.

• Performance Pavilion

Hallmark has formed all of the steps leading to the public rest rooms along with the floor for the maintenance room.

Standfest Masonry has been laying up the last of the glazed block in the rest rooms.

The stainless steel sinks are being fabricated. Haggard's Plumbing & Heating is working on the in-floor heat for the maintenance room.

Hallmark plans to pour the concrete sometime this week once temperatures get warmer. All but one of the hollow metal doors have been hung.

• General Site Work

Most of the site work is on hold for now, due to weather. The preliminary test results for the well that will feed the trout stream are very good. Both the flow and temperature appear to be adequate.

This weekly East Park Construction Update is provided courtesy of City of Charlevoix Street Superintendent Pat Elliott

The East Park Renovation Project by the Numbers

• 2,500 - Cubic yards of concrete have been poured.

• 100 - Tons of re-rod/re-steel has been installed.

• 49,000 - Number of new brick pavers that will be laid. These pavers represent three full-length semi-truck loads and do not include reused pavers.

• 60,000 - Pounds of pavers that will be placed on the roof tops of the Performance Pavilion and the Harbor Master Building.

• 2,100 - Lineal feet of handrail that will be installed.

• 300 - Tons of Onaway stone to be installed throughout the entire project.

• 5,000 - Lineal feet of in-floor heat tubing in the Harbor Master Building and the Performance Pavilion.

Christian Counseling: healing for all

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The ABC's of the Rev. Stephen Guthrie's new business are agnostic, Buddhist and Catholic because, as he likes to say, "Grief, depression, anxiety: many different people have the same problems."

The former hospital chaplain and ordained minister has opened up shop as a pastoral minister who blends traditional therapy with healing prayer and life lessons straight from the bible.

"I borrow greatly from traditional counseling, but I add a layer," Guthrie said. "I also see what the scriptures say and I use healing prayer."

He added, "Prayer for healing, because we live in a world of televangelists, gets a bad name, but prayer for healing's ... greatest benefit is healing the human spirit. So much pain comes from abuse. There are so many burdens we carry with us."

Guthrie added that, "They would learn, for example, that Jesus taught to trust rather than worry and that the mercy and love of God comforts the human heart regardless of the circumstances."

Located at 203 East Upright St. in the Family of Faith Ministries building, Christian Counseling Services is a bargain at the donation rate of $50 per hour, when compared to the going rate of area therapists.

"There is also a sliding scale," Guthrie said. "No one will ever be turned away for inability to pay."

In addition to a master's degree in pastoral ministry with a concentration in counseling, and has completed the work to become board certified as a pastoral counselor through the American Association of Christian Counselors.

Guthrie has also completed training in conflict mediation through the Lombard Mennonite Peace Center.

"This is a fulfillment of what I think God's purpose is for me," he said. "There are two indicators, when it is all done, of a life well lived: Who did you serve?; and the other indicator is creating something beautiful like a painting or a child."

Guthrie is excited about the prospect of serving the community in his unique capacity.

"Once word got out that this was coming together the phone started ringing. One day I saw two clients while the paint was still drying on the walls of the new office. The interest is an indicator of the human need throughout the community," he stated in a June 2 press release. "Life is hard enough, but these are difficult times for many people who are anxious and very much in need of a reason for hope. What makes us different is we offer practical solutions and guidance laced with the comfort and hope of the Scriptures."

Guthrie further stated, "(My) approach to counseling is to get directly to the heart of the matter, to identify what needs to change in the behavior or situation and move along with the process of teaching the client the skills and tools they need to bring about meaningful change. For some clients, it may be appropriate to involve other professionals and has established referral and consulting relationships with other medical and mental health experts."

The ministry operates on donations from clients and supporters. For more information, visit the ministry's Web site at www.christian-counsel.net or call Guthrie at (231) 675-4682 or e-mail him at guthrie.stephen@gmail.com.

Stephen Guthrie, an ordained minister and experienced Christian counselor has recently opened an office at Family of Faith Ministries. Guthrie hopes to serve the Charlevoix community by helping those with mental illnesses and grief cope and live a more fulfilling life.

Former Charlevoix son excels in Arena Football

When William "The Refrigerator" Perry ran the ball for a touchdown during Super Bowl XX it made headlines. But much like the Rubik's Cube and the VCR, offensive lineman running the ball is so 1980's. Fast forward to 2008 and Arena Football League offensive linemen are not just running the ball into the end zone but catching touchdown passes rather frequently. Charlevoix native and current Chicago Rush offensive lineman Robert Boss is accomplishing quite a feat in the Arena Football League. Boss (above, left) currently leads all offensive linemen in both receptions with 13 and receiving yards with 175. The average offensive lineman in the Arena Football League stands at six-feet, three-inches and tips the scales at 314 pounds, but their massive frames have done little to stop them. A whopping 36 touchdown passes have been caught this season by AFL big men who currently reside on a roster. Chicago Rush offensive lineman Robert Boss, six-foot, five inches, 296 pounds, from northern Michigan, leads all linemen in both receptions and receiving yards.

HISTORIC WIN FOR GIRLS

With a score of 2-0, Charlevoix bested Muskegon Pointe Christian for their first ever regional title on June 6.

In weather fitting D-Day, cloudy, humid and windy, Charlevoix earned the Regional title on Friday night. The wind was blowing 35 mph plus at 7 p.m. as the Rayders lost the toss and had to begin the game into the blow.

The seasoned Rayders didn't panic, went hard to the ball and stopped the Mustangs cold in one of the most heroic soccer efforts I've ever witnessed through 40 minutes of the first half. Facing NMC's fast and talented forwards, eyes squinting from the dust in the air, the Rayders held on and denied the flank crossing game for MNC. All Region goalkeeper, Tammy Potter came up huge on several occasions, staying focused on the ball and watching it into her hands.

The Rayders came out a little too relaxed in the 2nd half perhaps feeling that with the wind the going would be easy. The seventh ranked Mustangs (17-1-1 coming in), however, were anxious to return the defensive favor. Charlevoix had a few opportunities and Potter again had to make a stop to keep the match scoreless.

When lightning appeared in the far sky at 27 minutes remaining, the match was halted as required. About 45 minutes later, at 9:03 pm, played resumed and the Rayder took over with a mission. A ball was sent from the midfield down the right flank. Center forward, senior co captain and all state candidate Ariel Ramsey shot down the side. Teammate, junior Olivia Catt overlapped to the middle. Ramsey sent the assist across and Catt buried it home for the lead. Shortly after, Catt returned the favor to the team and sent a rolling ball across the middle. Midfielder KC McCary came streaking through, beat the last defender and scored for the insurmountable 2-0 lead.

This was a total team effort. The Mustangs were double and triple teaming midfielders McCary, Becca Madison and forward Ramsey. Madison and McCary fought through the defense to control the center. Center back Meridith Rich and outside backs Marnie Greene and senior Emily Foster stopped the Mustangs process on many occasions, sending the ball back in to the Rayders offensive end. Foster played the match of her life. Also coming up strong were outside senior MF's Kaleigh Blanchard and Danni Bergmann.

This was a victory for all the young women who have played soccer at Charlevoix since 1994. We got as far as the regional final in 2005. It took us 3 years to return and this year's team played with the heart and intensity to get the job done.

Charlevoix, now 19-2 on the season enters the "final four" with a semifinal match at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, June 18 at the Holton Complex.

Leading up to yet another hard-fought blowout, the lady Rayders whipped Muskegon West Michigan Christian 3-0 on June 3.

Charlevoix 3, Muskegon West Michigan Christian 0

The Rayders took on perennial powerhouse WMC and came out victorious on Tuesday. Charlevoix came out strong and scored early on a corner kick opportunity. Center back Rich, who comes forward to take the Rayders' corners sent a nice ball to the front of the net. All stater Madison touched the ball over to fellow sophomore Way who sent it home for the early lead.

Play went back and forth through the first half.

The Rayders took the 2-0 margin midway through the second on another corner opportunity.

This time, Rich earned the assist when senior Bergmann sent the ball home.

The Rayders sealed the deal late when senior Ramsey sent home a nice shot off the assist from Catt.

The Rayders played great defense throughout, stopping the WMC all state attackers.

The Charlevoix defensive effort was led by Rich, Emily Foster, Marnie Greene and Hannah Doan in back and by midfielders Madison, McCary and Blanchard. WMC was unable to control the midfield and send the ball to their fast attackers.

Charlevoix's talented keeper, Potter turned back two breakaway opportunities stopping the WMC all state forwards in earning the shutout.

Cvx Little League

The Junior Division, played a doubleheader in Grayling on May 31: Grayling 7, Charlevoix 4. Charlevoix hitters included: singles by Nolen Ager, two singles by Coby Herrimann and the first triple hit this season by Jordan Farmer. Charlevoix celebrated their first season win, 18-15 in their second game. Singles were made by Jesse Drost, and a double by Alex Waha, a single and two doubles by Herrimann, three singles by Farmer and a double by River Gauthier. A superb catch by Charlevoix's right-fielder, Waha, in the final inning with two outs and the tying run at bat wrapped the game up for Charlevoix. Pitching the game was Farmer, two innings, with Ager finishing the game. Last week, Charlevoix's Little League, Junior Division, played May 28 in Boyne City. The final score for the game was Boyne City 4, Charlevoix 3.

Author Ted Kluck to speak

What does it feel like for a 31-year-old husband, father and writer to take his last shot at living the professional football dream?

The book "Paper Tiger" is equal parts Bull Durham and Slapshot, taking viewers inside the gritty world of bus rides and turf burns that is the bottom rung of minor league sports.

Ted Kluck, a contributor to ESPN.com and three-time author, took his lumps and lived to tell about it in his book, "Paper Tiger: One Athlete's Journey to the Underbelly of Pro Football."

The Charlevoix Public Library is pleased to invite the community to meet Kluck, a 2008 Michigan Notable Author, at 7 p.m. on June 17 at the library.

Combining the behind-the-scenes journalism of Paper Tiger with the sports humor of Bull Durham, Kluck details his season as a long snapper with the Battle Creek Crunch of the Great Lakes Indoor Football League.

In this near-bottom rung of professional football, teams struggle to make ends meet and players refuse to abandon their love of the game in their fight for one last shot at gridiron glory.

Kluck's work has appeared in ESPN the Magazine, Sports Spectrum Magazine, ESPN.com Page2, and several small literary journals.

A bi-monthly column for Sports Spectrum Magazine entitled Pro and Con won the Evangelical Press Association award for best standing column in 2003.

Kluck has played professional indoor football, coached high school football and taught writing courses at the college level.

He lives in Grand Ledge with his wife Kristin and son Tristan.

puted to be the "Cadillac" of snow groomers by city documents, and would serve the ski area well for many years.

At this time, according to city officials, there has been little research done on lower cost equipement.

"I just think we should look at other options," said Mayor Norman Carlson.

According to Sherman Chamberlain of the third ward, there are other options. He pointed out information from Rob Straebel that showed a lower end model for around $180,000.

"We have not had any serious injuries with the old groomer, but if we don't get a new one, we might as well close up shop because we can expect people to get hurt and we won't be able to keep conditions safe for everyone," Bo Boss said.

Boss also explained that last season, he and his workers spent more time trying to get the old one to work that they hardly got anything else done.

"I'm proud of Mt. McSauba, but I don't think we can afford to take that much money out of the general budget," said Greg Stevens of the Second Ward.

Ultimately, the Council has two options: Fix the current groomer for the next ski season and research other types of less costly groomers to purchase and possible funding options such as grants and fundraising; or purchase the new Piston Bully groomer with a loan, possibly from the City's Water Fund at three percent per year for 20 years.

The problem with trying to fix the broken axle on the old groomer, according to Bo Boss, is that they aren't sure how much longer the groomer will continue to hold up after that.

He said it may last six months, a year, or if they're lucky, maybe two years.

An expense like this has not been included in the city's Motor Pool Capital

Renaissance fair at Castle Farms this weekend

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Hooray Hooray The Renaissance Festival is finally coming to Charlevoix.

From 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on June 14 and 15, the festival will be held at Castle Farms on 5052 north M66, just south of Charlevoix.

Gates will be open and the event will take place rain or shine.

Tickets are $13.95 for adults, $7.95 for children ages 5 to 12 and children 4 and under are free.

The theme is a "High Seas Adventure" and, throughout the day, patrons can catch shows such as jugglers, comedians, sword-swallowers, fire-eaters, tight-rope walkers and other various medieval entertainment.

For those not up for a show at a particular time, there are dozens of food vendors and souvenir merchants throughout the grounds.

Among the highlights of the festival is the always popular jousting tournament. According to the Web site, jousting was the Renaissance period's "most extreme sport."

In this event, knights, clad in full armor, charge at one another on top of horses and try to knock their opponent to the ground with a lance.

Promoters of the event expect the Renaissance Festival to be fun for the whole family.

For vendor or additional information, please visit www.castlefarms.com.

Meid Marlon greeted guests as they left 2008 and entered ya olden days at the Renaissance fair at Castle Farms on June 7 and 8. Be sure to catch the troupe as they perform a "High Seas Adventure" on June 14 and 15 at the Castle.

Admiralty arrest next necessary step in hunt for ship

GRIFFON

(MDEQ) and Michigan Department of History, Arts, and Libraries (DHAL) the precise location of Defendant."

According to Liben's attorney Richard Robol this was a necessary victory in the fight to identify the wreck his client believes to be Le Griffon.

"This is an historic victory, but it is not simply a victory for Great Lakes Exploration," he stated in an e-mailed response to questions. "It is a victory for the future exploration of the Great Lakes."

He added, "Great Lakes Exploration has been fighting to have the federal court issue the warrant of arrest since ... the suit was first filed over four years ago."

Though weary of the seemingly never-ending court battles with the State of Michigan, Libert was pleased with the most recent ruling in the hunt for what he believes is a ship built by Rene-Robert Sieur de La Salle, a man instrumental in securing the territory which would later become part of the Louisiana Purchase, which was lost sometime in autumn of 1679 most likely somewhere in Lake Michigan.

"That's exactly why we appealed," he said. "We have asked the federal courts to protect our rights and the interests of all concerned."

While Liben's main focus is retaining some rights to identify, record and document the potential gem of Lake Michigan, he is also concerned as a Charlevoix homeowner and taxpayer.

"It is not a question of money, per se, but the Attorney General resources defending the state's interest," stated Rusty Hills, Director of Communications with the Michigan State Attorney General's Office in an e-mailed response to questions. "Approximately 1,200 (to) 1,500 hours of attorney time have been devoted to the maner."

In e-mailed responses to questions, Libert wants to know why the State of Michigan "invested in such expensive legal proceedings when the identity of the site has never been scientifically established. To many involved in this professional field, their legal arguments seemed to indicate that the State of Michigan was claiming title and management authority over any shipwrecks on state bottomlands, submerged lands, whether a vessel proved to be abandoned or not."

He added, "The state's interests would have been much better served without such ill-conceived legal actions. The State of Michigan has spared no expense fighting our small, entrepreneurial company."

Liben feels the state's position that "the State has title to abandoned property in its bottomlands. If it's the Griffon, we believe it is abandoned. France has not made any claim at this point, and is presumably embedded in the bottomlands."

Hills also stated that Michigan has a right to any information GLEG has in addition to the right to investigate the wreck and defend claims to wrecks on its bottomlands.

"This political position, of course, is inconsistent with federal law and the current opinions of case law. Instead, it made more sense for the State of Michigan to cooperate with GLEG on establishing the identity of the site before wasting its limited public funds on the more complicated and future questions of title," Libert stated. "As in the past, the State is trying, after the fact, to justify its continuing waste of taxpayer's money. Great Lakes Exploration has always stated that it would provide the location of the shipwreck site once the vessel was arrested and placed under federal jurisdiction."

Hills' response follows public outcry after an opinion column in the May 14 edition of Charlevoix Courier chastised the State of Michigan for failing to address questions posed to it.

"DHAL and MDEQ are authorized under state law to enter into agreements with private parties for the exploration of wrecks and other items on state bottomlands. The agencies are and have been willing to enter into an agreement to jointly explore the wreck," Hills stated. "But, GLEG has demanded the recognition of its exclusive "right" to the data, video, information, etcetera from exploring. Again, if this is the Griffon, it is abandoned and embedded, and those rights belong to the State.

While Libert continues to cite the Abandoned Shipwreck Act of 1987, which states abandonment and embeddedness, and potentially eligibility to be listed in the National Register of Historical Places, must be proved to "exert actual title and management authority over a shipwreck," state officials are confident they will prevail.

"If it is the Griffon, it is a part of the state's and France's history," Hills stated. "The State, subject to any interest or claim by France, should be controlling any investigation, retain title to the wreck and any artifacts, and decide what happens with any information gathered."

Liben said foreign states have not yet interceded because it is too early for such a move.

"Why would they (France) make any claims to title until the identity of the site is scientifically established? I am sure that their legal counsels view such claims as premature and not consistent with the procedures of admiralty law," Libert stated. "Under federal admiralty law, the State of Michigan might have the right to review certain information that 'would allow the state to investigate the wreck and defend claims to wrecks on its bottomlands,' but not any information. In addition, the State of Michigan would not secure ownership rights to such information provided by GLEG."

He added, "All we have ever wanted are the fruits of our labors. We invested our time, our money and our research. More importantly, we risked our lives at sea month after month, year after year: 28 to be exact. We found the shipwreck; The State of Michigan did nothing."

Robol added that Great Lakes Exploration hopes the State of Michigan will now abide by the law.

"Great Lakes Exploration has extended the olive branch to the State of Michigan and has invited the state to participate in a cooperative investigation of the shipwreck, along with expert scientists and archaeologists from France, Canada and the company's own team of experts," he stated. "We are hopeful that the state will take a new direction and will work cooperatively with all involved."

Great Lakes Exploration must now work with the U.S. Marshal's Service to ensure the arrest complies with the law.

McSauba officials: new groomer a safety issue

Plan because last year the fund was almost $20,000 over budget because of increased gasoline prices according to Rick Brandi. Therefore, funds for either a down payment or service to the old machine would have to come from the general fund.

According to Bo Boss, a 24-month warranty comes with the purchase of a new groomer, but a new machine is expected to last for the next 20. Boss also estimated that they put aproximately 300 to 350 hours on a groomer per year. With the estimated life of a new goomer at 7,500 hours, that works out to aproximately 20 to 25 years of use if a brand new one is bought.

Ike Boss said he is willing to do fundraising, and he's willing to do it as soon as possible to get the word out.

"This town is so pro-recreation that we passed a bond issue on the school and the fountain at a time when they couldn't even do something like that at the state level," he said.

"I learned to ski there, my children learned to ski there. I think where there are children involved, we need to do something about it. We need to give them something to do in the winter," said Third Ward council member Jill Picha. "I just want the ski hill to be secure, I don't want it to be down."

NOW THROUGH AUG. 17

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed aboard the Alwihta, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodbeck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodbeck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

Charlevoix Schools rescind activity fee

Janik

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix School Board quickly waived an extracurricular activity fee at their June 9 board meeting.

The $40 fee garnered a lot of unpopular attention from all angles when it was initially introduced. The fee was rescinded during the meeting when it was announced that two donations, totaling $8,000, had been given to offset the cost of the fee for everyone.

"The fee was meant to cover the costs of travel and some food expenses, not just for athletes, but for any student participating in an extracurricular activity," said Chet Janik, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools.

Glen Catt, President of Catt Developments, said he has two children that go to school in Charlevoix and they both play sports.

"This is a small town, so the news about this got around pretty quickly," said. "My family lives in Charlevoix, but my companies really have no other business here other than the two bids we got for work on the school's bus garage and the administration building."

He added "So, we decided this would give us a good opportunity to give something back."

Police work to reduce underage drinking

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will make underage drinking a special enforcement focus during the summer months as part of efforts to reduce teen alcohol use. Federal funding for overtime enforcement is being provided by the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning.

Deputies will be looking for underage drinkers at house parties and field parties. Deputies will also be utilizing non-traditional enforcement methods for tips on parties by searching Myspace.com, Facebook.com and other social network Web sites.

Effectively limiting the access and consumption of alcohol to teens not only directly reduces underage drinking, but also communicates a clear social norm in the community that underage drinking is inappropriate and unacceptable.

Enforcement is an important aspect of a comprehensive effort to reduce underage drinking. Parents are encouraged to talk with their children regarding alcohol use, and closely monitor parties and get-togethers. Teens often report it is "easy" to get alcohol, often taking it from home or approaching adults to purchase for them.

A reminder: Michigan law makes it illegal for drivers under 21 to drive with virtually any alcohol in their system. A motorist under 21 with a blood alcohol content above .02 violates the "zero tolerance" law. Teens can also face citations for minor in possession.

Board may give local businesses primacy

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

In an attempt to help the local economy and better serve their taxpayers, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners have introduced a "think local" purchasing policy.

While contracts will not be guaranteed to local companies, Charlevoix County businesses will have first consideration when weighed against similar bids from entities from outside the county for various purchases including construction work, office supplies and maintenance.

"I think the unspoken word here is that something like this already exists to a degree," said District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner Chris Christensen. "This would just solidify that effort and actually ... induce the local businesses to want to participate more as opposed to just letting the larger corporations (bid)."

District Five Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt, who originally proposed the idea of what he calls a "think local" purchasing policy hopes to see the measure pass as soon as the next board meeting, June 25.

"If you live in this county, we tax you on your business, we tax you on your house and then we're going to go out of the county to hire another business?" he said. "That just isn't right. I've always been for the county businesses getting first choice. If the bids are the same or almost identical, then you have to give it to a local company."

On a cautionary note, Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon warned the commissioners to beware of implementing a policy with too narrow a focus and not enough guidance for potential bidders.

"It behooves everyone that would be doing this bidding ... that they have specs drawn up so that the parties are at least bidding on the same thing," she said. "Not with extras, not without, but absolutely, positively the same thing."

Christensen agreed that bidders must have precise guidelines on which to offer their services.

"Realistically we should have been doing that all along anyway," he said. "Not only to the people that are bidding on the project, but in fairness to the county so we can say 'You know what, we clearly stated what our expectations were and that's outside that.'"

Christensen added, "The ability to perform said bid has to be there ... and we're going to limit who is able to bid on whatever project due to the scope of the project."

When asked if they thought it was an excessive governmental move to consider passing this measure, Christensen opined that it was merely a matter of local supplier preference.

"Given the current climate and the economic situation ... I think it would be nice as a business owner myself in Charlevoix County to know that ... the people making these decisions are looking out for local people first," he said. "We're doing what we can to help you when times are tough. I think that you would see a few of the locals who may have wrote that off before saying, 'Oh I have a shot now.'"

He added, "We're regulating the county, we're regulating the government. If you're going to spend the taxpayer's money and that taxpayer's money is coming from Charlevoix county, look back at Charlevoix County first.

The document upon which the commissioners based their discussion came from Cheboygan County's policy on preference to local suppliers and contractors which states, "The Board of Commissioners hereby reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to waive any formality or irregularity in the bid, and to accept the bid that serves the best interests of the County."

Following are measures which may be implemented in Charlevoix County's purchasing policy if approved:

The County reserves the right to determine what serves its best interest through examination of a variety of factors, including but not limited to:

- The ability, capacity and skill of the bidder to fulfill the requirements of the bid, including product knowledge and distance from the County.
- The ability and capacity of the bidder to fulfill the requirements of the bid in the time specified.
- The character, integrity, reputation and experience of the bidder.
- The quality of service the bidder has previously provided to the County.
- The previous and existing compliance by the bidder to all laws and ordinances which relate to the requirements of the bid.
- The resources (financial and other) available to the bidder, that will be required in the fulfillment of the bid.
- The ability of the bidder to guarantee, maintain and service the County after the requirements of the bid are fulfilled, including ready representation of staff.
- The number and scope of conditions attached to the bid
- To ensure local companies do not use such a policy as a means of profiteering.

Suppliers and vendors whose primary place of business resides within the County of Cheboygan may be selected over a business residing primarily outside the County, when the above factors are substantially equal and the price bid by the local vendor/supplier is no more than five percent over the lowest bidder from outside the County. It shall be deemed unethical and in violation of this policy to disclose prices or quotes from any vendor prior to the decision to purchase in an attempt to give preference or favored treatment to any vendor or supplier.

Employees or county officials involved in any purchase shall reveal to the Administrator any potential conflict, such as investment or employment with a vendor or firm, or a family relationship with a vendor or firm.

"I'm pretty excited about it because it's not reactive," Christensen said during an interview following the meeting. "I think we're doing the things we're supposed to be doing, finally. We've been bogged down sorting out previous issues, and now we're at a point where we can move forward."

He added, "I think that's good policy to represent the people. It's only fair."

CCHPS meeting

At 7 p.m. on June 23, the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society (CCHPS) will hold their monthly membership meeting at the Peninsula Grange number 706 in South Arm Township. The Grange is located at the corner of Looze Road and the South Advance Road.

Walt Murphy, Worthy Master/President, of the Peninsula Grange will explain the history behind Granges in America.

Anyone interested in membership in CCHPS for the 2008-2009 membership year should contact Carol Goodenough, President, at 582-7042.

Anyone interested in preserving the history of Charlevoix County is invited to join the Society

Peril of blind devotion

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Now that the media frenzy around Scott McLellan's book "What Happened" has died down, maybe it is time to examine the idea of loyalty.

Mr. McLellan was mostly accused of disloyalty to the president for revealing what he thought about some of the decisions made by the current presidential administration.

A few of his attackers even suggested that such personal disloyalty should be a crime.

Other commentators indicated that if he objected to what was being decided, he should have protested or resigned.

No one seems to have accused him of dishonesty, only disloyalty.

Words are important to me, and when I use one I like to know as much as I can about what it has meant historically and what it has come to mean.

The word "loyalty" is derived from a word meaning legal, and originally meant to be faithful to the lawful government.

When the word was first used the government consisted of kings and princes, and loyalty to a government was loyalty to those individuals.

When America's founding fathers attempted to reinvent government in the 18th century, they stated that the government in a democracy consisted of the people.

The people replaced the king.

What had been the rights of kings and princes became the rights of the people, all the people.

The game animals in our country, which had been the property of the king in England and other countries, became the property of all the people.

Individual property ownership by everyone became a right.

Being faithful to the lawful government in our country means loyalty to the people, not to an individual.

We no longer have princes and kings as the symbols of government, or at least we should not.

A position of power, Theodore Roosevelt's "bully pulpit" for example, makes it possible to redefine words at will.

We properly label as propaganda all such attempts at obfuscation.

Words do have historical meaning, and we allow them to be redefined at our peril.

It seems to me that Mr. McLellan was loyal to his personal boss at the time when he was press secretary, since he did not contradict him in public.

Later his loyalty to the government of the people overcame his personal loyalty.

Blind personal loyalty seems less desirable than loyalty to a people's government.

Blind loyalty to an individual is often described in less than flattering terms. "Fawning," "obsequious," "boot licker" and even "sycophant" are less complimentary words for one exhibiting excessive blind loyalty to a person.

Scott McLellan is not alone in his understanding of loyalty.

In the late 1940s, loyalty was much on people's minds in our country.

We were so afraid of communists that our government tried to require a signed oath of loyalty from many.

Henry Steele Commager, a noted historian in the past century wrote this in Harper's Magazine in 1947: "Who are those who are really disloyal? Those who inflame race hatreds, who sow religious and class dissentions. Those who subvert the Constitution by violating the freedom of the ballot box. Those who press for special favors against the interest of the Commonwealth. Those who regard public office as a source of private gain. Those who would exalt the military over the civil. Those who for selfish and private purposes stir up national antagonisms and exposure to the world to the ruin of War."

I think Commager was right, and so is Scott McLellan.

Rec department pitches $215,000 groomer proposal

"Having the proper equipment to operate a ski hill is crucial, and I think we all know what happens when you try to cheap down projects. $215,000 now sounds like a lot, but paying $180,000 to get a cheaper model, and then having to replace that in a few years will cost more in the long run. Hopefully the city will make the right choice in the end."

EDITORIAL

While some communities continue to shun kids on skateboards as mischievous punks, the Charlevoix community has taken the initiative and employed the good sense to realize a teenager exercising on a board with wheels in broad daylight is better off than one getting high in his parents' basement or wasting away as a slave to a video game console.

In a time when childhood obesity seems to be a bigger threat to the safety of future generations than just about any past dangers, it's nice to know there is still a strong desire for many area youth to get out and get active.

The immense turnout at the recent Big Grin skate competition and the steady stream of youngsters enjoying Charlevoix's skate park on a daily basis is evidence enough that skateboarding as a hobby and sport is no longer an urban aberration of 1980s folklore, but a mainstream activity for any age or gender.

Nevertheless, some of us older types will always be suspicious and fearful of adolescents and their new slang, blue hair and music we choose to label as noise. But, we need not be. That group of skaters heading down the sidewalk isn't necessarily the brutal horde of Genghis Khan, but more likely some teenagers trying to perfect the latest trick they saw on X-Games last week.

We support Charlevoix for supporting such a healthy and downright cool activity like skating.

So the next time you see a baggy clothed kid with scabbed up knees and bruised elbows performing a stalefish or an ollie, fear not. For you are likely looking at tomorrow's doctor, CEO, lawyer or teacher.

Most of us who grew up listening to the Beatles, Elvis or Ozzy Osbourne made it out alive despite propaganda warning us of the inherent peril. And we've got to believe skateboarding cannot be nearly as harmful to one's health as Elvis' swiveling hips.

LETTERS to the editor

ILLS OF MILLS

Editor:

Have you ever wondered where the dogs come from at pet shops? Well I did, and what you are about to read is very shocking. Puppy mills are where they come from.

Puppy mills are dirty. There is urine and feces every where. The dogs are constantly going to the bathroom on each other. Plus the dogs don't get bathed.

The owners of these mills area very cruel.

Dogs are kept in cages and small dogs are kept in rabbit cages and the cages are stacked on each other. The dogs at some puppy mills don't get exercise.

Not to mention that puppy mills are very sad.

Some dogs have never been outside or even touched the ground.

A lot of dogs have never been out of their cages. When the owners don't want the dogs they take them out back and shoot them.

I just wanted you to know.

One friendly tip. Don't buy dogs from pet shops, buy them from a pound or humane society. Please take my advice and put puppy mills out of business. If you do, thank-you. If you don't, well, you can't say I didn't try.

CHARLEVOIX THE BOUNTIFUL

Dear Editor:

How fortunate are we to live in a community that can plant five miles of petunias and collect 85 pints of life-saving blood for the American Red Cross on the same afternoon?

Charlevoix truly is beautiful.

Literally hundreds of volunteers were involved in these endeavors on May 22. I say congratulations, Charlevoix. I personally want to thank the volunteers and donors for the American Red Cross blood drive.

Thank-you to the Community Reformed Church for hosting the blood drive. The Charlevoix Lions Club members once again provided the help needed to take care of the Red Cross supplies.

The City of Charlevoix put up the banners. My volunteers baked lots of delicious treats and made many reminder calls to donors and worked their shift at the blood drive.

I'm grateful to all businesses who allowed posters in their windows and flyers on their counters. I am proud of each and every donor who took the time to make a huge difference in another person's life. I thank all of you. With summer and the expected blood shortages approaching, please remember to mark your calendars to donate blood on either July 17 at the Reformed Church or July 24 at Bethany Lutheran Church.

THE DIRT ON TRAILS

Editor:

With the gas prices these days most dirt bikers can't afford to go dirt biking which leads us to the reason of this letter. I'm hoping that this letter persuades you to get ORV/dirt bike trails in Charlevoix County for the dirt bikers that live in the County and the surrounding Counties.

Most of the trails that we dirt bikers have to go to are one to three hours away from were we live.

Combine that with the rising gas prices, you get almost $60 dollars just for gas for the weekend.

If we had trails in Charlevoix County, we would spend less.

Another thing is that there are many places in Charlevoix County that could be spots where ORV/dirt bike trails could be put in. Some of the Snowmobile trails could be dirt bike/ORV trails.

Putting in trails would bring many more people to Charlevoix County and more people means more money. If you put in a campsite, the economy of the county would go through the roof.

Those are the reasons that we need trails in Charlevoix County. Who knows, maybe I'll see you on the trails.

NATIVE TOUNGE-LASHING

Editor:

Does it really matter if one is native to the city of Charlevoix when you report on his or her contribution to the city? Does it make you feel better?

Does it make non-natives more or less eager to contribute to their city of choice? And, does it make natives more or less envious of contributions that non-natives make to their good, chosen, native city?

I realize it's a moot point, but as a non-native of the area who hopes to be accepted for what I contribute, regardless of where I was born or raised, I feel it is an unnecessary adjective when describing someone who has lived and worked in Charlevoix for 41 years.

Why does it matter whether or not someone is a native, if they have lived here 41 years.

Annual Taste of Charlevoix: flavors for everyone

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

The 5th Annual Taste of Charlevoix will feature a wide variety of food, wine, breweries and live music throughout the day.

The event will occur from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 21 in the parking lots on either side of Mason Street.

"This is a great event for everyone to come and enjoy with their family," said Director of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Erin Bemis and Taste of Charlevoix committee member.

There will be a ticket system in place for purchasing food and beverages.

Each ticket will cost $1 and vendors will set their prices anywhere from $1 to $5.

Thirteen local food vendors, as well as two regional breweries and four wine vendors, will be participating.

A children's area will also be open.

With a $2 entrance fee, kids have unlimited access to the inflatable slide and the Rayder jump house.

Other activities for the kids include face painting and cookie decorating.

From noon to 2 p.m., "Kookie" the clown will be on hand making balloon animals.

"This is a great time of year in Charlevoix and there's going to be plenty of food and fun for everyone," said Bemis.

Entertainment will be provided by two area bands. The Charlevoix City Band will be playing their brand of jazz and big band from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Then from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., the North Country Strings Band will he playing a variety of Celtic, bluegrass and traditional.

For additional information or a brochure with a complete list of vendors, please visit the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at 109 Mason St. or call 547-2101.

Big Grin 'Big success'

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Once just a couple of kids enjoying a sport on the fringe, entrepreneur John Curtis is now on the cusp of molding the future of competition skating throughout northern Michigan.

Curtis' company Go Film Crew Productions hopes next week's local skating events are just as popular as their June 7 Big Grin in Charlevoix.

"The event went really well. We had about 35 competitors and a crowd of about 200," he said. "It was a really good time. Kids came out and were excited, not just about winning, but by the end of the day everyone was excited about being part of the skateboard community."

The Big Grin skateboard competition got its name, Curtis said, because he noticed how much fun everyone was having during skating events in Utah, where the skating scene is huge.

"We just decided to relocate in Charlevoix from Park City (Utah) and we already have arranged for three or four more competitions," Curtis said. "By the end of summer, we're going to try to make a push down state to bring kids up for a final with the winner from each event competing against each other for a one-year Revolution Manufacturing sponsorship."

The next event Curtis is helping organize is a celebration for National Go Skateboarding Day, June 21.

All interested skateboarders should meet at 9:30 a.m. at the Lodge in Charlevoix. The group will then skate downtown to Carpenter street, turn west and ride to the Charlevoix Skate Park.

The Ride 45 demonstration team will be on hand doing tricks and showing off their moves and there will be a free skate from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Following the free skate, those interested may go to Petoskey to Ride 45 for refreshments and a barbecue which will be followed by more skating sessions at the Petoskey Skate Park and a giveaway of skateboard accessories, clothes, sunglasses and more.

"Last time we had kids from Northport, from Pellston, from Suttons Bay," Curtis said. "We had kids from out of town showing up two hours early; this is good for the economy and it's good for the community."

At 11 a.m. on June 28, Curtis and company will put on another skating event on June 28 at the Gaylord Skate Park. A sneak preview of The Exposure Project, Curtis' snowboarding documentary, will be shown.

We're always well received," Curtis said. "But, we've never taken it to this degree."

He added, "I expected to be well taken, but I didn't think we'd get that many people getting down on it."

Curtis' main goal is to share his love of skateboarding with kids from in and around his hometown and educate people who seem to believe the negative stereotype associated with skateboarders.

"Kids do bad things cause they're bored," he said. "I know kids who skate eight hours a day, so we provide them with fun creative stuff to keep them away from the bad and keep them on the right path."

For more information on any of the skating events, or for more information on Go Film Crew's movie, call Curtis' assistant head of production Billy Axford at (989) 619-8899.

Skatepark Competition winners

The winners of the Big Grin Skate 2008 are skateboarders: Wes Wallace, Todd Moore, Justin Harter, John Bradley, Blake Bowgault and Jake McLean. The best skater 12 and younger was Parker Elowsky of Charlevoix. Inline skate winners were Matt Kucera, Marc Collier, Conner Klooster, Colin Campbell, Jordan Awrey.

Letha worked for many years as a cosmetics buyer at most of the major department and specialty stores in Detroit

During this time, she belonged to the "Christmas in January" club whose membership raised money for Leader Dogs for the Blind

Letha served as president of the club in 1965 and over several years spent countless hours organizing fund raisers for this cause.

Her love of antiques led her to partner in business with a friend from 1973 to 1976 buying and restoring antiques.

Letha is survived by her step-daughter, Kathryn Thomas, and her husband, Mel Schlitt ol Aurora, Illinois, granddaughter, Traci Slicker, and her husband, Sheldon, ol Traverse City and granddaughter, Lori Thomas, of Houston, Texas.

Letha is also survived by her niece, Gayle Homrich, and her busband, Fred of Grand Haven, her nephew, Richard Custer, and his wife Deborah, of Durand, and their children and grandchildren.

Several cousins also survive her

Her family continues to celebrate her life with a Visitation from 5 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, June 18, at Winchester Funeral Home, 209 State St., Charlevoix

Funeral services will also he held at the funeral home at 11 a.m. on Thursday, June 19.

Guests may join the family for a fellowship lunch following the funeral service at Letha's home.

Condolences may be made to the family, c/o Kathryn Thomas, 1460 Graystooe Drive, Aurora, Ill., 60502-1327.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 W Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or Leader Dogs for the Blind, 1039 S. Rochester Rd., Rochester, MI 48307.

Sincere thanks to Hospice of Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency and Heavenly Helpers of Charlevoix.

Candidates seek political seats in Peaine, Norwood, St. James Townships

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

• PEAINE

Proactively, not reactively.

That's how John Works Jr., 48, identifies his style of governance over the last 12 years as the Supervisor in Peaine Township.

"I've always liked to try to prevent problems before they happen, rather than wait for something to happen and then scrambling for a solution to fix it." Works said.

According to Works, before him, there were no regular township hours. So, he decided to start holding regular office hours every Friday, not only to keep home life separated from work, but to allow himself to do a better job.

"Holding regular office hours was a promise I made and kept with the people of Peaine over the years," be said.

During his tenure, one of his major accomplishments was receiving over $200,000 in grants to help open a fire department.

"The board has been really helpful, I've really got to give them a lot of credit for working together and working so hard." Works said.

Over the years, Works has done a lot of little things that have gone unnoticed. Building bridges with the people in the community is just one of those little things. For example, he says he's built a better working relationship with the road commission.

"I love Peaine Township and the day I feel like I can't help the people here, I'll step down." Works said.

The other candidate vying for Works position is a man named John A. Gallagher, 72. Upon being questioned for this article, Gallagher refused to comment, stating that his platform isn't complete yet and he'd rather not discuss the issues or what he can bring to the table.

With hopes of getting re-elected, Works had this to say, "I just want to continue representing the people in Peaine with as little tax burden as possible."

Also running for office in Peaine Township:

Treasurer candidates - Larry Kubic, Nancy Saxton and Jean Kingsley;

Trustee candidates - Paul Welke, Robert Hoogendoorn and Peter Lodico;

Colleen Martin is running unopposed for Clerk.

• NORWOOD

Frank E. Hamilton, 69, feels that some of the elected officials in Norwood have been dishonest.

And, that's why he's chosen to run for Township Supervisor.

"I just feel that they've been more honest in the past and more information was disseminated," Hamilton said. "It was more honest back when Wayne Boss was in charge."

Hamilton's experience comes from serving on the Oakland City Council for 13 years.

He's also been a city/village manager for two years in Oakland County.

"I've been on this property for nearly 27 years and I just wanted to give a little back to the community," Hamilton said. "I don't have an agenda, but I do have the knowledge, time and the ability to do the job."

Denny Way, 52, has been on the Board of Trustees for four years and on the planning commission for three years.

"There's many issues we'd like to address and continue working on, such as the cell phone tower issues, wind energy and some pretty big road issues." Way said. "I just want to make sure it's an absolute open setting and make all of the information available to the public."

Also in Norwood, Dana J. Pajtas is running uncontested for township clerk, as does David L. Leusink for treasurer. Running for trustee are Thomas Mielke, David Ridenour and Douglas Warner.

• ST. JAMES

Pamela O'Brien and Jean Palmer will be running against each other for the elected position of St. James Township Clerk.

Palmer, if re-elected, hopes to keep working with the board and continue doing the job she's been doing for 16 years.

"I'd like to see the taxpayer dollar used to the best advantage of the township," she said.

In her opinion, Palmer feels that experience is her greatest advantage.

At the same time, O'Brien also feels that experience is on her side.

"I can do the job and I'm very interested in the position," O'Brien said.

O'Brien, whose family has lived in St. James Township for as long as she can remember, has had her fair share of experience from all over the United States.

According to her newsletter, some of the past posts O'Brien has held include being the Chairperson for Children with Cancer Association in Phoenix, Ariz.; Being on the Board of Directors for the Leukemia Society in the San Francisco, Calif. area; A board member and participant in several Chambers of Commerce and a member of the American Business Women's Association.

In St. James Township, Donald Vyse is running uncontested for the Supervisor position.

Also running uncontested is James Wojan for Treasurer.

Three candidates will be vying for the trustee position: Timothy J. McDonough, Richard L. Speck and Bob Tidmore.

Michigan tomatoes safe to eat

Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) Director Don Koivisto today announced that Michigan-grown tomatoes are not associated with the current Salmonella Saintpaul outbreak and have been declared safe to eat by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Michigan has been added to the FDA's "safe to consume" list available online.

Michigan is second in the nation in terms of agricultural diversity and is home to approximately 500 open-field tomato farms and 15 hydroponic/greenhouse tomato operations with locally focused distribution.

"Although Michigan's open field tomato harvest doesn't begin until July, it's important for consumers to know that our growers are producing safe, wholesome products for Michigan families to enjoy," said Koivisto. "Now is the perfect time to ask for locally grown and processed Michigan products at your area retail markets.

For more information on the "safe to consume" list, please visit FDA's Web site at http://www.fda.gov/oc/opacom/hottopics/tomatoes.html#retailers.

East Park construction update

• Harbor Master Building (HMB)

All of the interior finishes should have been complete by June 16. On June 18, Haggard's Plumbing & Heating is scheduled to complete the start up of all equipment: water system, heating/cooling etc. and perform all final inspections. The exterior stone work for the HMB has been completed and washed. Stone masons continue to lay veneered stone on the exterior retaining walls to the north and south of the HMB. The brick pavers on the roof will be complete by June 20, along with installation of the handrails. Painting of the handrails is ongoing as weather permits. All of the planting mix has been installed in the landscape beds on the roof. The sanitary lift station for the HMB is complete.

• Performance Pavilion (PP)

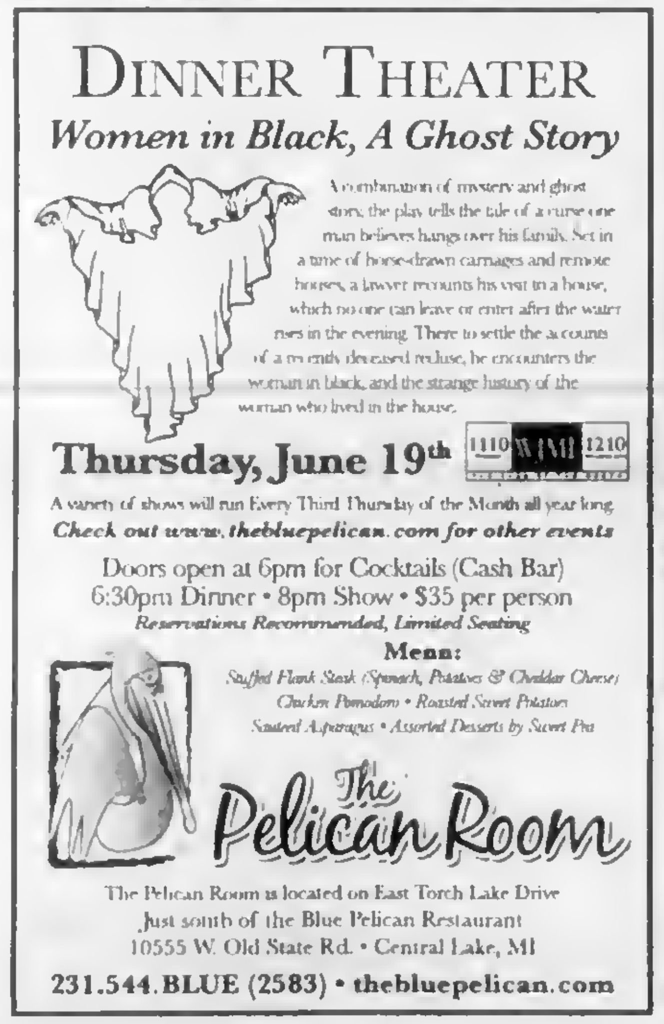
The fascia for the roof of the stage area was completed last week. The polished concrete floor for the stage area was expected to be poured and finished on June 16. Polishing will start as soon as the concrete cures, likely the first of next week. The electrical for the lighting of the stage area is complete along with the installation of most of the lights. Work on interior finishes continues. All rest room fixtures have been installed. Roof top pavers for the PP will also be completed this week. Nearly all handrails are in place and will be painted as weather permits. Planting soil has been installed in each planting bed. Manthei Development Corporation (MDC) has begun to install soil in between the stage seating along with applying final grading on the south side of the PP. All remaining stone work on the PP is scheduled to be completed this week. The sanitary lift station for the PP is also complete and operational.

• Interactive Water Fountain (IWF)

The IWF has been pressure tested and actually tested with water. The jets, filter system, chemical system, etc. are operational. A required final inspection by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and Michigan Department of Community Health is scheduled for, June 18.

• General Site Work

MDC continues to excavate numerous footings throughout the site. Hallmark Construction Incorporated (HCI) and Standfest Masonry continue to pour footings and lay stonework throughout the entire project area. Standfest Masonry has also begun to wash all of the stone walls that have been completed. The two sets of steps to the east of the PP have been poured along with the walkways that connect the steps to the promenade. HCI has nearly completed all of the brick pavers along Clinton and Bridge Streets. Most of the brick pavers have been installed around the interactive water fountain (IWF) and the entry to the HMB. The rough grading between Plaza B and the PP is currently underway. The irrigation contractor has installed his pump and suction line and is continuing with the installation of the main lines in the areas that have been graded out.



DINNER THEATER
Women in Black, A Ghost Story

A combination of mystery and ghost story, the play tells the tale of a curse one man believes hangs over his family. Set in a time of horse-drawn carriages and remote houses, a lawyer recounts his visit to a house, which no one can leave or enter after the water rises in the evening. There to settle the accounts of a recently deceased recluse, he encounters the woman in black, and the strange history of the woman who lived in the house.

Zoning admin' resigns citing 'lack of support'

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Citing concerns of what he called a "lack of support" Jonathan Scheel, Zoning Administrator for Norwood Township, recently resigned from his position

According to Norwood Township Planning Commission member Denny Way, Scheel wanted to expand the duties of his position in addition to a pay raise.

"He wanted to be a planner as well as being the zoning administrator, and we decided to table the issue until the next meeting," Way said. "We just wanted to make sure it was in the best interest of the township to put two positions under one hat."

"Norwood Township is in a transition period and because the power structure is changing, I feel that there was not enough support for both the Zoning Administrator position and the Planning Commission," Scheel said.

Way explained that the board wasn't against giving Scheel a pay raise, but they wanted some time to think about whether it was a good idea to give one person that much jurisdiction

"He wanted a year long contract and we had him set up for a month to month basis at the time," Way said. "He didn't want that anymore, so he turned in his resignation."

According to Norwood Township Supervisor Tim Boyko, the position for Zoning Administrator is now open and the board is looking over applications to fill the spot

Scheel remains as zoning administrator for several townships including Bay Township.

BC/CVX Road bill funding introduced

State budget work is getting under way and Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer and Sen. Jason Allen are wasting no time making sure the Boyne City to Charlevoix Road gets the attention it deserves.

After an Elsenheimer amendment, placing the road project on the budget, was defeated by the House Democrat majority, Sen. Allen came to the rescue and inserted language requiring the Department of Transportation (MDOT) to assume jurisdiction over maintenance and repairs for the Boyne City to Charlevoix Road.

"I was able to convince my colleagues in the senate that this road was a priority for northern Michigan," Allen stated in a June 12 press release. "I am pleased the Senate honored the desires and interests of Charlevoix County residents."

Earlier this year, Elsenheimer held a public hearing and took public comments about the condition of this road.

"I am pleased the Senate has adopted the necessary language in this budget bill that honors the local sentiments which I heard at the public hearing," stated Elsenheimer. "It's time for the House to follow suit."

Although Elsenheimer voted today to support the Senate passed version of the bill, the measure was once again defeated by the House and referred to a conference committee for further consideration over specific points of difference between the House and Senate versions, including the Boyne City to Charlevoix Road in section 395 of HB 5808.

The conference committee will be chaired by a house democrat since the budget bill originated in the House chamber.

Considering the House defeated the original Elsenheimer amendment, the likelihood of the Senate language remaining in the final conference report is uncertain.

A few years ago, Elsenheimer was successful in attaining language in the transportation budget for the Gaylord overpass project.

"Even though the project was vetoed by the governor on two occasions, it was ultimately approved," Elsenheimer stated. "Persistence pays off. If at first you don't succeed, try and try again. While I am uncertain as to whether the language for the Boyne City to Charlevoix Road will remain in the final conference report, the actions taken today are the first of many monumental steps that will heighten the administration's attention to the wants and desires of northern Michigan."

The conference committee is expected to begin its deliberations in the next few weeks. Elsenheimer and Allen are encouraging local residents to voice support to the governor and conference committee members that will be named soon.

Application given the 'OK'

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

A non-motorized recreational trail connecting Boyne City and Charlevoix moved one step closer to becoming a reality Tuesday when the city commission agreed to sponsor a grant application for the project.

The grant, if approved by state transportation officials, would bring in $611,300 toward a project with an estimated total cost of $3.4 million. Boyne City's portion of the cost would be $11,072 and would be payable only if the grant is approved and the project moves forward. City manager Michael Cain said the application won't even be considered by state officials until after Oct. 1, 2009, and the city's portion of the cost would not need to be budgeted until the 2009-2010 budget.

County planner Larry Sullivan explained that the city had to serve as the sponsor for the grant because the city is eligible to apply for state transportation funds and the county is not.

Current plans call for the first phase of the trail to run along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road from Horton Bay to Boyne City. The in-town portion of the trail would run from the city limits to the intersection of West Court and Robinson streets. The first phase of the trail is expected to cost $1.1 million with $33,216 to come from Eveline Township, $9,012 from Bay Township, $53,300 to come from private fund-raising and $400,000 to come from a Michigan Department of Natural Resources grant which the county applied for in April.

Future phases of the project to link Horton Bay to Charlevoix are expected to cost about $2.3 million including $96,700 from private fund-raising, $24,204 from Bay Township, $66,424 from Hayes Township and $11,072 from Charlevoix Township, another $400,000 from the department of natural resources and $1.7 million from Michigan Department of Transportation grants.

The project is contingent upon both state grants being approved.

Sullivan said most of the trail would be constructed outside of roadside ditches, but where the road right-of-way is narrower it would be moved to a paved shoulder. He said there should be no need to acquire additional rights-of-way or easements to build the trail, but said a few property owners have offered to grant permission for the trail to cross a portion of their property to allow more separation between the road and the trail.

Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon said the grant money could not be used to rebuild the crumbling Boyne City-Charlevoix Road which the trail would parallel.

In recent months road officials and citizens have raised concerns over the deteriorating condition of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. Road commission officials have said it will likely be several years before state and federal money is available to fix the road — a project with an estimated price tag of more than $5 million. The road repairs could happen sooner if additional funding such as a voter-approved county-wide road millage, became available.

Summer WINDS concert

"Summer WINDS" to feature former Charlevoix resident and Clarinetist, Dick Tindall. Tindall lived in the Charlevoix area from 1989 to 1999, he played with the Charlevoix Community Band and originally began his musical career in his hometown of Grand Rapids with the Grand Rapids Symphony. At the end of World War II, he went on the road with various jazz bands. He played locally with the Eddie Koul and Sam Fletcher Bands.

Tindall will be one of the featured performers at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 22 for the concert playing "A Tribute to Benny Goodman" with the West Michigan Concert WINDS at Bridge Park.

The West Michigan Concert WINDS is a volunteer adult community band, dedicated to performing quality instrumental music in the community. It was founded in 1979 and will be celebrating its 30th Anniversary Season next fall. For the past 13 years it has been under the baton of Gail A. Brechting (Hallead), originally from Petoskey.

Conductor Brechting has helped this group become one of the nation's premier volunteer concert bands.

Beaver Island electric car show

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

On June 27 and 28, Beaver Island's first Electric Car Show will be held.

Thirteen electric vehicles (EV) from ZENN, GEM, Zap and Vantage will be arriving on Friday morning and will be displayed in front of the Shamrock Bar & Restaurant and Harbour Market.

"It was actually Vic Staley and I that kept talking about doing an electric car show," said Dan Wardlow, show organizer, "Finally, we decided over the winter that we were going to do this because gas prices just kept going up and it wasn't looking like they were going to come down."

Wardlow added that Beaver Island is the perfect place to own an EV.

He explained that, since the island has lightly traveled roads, local service available, short distances between shops and residential areas and six free public charging stations, it makes Beaver Island an ideal place to own an EV.

Current models of the smaller EVs have a top speed of 25 mph and can travel anywhere from 30 to 40 miles on a charge. Compare the electric car's two cents per mile to the $4.19 per gallon for gas.

On Beaver Island, free public charging stations can be found at Paradise Bay Coffee Shop, Stoney Acre Grill, McDonough's Market, Island Airways, Inland Auto EV and the Central Michigan University Biological Station.

"There's six people on the island that already have an EV, and they're more than welcome to come out and show their cars as well," Wardlow said.

According to the press release, all of the EVs will be available for test drives.

New and used vehicles will be featured and the dealers will have special show pricing along with dealer financing and leasing options.

Test drive an electric car

"See, it's on right now," said Frank Veraldi, of Fox Motors in Charlevoix. "It's on right now and you can't even hear it."

Veraldi is talking about the car he's driving.

According to Veraldi, it's probably the most economical vehicle out on the market.

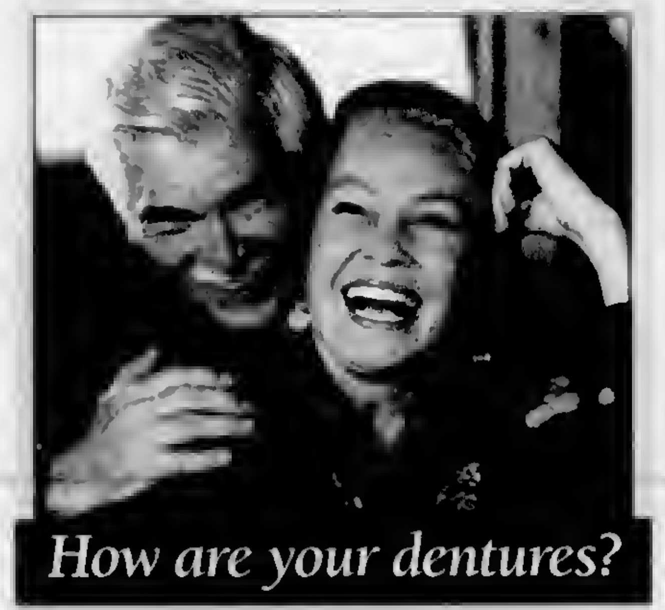
First it doesn't take gas. This means you will never have to take it in for an oil change or worry about the ever-inflating prices at the pump.

One of the best features about the vehicle, Veraldi said, is that all you have to do is plug it into a standard electrical outlet from your home.

"It's about 15 minutes per mile. I usually tell people to just plug it in overnight to get it fully charged," said Veraldi. "You can over-charge it, but that's very rare. I've only seen that happen once out of the 300 or so vehicles that I've sold. It has a smart charging system that will stop itself from charging once it has enough energy."

You can pick up one of these electric cars for around $12,000 at the low-end and around $14,000 at the higher end of the pricing spectrum. On most models there are either no doors or thick plastic zip-up doors. If you are planning on purchasing one of the higher-end models though, those come with regular doors. The cars are street legal on public roads posted 35 mph or less, but the vehicles are not designed for long distance driving or winter roads. The car has two speeds: high and low. High allows you to drive the car as fast as it can go, which is 25 mph.

"Unlike a golf cart, this vehicle is street legal," said Veraldi.



How are your dentures?
Are they loose? Are they cracked? Are your gums sore? Have you stopped wearing them? If so, consider dental implants. Implants are the best way to replace missing teeth, support a bridge, secure a full denture or replace a partial one. Call Dr. Klym to discuss the implant alternative and if it might be right for you.

Application given the 'OK'

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

A non-motorized recreational trail connecting Boyne City and Charlevoix moved one step closer to becoming a reality Tuesday when the city commission agreed to sponsor a grant application for the project.

The grant, if approved by state transportation officials, would bring in $611,300 toward a project with an estimated total cost of $3.4 million. Boyne City's portion of the cost would be $11,072 and would be payable only if the grant is approved and the project moves forward. City manager Michael Cain said the application won't even be considered by state officials until after Oct. 1, 2009, and the city's portion of the cost would not need to be budgeted until the 2009-2010 budget.

County planner Larry Sullivan explained that the city had to serve as the sponsor for the grant because the city is eligible to apply for state transportation funds and the county is not.

Current plans call for the first phase of the trail to run along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road from Horton Bay to Boyne City. The in-town portion of the trail would run from the city limits to the intersection of West Court and Robinson streets. The first phase of the trail is expected to cost $1.1 million with $33,216 to come from Eveline Township, $9,012 from Bay Township, $53,300 to come from private fund-raising and $400,000 to come from a Michigan Department of Natural Resources grant which the county applied for in April.

Future phases of the project to link Horton Bay to Charlevoix are expected to cost about $2.3 million including $96,700 from private fund-raising, $24,204 from Bay Township, $66,424 from Hayes Township and $11,072 from Charlevoix Township, another $400,000 from the department of natural resources and $1.7 million from Michigan Department of Transportation grants.

The project is contingent upon both state grants being approved.

Sullivan said most of the trail would be constructed outside of roadside ditches, but where the road right-of-way is narrower it would be moved to a paved shoulder. He said there should be no need to acquire additional rights-of-way or easements to build the trail, but said a few property owners have offered to grant permission for the trail to cross a portion of their property to allow more separation between the road and the trail.

Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon said the grant money could not be used to rebuild the crumbling Boyne City-Charlevoix Road which the trail would parallel.

In recent months road officials and citizens have raised concerns over the deteriorating condition of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. Road commission officials have said it will likely be several years before state and federal money is available to fix the road — a project with an estimated price tag of more than $5 million. The road repairs could happen sooner if additional funding such as a voter-approved county-wide road millage, became available.

Summer WINDS concert

"Summer WINDS" to feature former Charlevoix resident and Clarinetist, Dick Tindall. Tindall lived in the Charlevoix area from 1989 to 1999, he played with the Charlevoix Community Band and originally began his musical career in his hometown of Grand Rapids with the Grand Rapids Symphony. At the end of World War II, he went on the road with various jazz bands. He played locally with the Eddie Koul and Sam Fletcher Bands.

Tindall will be one of the featured performers at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 22 for the concert playing "A Tribute to Benny Goodman" with the West Michigan Concert WINDS at Bridge Park.

The West Michigan Concert WINDS is a volunteer adult community band, dedicated to performing quality instrumental music in the community. It was founded in 1979 and will be celebrating its 30th Anniversary Season next fall. For the past 13 years it has been under the baton of Gail A. Brechting (Hallead), originally from Petoskey.

Conductor Brechting has helped this group become one of the nation's premier volunteer concert bands.

Memorial motorcycle ride route

A memorial ride for fallen biker Randy Saddison, killed on July 13, 2007, will occur Saturday, June 28.

Tickets, a $20 minimum donation per person, can be purchased at the Maxwell's shop or KRG Excavations in Harbor Springs. Children 15 and younger will be admitted for free.

The Motorcycle Memorial Tour for Randy Saddison begins at 9 a.m. at the Little Traverse Township Hall on Pleasantview Road in Harbor Springs, and ends at approximately 4 p.m. at the Saddison residence at 4524 LaCourt Road in Harbor Springs.

A celebration and fundraiser event will then occur from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.

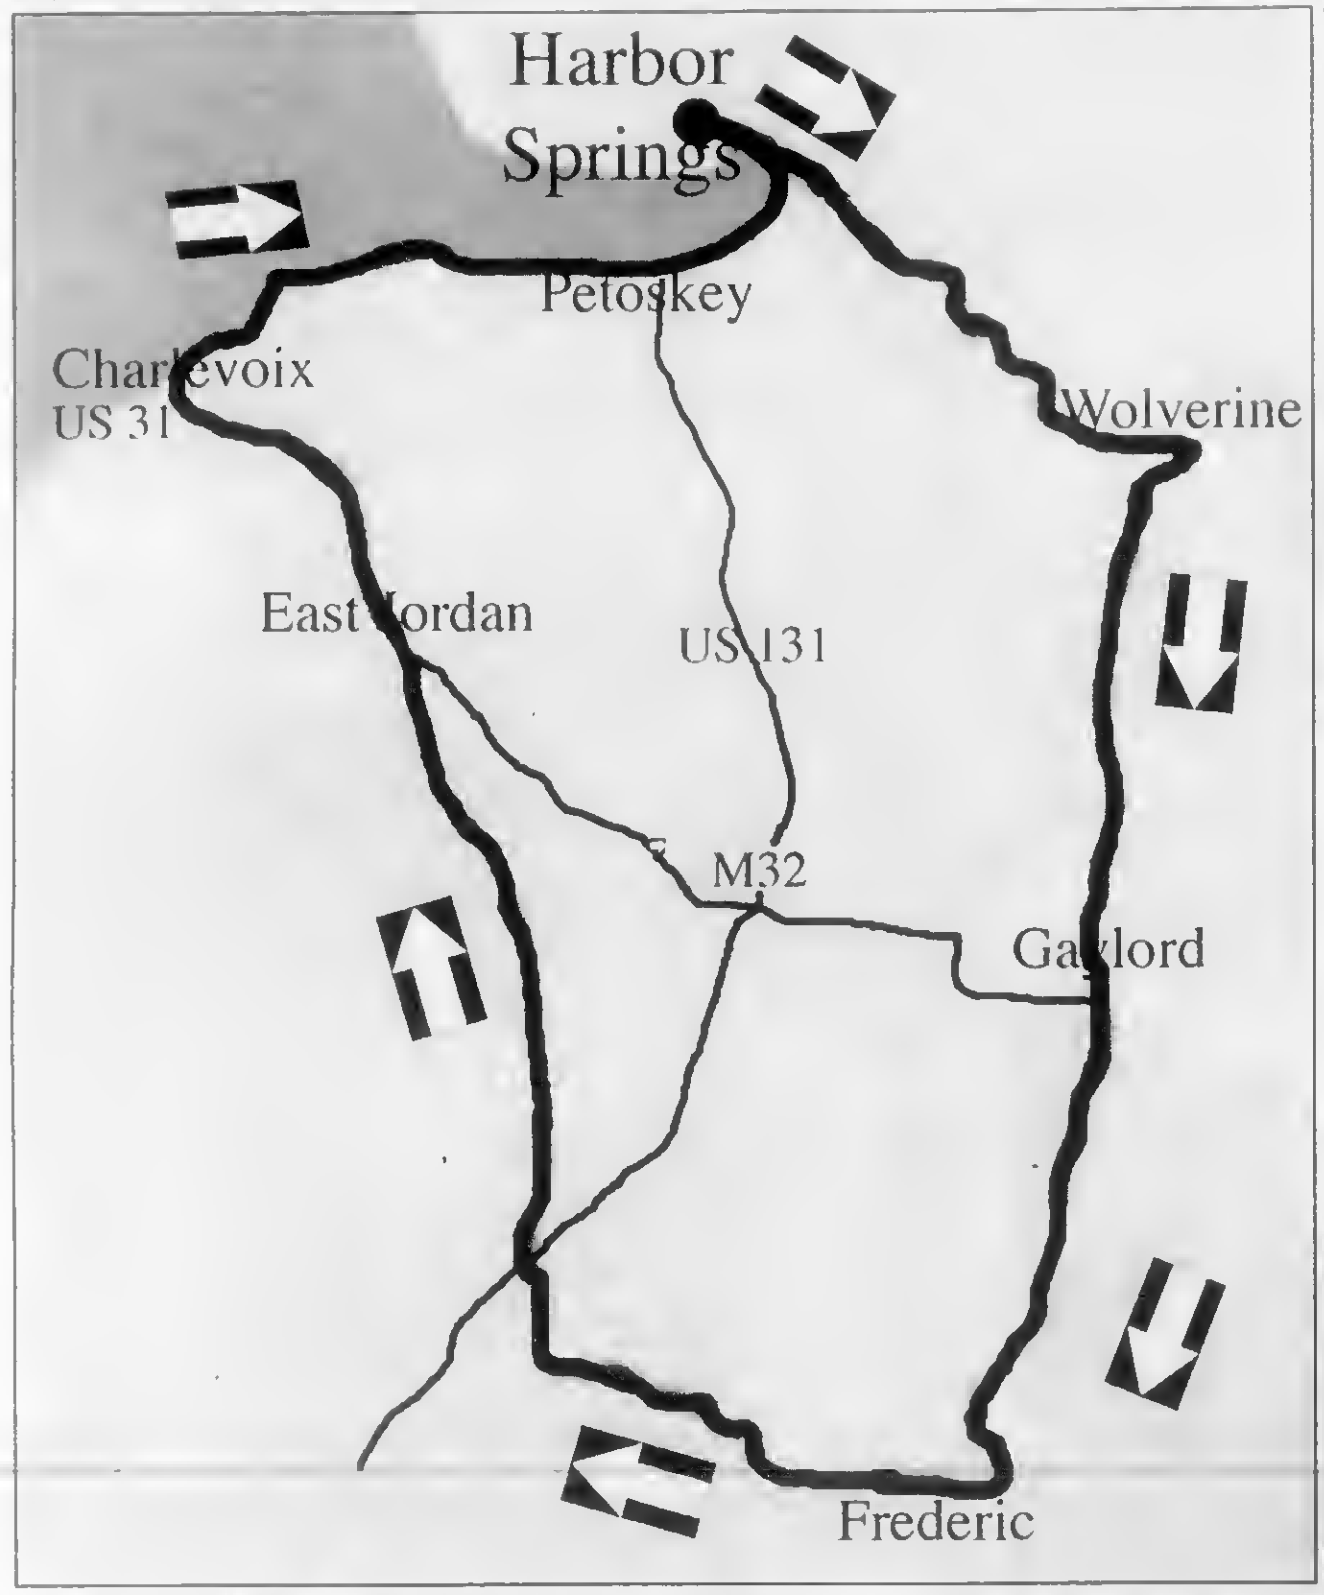
During the celebration and fundraiser portion of the event, following the tour which is open to all riders of motorcycles or cars, there will be plenty of food and activities for the whole family.

All proceeds benefit the RSM Scholarship Fund and help offset cost of food and refreshments.

The money raised will go towards two $3,000 scholarships for students at the trade school.

Tickets are available at KRG Excavations, Inc. in Harbor Springs or at Maxwell Cycle Shop in Charlevoix.

Donations can also be sent to: First Community Bank, c/o RSM Scholarship, 200 E. Main St., Harbor Springs, MI 49740.



The Motorcycle Memorial Tour for Randy Saddison begins at 9 a.m. on Saturday June 28 at the Little Traverse Township Hall on Pleasantview Road in Harbor Springs, and ends at approximately 4 p.m. at the Saddison residence at 4524 LaCourt Road in Harbor Springs. For more information, please visit www.randysaddison.com or call Katrina at (231) 838-6867. Detailed maps of the event will be available the morning of the event.

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival has come to wear several hats, beyond its traditional role as a community homecoming Festival, one of which is a barometer of community sentiment. From the community grief and mourning following the 1997 fireworks tragedy, to the community anxiety of relocating the 2007 Festival to Lake Michigan Beach, Venetian has responded to community sentiment and has stayed the course. The Festival will continue to do so in 2008, despite apprehension in various quarters with the status of East Park construction. A fantastic line-up of activities and entertainment, in one of the finest Venetian Festivals to date, will be staged in East Park! Check out our website at www.venetianfestival.com for information.

The Charlevoix tradition of Venetian is built upon generous and extensive financial support from our community, together with a volunteer force approaching 500 people. Venetian has truly emerged as a Festival which is not produced for the community, but rather by the community. Past, present and future Festivals have been and will continue to be possible only through the support of the Burgee Club, those individuals, organizations and businesses who have generously contributed funds, goods and services to the Festival. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2007 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

Opportunities abound for volunteer service in the Venetian Corps and financial support through the Venetian Burgee Club. Burgee Club members are entitled to commemorative burgee pennants emblazoned with the Venetian Logo, the current year and their sponsorship level, so that they may display their annual tradition of Venetian support. Such financial support is especially critical to maintain the recent Venetian tradition of nationally renowned, two night fireworks displays, which will return to Lake Charlevoix on Friday, July 25th, followed by the low aerial/high intensity display on Round Lake Harbor on Saturday, July 26th. While a Friday night fireworks display is tentatively planned on Lake Charlevoix for 2009, the Festival will not be able to stage the same unless current levels of Burgee Club support are again realized in 2008. Please call the Festival at 547-3872, or check out our website at www.venetianfestival.com for additional information.

Baseball season not over yet

...AND IN THIS CORNER

A.J Hoffman

My god, I completely forgot about baseball. Jim Leyland's three ring circus of fun.

Just when I thought the season for sports in Detroit was over, I find myself entertained by the constantly changing lineup of the Detroit Tigers.

I don't mind watching the Tigers, because the next thing to look forward to this year is foot ball. Just the thought of rooting the Lions through another losing season is depressing. But I'll still do it.

Sadly, my Pistons just didn't have enough heart to make it past the Boston Celtics.

The Red Wings won the Stanley Cup, again.

With all of the excitement of channel flipping over the past three weeks between basketball and hockey, it has all come to an end, but not baseball.

I became a little disheartened toward the beginning of the season when I was talking baseball with someone and I asked them, "do you think they'll pull through this?" and the person said, "well, you know, if it gets bad enough, Jim Leyland will just walk away. He'll just give up on the team."

I really like Jim Leyland, so the thought of him quitting on the team halfway through the season kind of broke my heart.

Well, the Tigers are still second to last in the AL Central and the skipper is still with us.

It makes me happy to know that he's not a quitter. At least not yet anyway.

One of Leyland's signatures is to play around with his lineup as much as he needs to in order to get something working.

He started doing this in Pittsburgh, he did it in Florida, and now he's doing it here in Detroit.

The latest lineup change was just this past week when he decided to alternate his catchers. The future first ballot Hall of Famer, Pudge Rodriguez, will now be alternating catching duties with a guy everyone thought would be gone at the end of last season, Brandon Inge.

This is huge. Despite what critics have to say, he does what he wants and I think that's what I like best about him. He doesn't care if you're a future Hall of Famer.

If Leyland thinks you're not producing, he'll let you know. He's always been like this too; go to youtube.com and you'll find an old video of the silver-haired manager in Pittsburgh chewing out one of his own players: Barry Bonds.

I skimmed a comment board of fans suggesting how they would re-arrange the lineup.

As fans, it's a lot of fun to shuffle through your baseball cards and imagine a dream rotation or a better lineup, but the truth is that Leyland knows what he's doing.

He's got a million little things to take into account, like how a certain guy is feeling, or how he played the day before, his attitude in the clubhouse, the potential in another player, etc.

I think Leyland would try to resurrect the ghost of Ty Cobb and put him in the lineup if he thought it would get his team back in the race.

In the meantime, if you're a Tigers fan, don't give up on the team just yet. Leyland hasn't.

There's still plenty of baseball to be played, there's still beverages to be drunk, plenty of hot-dogs on the grill and I don't think anyone wants to see the Lions start their season yet.

Charlevoix Little League continues

Charlevoix's Junior Division played a doubleheader in East Jordan on Friday, June 6. Charlevoix hitters for the first game, wherein Charlevoix bested East Jordan 8 to 7 were, singles by Isaac Kloostar, Coby Herriman, River Gauthier, Nolan Ager, Alex Waha, Morgan Stewart and a single and double by Jordan Farmer. Tommy Zipp had two triples in the same game. Pitching the game was Andrew Potter. In the second game, East Jordan won with a score of 10 to 5. Hitters in the second game were singles by Herriman, Ager, Stewart and two singles each by Gauthier, Will Jeakle and Jesse Drost. Ager and Waha pitched. Leading up to the June 6 action was the little Rayders' competition against Traverse City East where they lost 2 to 1 on June 4. In a close game, Charlevoix's defense worked hard keeping the Traverse City runs low. Charlevoix had singles by Klooster, Herrimann, Stewart and two singles by Potter. Drost hit a double. Herrimann pitched a consistent game and, in his first time pitching this season, Drost finished the game. The remaining Little League schedule is as follows: 4 p.m., June 19 against Traverse City in Traverse City; 1 p.m., June 21 at East Jordan; 5:30 p.m., June 23 at East Jordan.

Business blooming in Charlevoix

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
NEWS-REVIEW CONVERGANCE EDITOR

Jennifer Haf, a teacher by trade, with a passion for gardening, is taking her fervor for flowers to the streets this summer.

Haf's open air flower stand, Bloom Unique Floral Creations, opens at 9 a.m. on Saturday, June 21 in the courtyard of the Rose Cottage at 107 Mason St. in downtown Charlevoix.

"I'm excited about what Charlevoix is doing and want to be a part of it," the 32-year-old Charlevoix resident, said.

Bloom will feature fresh cut flower bunches, bouquets and arrangements at the stand on weekends and on demand when the stand is closed.

"My style is more garden fresh, earthy, organic, free-form — non-traditional," she said. "I'll have a lot of old-fashioned flowers like zinnias, stock, gladiolas, dahlias, peonies, hydrangea. It's a real cottage garden feel."

Most of the flowers Bloom will feature are cultivated by Haf or local growers with a few coming from wholesale vendors.

While the stand will be where she's visible, Haf also offers floral service for special events like weddings and can accommodate the needs of business accounts by appointment.

Haf's professional background is rooted in education. She has also spent about eight years working for commercial florists.

"I'm a teacher by trade, this is my passion. I like to be outside and in going back to work asked myself, 'What's my ideal setting. I wanted to do something that's true to my heart,'" she said.

After passing an outdoor florist she knew she could combine her love of gardening and floral arrangement with her ardor for the outdoors.

"It's kind of European," she said of the business.

The stand will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays from June 21 through Oct. 11.

For more information about Bloom or to place a flower order, call (231) 547-9182 or e-mail Haf at bloomupnorth@aol.com.

Julie Witthoeft can be reached by e-mail at jwitthoeft@petoskeynews.com.

Schneider clear of Hatch Act

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County's current undersheriff was notified by the U.S. Office of Special Counsel that his candidacy for the sheriff's office was not in violation of the Hatch Act earlier this month.

"It's a weight off my shoulders," said Don Schneider.

In a letter dated June 6, attorney Mariaina Liverpool wrote that despite the sheriff's office receiving federal grants, Schneider was far enough removed from the funds and the employees who controlled them as to not constitute an official conflict.

"We do not believe that Undersheriff Schneider is performing duties in connection with federally financed activities, and as such, is not covered currently by the provisions of the Hatch Act," the letter stated.

Looking to avoid any criticism heading into his run for the office, Schneider penned his own letter to Special Counsel earlier this year seeking clarification on whether or not he was breaking any laws by running. Schneider said he was prepared if Special Counsel had ruled against him.

"I was prepared to leave the sheriff's office during the election if I had to," he said. "I would not have withdrawn my candidacy. I would have quit, but I didn't want to."

Schneider is running against Don Sproul, a retired Charlevoix County Deputy, for the post being vacated by Sheriff George Lasater later this year.

Passed in 1939, the Hatch Act prevents federal employees from running in partisan elections.

Noah Fowle can be reached by e-mail at nfowle@petoskeynews.com

Chuck Vondra undersheriff candidate

Undersheriff Don Schneider, candidate for the office of Sheriff, recently announced Detective Sergeant Chuck Vondra as his choice for Undersheriff if elected to office. Vondra, Boyne City, was not only chosen for his extensive background in law enforcement, according to Schneider, but his experience in local government with an emphasis on budget preparation and control. Sheriff George Lasater built a strong foundation over the past 32 years. Schneider said it is his job to continue to build in that sound foundation and meet the ever-changing times as they come.

"With the present outstanding staff of deputies, corrections officers, and support staff, we will meet any challenge given us," Schneider stated.

FEE

When Catt was told by Janik that an anonymous donor had come forward and offered to match another donation, Catt and one of his companies, Integrity Construction, chose to donate $4,000.

The combined donations will offset the fee formerly imposed last May.

"The donation is only for the 2008-2009 year," Janik stated in an e-mailed response to questions. "The issue will be revisited next year at this time."

Janik added that the average cost, statewide, for school extracurricular fees is $115 per student.

Summer dance classes soon offered

Danielle San Paolo will be offering dance lessons at the United Methodist Church on State Street downtown Charlevoix, this summer. The classes she will offer include ballet, modern, lyrical, jazz, tap and hip-hop.

Ages 6 through adult are welcome to sign up. To sign up, go to the Methodist Church at 5:30 p.m. on June 23.

This will serve as a time of orientation for parents; however, late registration is not a problem. Class schedule: Ages 6-12, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Ages 13 and up from 10 a.m. to noon on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

The cost is $100 per four week session.

Session two meets starting July 22 for a four-week period. Students are encouraged to take both four week sessions for $180 and to be a part of the final recital on August 15.

Students will need dancewear and dance shoes. Please see Danielle's contact information at the bottom of this section.

Danielle has been training in various genre of dance since she was 7 years old.

Her performance opportunities have taken her as far as China and India as well as throughout New York, California and Hawaii.

San Paolo is 21 years old and has taught at Dance Terrific Studio in southern California and specializes in teaching workshops when she is away from her home in Fontanna, Calif.

Last summer she taught in Charlevoix and wishes to return to expand her workshop this summer to include more of her home away from home Charlevoix.

Contact Danielle at (909) 239-6561 or e-mail daniellesanpaolo@gmail.com for further information.

Historical society publishes booklet

Karen Lewis, curator of collections (left) helps Dave Miles, co-director of the Charlevoix Historical Society show off their newly published booklet "Charlevoix Pier Lights."

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

A new book compiled by the Charlevoix Historical Society about pier lights will be selling for $10.

Entitled "Charlevoix Pier Lights," the book follows the purchase of the Charlevoix South pier light, from the U.S. Coast Guard to the City of Charlevoix.

"This book is the first in a planned series of books on the Charlevoix area history," said Karen Lewis, curator of collections.

The potential series of books will be published only if they continue to get funding, or if the Charlevoix Pier Lights book makes enough money, according to Dave Miles, CO-director of the Historical Society.

"This book is being funded by the lighthouse committee," Miles said, "the other books (if published) will be funded by the historical society."

All profit from the sale of the publication is directed toward restoration of the lighthouse.

Additional donations may be sent to: Charlevoix Historical Society, P.O. Box 525, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

For more information, please visit the Society's Web site at www.chxhistory.com

Anyone interested in purchasing the book can pick up a copy from the Historical Society's Harsha House, Round Lake Books or at Consign Design on 221 Bridge St.

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed aboard the Alwihta, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodbeck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodbeck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

CHARLEVOIX LIBRARY EVENTS

PAWS for a Story is back by popular demand. The certified dog teams are ready to listen to stories. Reading aloud is a proven method to enhance children's reading ability and dogs are our best friends, so this makes a perfect match. Children love to read aloud to the dogs – they're great non-judgmental, listeners. PAWS dogs are available to listen from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. during the four Saturdays of July. Reading takes place in 15-minute sessions.

- LEGO! From 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., children in grades Kindergarten through eighth are invited to work with a partner come in pairs, or the library will match up kids that day to build a race car. Lego technicians will help you put a motor in and enter the big race at the end of the morning, Saturday, June 21.
- A nature photography workshop will be hosted from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, June 27. Rick Lieder will teach attendees to find moments that make a digital photograph more than a picture, with one-on-one instruction on lighting, composition and color. All ages are welcome; children under 14 must be accompanied by an adult.

Ship ahoy?

Seaports Great Lakes, a nonprofit organization, is in the process of bringing a project to town that could end with a 92-foot Schooner being built and launched in Charlevoix's harbor next year.

The Ship will be a replica of an 1852 Schooner named "The Challenge" which was designed by William Wallace Bates who was 25 at the time.

"We chose 'The Challenge' (to replicate) because Bates had the cutting edge technology of the day," said Bob Schafer, project organizer. "He grew up in a shipyard and his father was a highly acclaimed shipbuilder as well. So, it kind of ran in his genes."

One of the main problems facing the tall ship construction project is over a concern about dust and people speeding through the area.

Paul Sobleski, a resident of Palmer Street, voiced his concerns because he lives very close to the area where the ship would be built.

The location of the project is planned for the lawn area between Fisheries Station Charlevoix and the Pine River Channel.

"In the past, the city has done a lousy job of dust control," said Sobleski. "In that area, there has always been a lack of bathrooms, extra traffic and the speed at which people are going is far too fast. It's not just kids speeding around that area, either."

But, Schafer said he is willing to cooperate with any issues the city or local residents might have.

With completion of the administration building expected sometime mid-August, Charlevoix Public Schools officials look to construction of a new bus garage.

Groundbreaking on the administration offices, future location on the northwest corner lot of Charlevoix Middle School, began earlier this spring, while demolition on the former and future grounds of the bus garage facility at 1021 May St. began Monday, June 16.

"It's going to be really special for all of us because our former office (a residential dwelling located at 208 West Clinton St.) was pretty old and was a former house and hadn't had a lot of improvements," said Charlevoix Public Schools business manager Shawn Biddle. "Our current offices are pretty nice, but they are located in a basement, so we're looking forward to having new offices with windows and a lot more efficient office."

BETA Design took several of what they felt were the top bids and engaged in a selection process between last fall and earlier this winter to ensure Charlevoix Schools would get the most for their money.

The winning bids for both the administration building and bus garage were then awarded to Integrity Construction Services out of Gaylord.

The approximately 3,000-square-foot administration building was priced by Integrity to cost $409,000.

Several of the nine losing bidders and their bids are as follows:

- O'Boyle & Company, Marquette - $494,000
- The Tancor Corporation, Midland - $483,500
- Eckler Construction, Traverse City - $434,300
- Hallmark Construction, Traverse City - $449,500

"I was over there (administration building site) Tuesday (June 17) and the interior walls are all framed and they were working on the rough plumbing and rough electrical and bricking the exterior," Biddle said.

No new groomer yet

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

The City of Charlevoix has decided once again to put off the decision to purchase a new ski hill groomer.

In the meantime, the City Council has decided to table discussion on the issue until July 23. The purpose is to do more research and try to collect more grants for the project.

"In the last two weeks, the price has jumped from $215,000 to $236,000," said Bo Boss. "It's cost us at least $20,000 so far, just hy not making a decision."

Local resident, Paul Weston, agreed.

"This is a project that really deserves the attention of the City of Charlevoix," Weston said. "It's no doubt that we need the groomer and we should revisit the issue sooner than the second week of July."

Mayor Norman Carlson explained that the city cannot he given money from grants for something already bought, and that is the reason behind waiting and collecting grant money first.

"If we buy a groomer tomorrow, we don't get any money from the grants," he said.

Boss urged that, since Sept. 1 is the latest date that Pisten Bully will accept an order for a groomer, the council should make a decision as soon as possible.

"We have a couple of months to do our research and raise additional money through some fundraising committees in town," said Rob Straebel, Charlevoix City Manager.

Mary Adams, an audience member attending last week's meeting, told city council that Ike Boss, Recreation Director, has already raised $19,000 in the last two weeks.

"We can also get another $20,000 for the old groomer," she said.

Boss is currently researching possible used groomers with low hours of usage that may be an option to purchase.

Tha rickety old groomer (above) used to keep Mt. McSauba's ski hill in business could soon be replaced with new equipment if Charlevoix City Council members dacide to OK a provision to purchase a new groomer estimatad at nearly $230,000.

Jeremy McAuliff wouldn't let them die.

Three English Pointers lost their owner and hunting companion in a car accident last September. The three dogs: Kalli, and her two puppies, Kiki and Kimmi, were to be euthanized in a shelter in Kentucky on Valentine's Day.

"As February 14 approached, I kept looking at the dog's photo and decided I couldn't allow them to die in a shelter," McAuliff said. McAuliff found out about the dogs from a fishing Web site where a man who knew about the story of the dogs was requesting a home for them.

As the man from the Web site pleaded for someone to reach out and help the dogs, McAuliff arranged for a lady to pick them up and keep them at her home until he was able to make the drive to save them himself.

On February 18, McAuliff started his day at 5 a.m. and it didn't end until 10 p.m. that night. He drove down to Florence, Ky. with his Chevy Tahoe putting 900 miles on the vehicle and burning "lots" of gas.

When he finally picked up the three dogs, the two daughters slept in the backseat the whole way home. The mother, Kalli, soaked up all of the attention she could laying in the middle console of the passenger's seat.

Once McAuliff got the dogs to northern Michigan, homes were found immediately for all three of them. Unfortunately, the gentleman that had adopted Kalli only kept her outside.

Kalli is an inside dog that needs human contact, and so, once again, she was without a home. She is housebroken and very gentle.

"She is perfectly content laying in the sun or on a deck just soaking up rays," said McAuliff, "I hope somebody could find it in their heart to take Kalli and give her the home she deserves."

McAuliff took her back and she is now living with his parents south of Charlevoix. They are still looking for a permanent home for Kalli. If you, or anyone you know can help, please contact either Jeremy McAuliff at (231) 330-7801 or Marshall and Cathy McAuliff at (231) 264-6319.

Say 'Yes' to new groomer

EDITORIAL

Ok, we get it, nearly a quarter of a million dollars is no drop in the proverbial bucket, but when it comes to using taxpayer dollars to fund projects, but a need is a need, and after careful consideration, we agree with the Charlevoix Recreation Department that Mt. McSauba does need a new ski hill groomer.

Not only will purchase of a new piece of equipment ensure the skiers will have a place to ski and the snowboarders will have a place to snowboard, but that city workers will not run up countless hours working to maintain a groomer which is by all accounts ready to be made into steel wool pads.

In the interest of fiscal solvency, we would like to see some matching funds provided by the community at large, and with a community as generous as Charlevoix, it shouldn't be too difficult.

Heck, if everyone in the greater Charlevoix area each pitched in $10, we'd have enough to cover the groomer and then some.

So let's get out there and support the rec' department, your skis will thank you.

Call Sue Boss, recreation department director for more information at 547-3253.

Memories of Marina

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Seaner

The days are drawing near and with every photograph that catches my gaze, I cling to the memories that jump out as if they occurred yesterday. Pictures of dinners past, weddings, and laughing over the simple pleasures of friends sharing a brief moment on the front porch. Time captured by a camera that can never be replaced. It was a simpler time, and life was good and all was well with the world. On the twenty sixth day of this month in June it will be the one year anniversary of the passing of Marina LaBlance. Her funeral brought together many individuals who had been touched by her kindness, humor, tenacity and elegance all rolled into one.

The thought of this week brought to mind how often cancer takes someone we love and how quickly the days click away when we really think they will be with us forever.

Often doctors will avoid the end of life talk with their patients. Its must be very difficult to discuss this topic when surgery, chemotherapy and alternative homeopathic methods are not bringing the progress we hope for. It is important to turn a negative situation into a positive one even if the outcome is not what we want.

Straight talk is what most people want so they can converse about what's really on their mind. It reduces stress not only for the patient but for family and friends as well. Accepting death as unavoidable will be less costly, create peace and not find us tethered to a machine. Sure there are feelings of nervousness and depression. Who doesn't get sad talking about the end of life. But the relief in planning a "good death" and making necessary decisions will help us accept what is happening. Most of us know in our heart what is occurring and we all have an amazing capacity to deny or just keep fighting. For most of us it's a relief to know death is near and just be able to talk about it.

When Marina was first diagnosed with cancer I found comfort in reading the book "Annie Freeman's Traveling Funeral". It was an upbeat story that helped me plan my own gathering to take place after my physical presence takes a permanent leave of absence. Finding peace, whether it be making your own "bucket list" or talking with friends and family you've lost track of, everything you complete will help you deal with the situation you have no control over.

So on the anniversary of my good friend's passing, I will raise my glass and toast to her and all the photos clinging by old magnets on the "fridge." Life is good and I know there's a helluva a lot of fun taking place in heaven now that the angels have you on their side. To the only piano player who didn't criticize my singing, who laughed at my jokes and brought excitement to a room as soon as she entered.

"Oompah," my dear Marina, you will never be forgotten.

The immortal words you left us with on your passing will be etched forever in my memory. "Live your life so that children can tell their children that you not only stood for something wonderful, but you acted on it."

Thank-you, my friend, for the memories, more importantly for your never-ending friendship.

Ombudsman or antichrist?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

He's been called revolutionary, inspired and even antichrist, or at least anti-bible.

He's Bishop John Shelby Spong, the retired man of God who had the stones to ordain gay men spent the latter of his 24 years writing floppy texts like "The Sins of Scripture: Exposing the Bible's Texts of Hate to Discover the God of Love," "Why Christianity Must Change or Die" and my personal favorite title "Rescuing the Bible from Fundamentalism: A Bishop Rethinks the Meaning of Scripture."

Now, I'm not here to Christian bash; I'll leave that up to Bill Maher and, may he rest in peace, guys like George Carlin. And for those of you wrinkling your faces and grinding your teeth, there is a big difference between demanding religion be removed from legislation, and hammering on a particular sect.

I recently viewed a Spong interview by Texas Monthly, and I have to say I don't completely disagree with the man's ideology. I like that he was able to work at overcoming his homophobia and see sexual designation for what it is: a personal matter which ought have no bearing on one's standing in free society.

But where he loses me is in his quest to alter Christianity. Sure, this country has long toiled under Christian-influenced legislation, and I would love to see that change, but Spong isn't interested in social equality through secular government. He wants to modernize, liberalize and chastise traditional Christianity for what he sees as the improper following of the sacred texts.

It has been written of Spong that he, "seeks to introduce readers to a proper way to engage the holy book." But, who is to say which is the proper way to decipher a text written in a long lost tongue which, before the printing press, was passed from generation to generation by word of mouth? The idea any semblance of certainty can be derived or, even if it could be taken literally, that any one man knows the true will of God by reading the Bible is absurd. One thousand men could come away with 100,000 different thoughts from one chapter of the Bible.

A rabble-rouser perhaps, but I have difficulty seeing Spong as a divine medium.

Ignorance lies in the wake of arrogance, and an ever-growing portion of the braying masses will always look for something new to soothe their restless minds. I rather like the idea of a religion which accepts all no matter what their color, race, sexual persuasion or country of origin, and perhaps Spong's reading of the Bible is correct, but to assume you know God's will by culling from scripture that which suits you, and shunning that which does not, is a contrived convenience and not just a little insulting to those who feel they've a pretty good grip on their faith as well as their religion.

As a layman to most things biblical, I cannot say whether the omissions, falsehoods and contradictions cited are as stark as Spong would like to think, but I have to wonder how he could have any faith in a book he finds so riddled with literary chaos.

At the end of the day, Spong believes gays should not only be accepted by Christian faiths, but made clergy. Just as adamant that they not be accepted are the millions of Christians who have been raised to believe homosexuality is sinful.

People hold fast their beliefs. And, while I applaud Spong's open-mindedness, I fear he wastes precious time trying to alter a religion when he could be fighting for equality outside the church.

POOH-POOH POLYGAMY

Editor:

The writer Benjamin Gohs should do his homework before writing columns. I personally know Flora Jessup, the founder of Child Protection Project and the brave woman who escaped Colorado City and helped two teenage girls escape a forced polygamous marriage. The Yearning for Zion ranch in Eldorado Texas is an offshoot of Colorado City. Reality is that the government and CPS has not done enough to protect women and children in the FLDS sect. Flora escaped when she was fifteen and reported to police that her father had sexually assaulted her. She was returned to Colorado City by CPS and was further sexually assaulted by her father and beaten. She did not escape again until she was eighteen. The two girls she rescued were almost returned to Colorado City by CPS as well. These places are called compounds because they are closed off from outside society, the education system controlled, and religious authority has dictatorial powers. The prophet could require a woman and her children be assigned to another man, could assign where people lived, and how much income they were allowed. He also used to control the local police. Children and young women could be abused and sexually assaulted with no recourse. Flora and the two girls were not even aware of who the president of the United States was, because the education they received was propaganda approved by the prophet. Radio and TV were not allowed, and the textbooks were created with the approval of the prophet, and held little of the information you would expect for a normal education. Young girls of fourteen and fifteen would be forced to be the fourth or fifth wife of men in their fifties. The wedding night was essentially rape. When some of these men were finally brought to court for their crimes, they would often receive sentences of only months. Women are expected to submit to their husbands and have a child every year, to add to his glory in the after life. Furthermore the practice of polygamy sets up a sick family system where the old men are in competition with their own sons for the young girls. Given that there are actually 105 males born for every female, in a system that has men married to four or five or fifteen women, many men have to go without. The FLDS in Colorado City pick a few young men as future leaders and then cast out the rest of the young men from the community and their families, with no preparation of how to survive in the outside world. These are the "lost boys" that have been on TV. Furthermore the plural wives and their children, having not been legally married, were used to "bleed the beast," their term for the United States government, by getting hundreds of thousands of welfare money while paying in practically no taxes.

Educate yourself by going to the web site childpro.org and find out what oppression really is.

THANKS, BBQ CREW

Editor:

We would like to thank all the parents who volunteered to help with the 8th grade after graduation BBQ at Ferry Beach. We sincerely appreciate all the donations of food and time to make it a special day for all the kids. Most importantly we want to thank all the students who participated. They are truly a great bunch of kids and we are very proud of them. Thanks, again

'NO WELL, NO WELL' THE OPPONENTS DID SAY

Editor:

Amid all the rainy northern Michigan days, the sun came out allowing for a great time at the Richardi Park picnic. Event organizer Barb Bradford, with the help of the Star Township board, Friends of the Jordan, Antrim County Commissioners, Antrim Commission on Aging, Lakes of the North and surrounding community volunteers can, once again, be proud of all their efforts.

Fun was had by all.

The cooks and the servers kept the good food coming. Rock-n-Country Band had people dancing in the park.

Kids of all ages blew bubbles, made crafts, played games and even wrote poems for prizes.

Shiner the Klown gave out pretzels, bubbles and smiles.

Petitions were signed.

Antrim County Conservation provided everyone with a seedling tree in order to protect our lands. The can-do'ers [sic] and well-wishers all came together giving a terrific total of $14,933.49. These funds will be added to the donation and fundraiser pot which will be used for legal fees to stop the (CMS injection, Alba) well.

Thanks to all that helped, even in the smallest way.

Once again northern Michigan has shown it is overflowing with caring and giving people and in this case custodians of our earth.

ALMS FOR THE POOR

Editor:

According to the U.S. government, "poor" means that your income is something less than a poverty line that was defined back in the mid-1960s.

At the time of its inception, the poverty baseline measure was set at approximately three times the annual cost of a nutritionally adequate diet.

It was assumed that this amount would enable a family to meet basic needs: It may have then, it doesn't now.

To further illustrate, let's consider the current U.S. poverty line amount for a single-parent family with two children.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the 2007 amount was $16,705.

According to the Economic Policy Institute's Web site, this three-person family in the Saginaw/Bay City/Midland area must earn $29,316 annually, and in rural Michigan $27,168 to pay for key necessities without setting aside any money in savings or investments.

And, because housing is one of the largest monthly costs a family must incur, families with incomes beneath that basic budget amount often have no choice but to live in substandard housing: It's all they can afford.

The negative effects of substandard housing are well documented. These consequences are particularly dire for children. And shouldn't every child be allowed to grow up in decent, affordable housing?

This is an American problem. It is our problem. And some folks

Carter Oosterhousa poses with volunteers after filming his show "Carter Can" on June 16 in Traverse City. The volunteers repairad the home of a deserving Traversa City fan. Oosterhousa then donatad all tha Craftsman tools used in filming the show to Charlevoix High School.

Carter Can, and he did.

Traverse City native Carter Oosterhouse, host of "Carter Can" a do-it-yourself home improvement show on HGTV, recently donated nearly 90 tools to Charlevoix High School's building trades program.

"It's so exciting that Carter is giving back to the local community through his new show and his relationship with Craftsman," said Charlevoix High School principal Suzanne Klinger "The constructional education program at Charlevoix High School really appreciates the show of support from Craftsman and Carter. Our students will use these tools as they obtain hands-on home building skills."

Tools donated include table saws, circular saws, sanders, jig saws, air compressors and nail guns, drill bit sets, screwdrivers and hammers.

"Many graduates of the program go on to work for area contractors who respect the skills they have obtained and the work ethic they have developed by being a member of the Charlevoix High School Construction Technology Program," Klinger said.

Oosterhouse was in Traverse City June 19 shooting a special two-part feature when he donated the 86 hand tools.

"I'm excited to be back in my hometown, and I'm even more excited to be able to donate all the Craftsman tools we are using on the "Carter Can" set to Charlevoix High School. We're donating almost 90 items to the construction technology program," Oosterhouse said. "It's great to know that these Craftsman tools will be used to train students who will become the do-it-yourselfers of the future. I'm so honored to help bring out their inner craftsman. For those who are inspired to take on their own do-it-yourself projects they can learn more about the tools we used on our show at the HGTV Web site and at Craftsman.com."

"Carter Can" is a weekly show airing at 10:30 a.m., Saturday mornings on HGTV.

OBITUARIES

Paul Foster Baron: April 9, 1955 - June 19, 2008

Paul Foster Baron, 53, of Charlevoix and formerly of Fairfield, died suddenly, Thursday, June 19, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Born April 9, 1955 in Bridgeport, Conn., Paul attended Florida Institute of Technology and Western Michigan University.

Paul was Director of Operations for Island Airways and Aviation Advisor.

Previously Paul was Director of Aviation for Four Winns Boat Group, and Director of Operations and Maintenance at Lake City Airport.

Paul was certified as an air transport pilot, flight and ground instructor, scuba instructor, and had a masters certificate for boating.

An avid pilot, sailor, scuba diver and outdoorsman, Paul's greatest loves were his family and aviation.

Paul provided flight and ground instruction to hundreds of individuals.

His passion for flying was contagious.

Paul's generosity, friendship and talent will be greatly missed.

He is survived by his wife Bettina, and daughter, Alexandra; his parents, Ruth and Frank Baron of Fairfield, Conn.; a sister, Patricia Charles of Westbrook, Conn.; and a brother, David Baron of Roxbury, Conn.

A memorial service was held at 1:00 p.m. on Sunday, June 22, 2008 at Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island.

In lieu of flowers, a memorial account has been created.

Contributions to the Alexandra Baron Fund may be sent to Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Edmund K. Burke: April 15, 1930 - June 21, 2008

Edmund K. "Don" Burke of Charlevoix, and formerly of Petoskey, died Saturday, June 21, 2008, at his home.

Funeral will be 1 p.m., Thursday, June 26, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Ryp Hankins will officiate and burial will take place in Norwood Cemetery.

Ed was born April 15, 1930, in Lansing, to Edmund K. and Gladys (DeWitt) Burke.

He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1949.

On Dec. 19, 1949, he married Alice Darleen Holecheck in East Jordan.

Ed served in the US Air Force during the Korean War.

In 1990, Ed retired as Sergeant from the Michigan State Police Post in Petoskey after serving for 34 years.

Ed and Darleen made their home in Petoskey for 25 years before moving to Charlevoix in 1998.

Ed was a Deacon at the Safe Harbor Baptist Church in Charlevoix, and was a member of the F&AM.

He is survived by his wife, Darleen of Charlevoix; sons, Edmund K. (Vicki) Burke, Jr. of Denver, Colo., Alan L. (Sheila) Burke of Charlevoix; daughters, Glenda I. (Ron) Nelson of Dayton, Ohio, Kathy A. (Jim) Boyer of Elk Rapids; nine grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; half-brother, Robert (Cindy) Redman of Montana and Hawaii; half-sister, Phyllis Redman of Charlevoix.

Ed's granddaughter, Dana Burke preceded him in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Safe Harbor Baptist Church in Charlevoix, 06046 Old US 31 South, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Visitation will be from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

'Faithful Servant'

By Steve Guthrie

As I watch the news reports of flooding in the Midwest and interviews with people who have lost everything to floodwaters, I reflect back on Hurricane Katrina.

The day after that storm hit and the levees ruptured I and my friend Lyle Gennett climbed in my old station wagon and headed south, loaded down with a huge wad of cash and a trailer full of donated goods from the people of Charlevoix.

We found ourselves among the first volunteers to staff the Baton Rouge Convention Center, which eventually housed thousands of refugees from New Orleans.

Early on our first full day in the shelter I began going from cot to cot greeting new arrivals, many of whom were still in the crusty clothes they'd worn since being fished out of filthy flood waters. These were people who only the week before had houses, families, and normal lives. That morning they awoke in a former sports arena on a Red Cross cot surrounded by strangers, and their reactions ranged from pacing and crying to sitting slump-shouldered with a glazed expression staring off into the middle distance.

These were people fresh from trauma, just beginning to comprehend their losses, and starting to list their options for what to do next. From cot to cot I encountered fear, anxiety, blame-laying, and bewilderment. And in the midst of all that human heartache I spotted Ophelia. She was lying on her cot propped up against a wall of folded-up bleachers, calmly reading her Bible. She seemed serene in that early morning light, almost aglow, cotton-white hair framing her weathered black face. She wore a flannel nightgown buttoned at the neck and rested under a Red Cross blanket. I felt reluctant to interrupt her peace. Ophelia greeted me with a warm smile and a handshake too firm for a woman over 80.

In the gracious style of southern ladies she quickly shifted the focus of the conversation off of herself and onto her guest. "Oh, I hope you are well this mornin', she began, and then "Oh, you've come from Michigan.

My, what a long drive you must have had."

She was as mannerly welcoming me to her bedside as she would have been ushering me into her home, which, the last time she saw it, was completely submerged.

The widow Ophelia, I was to learn, had escaped her flooding home with the help of neighbors, who had placed her in a boat and swam in the water to propel that boat out to I-10.

There she'd been placed on a bus to Baton Rouge, avoiding the dirty and dangerous Superdome.

She had run for her life with a small cardboard suitcase, and in the few moments she had to gather her belongings after the levee burst she scooped up two photo albums, a handful of clothes, her pills, and her Bible.

She showed me photos of her family, fondly naming and recalling the accomplishments of each one, and when she got to the graduation picture of a nephew she told me calmly that her heart was preoccupied for his safety because in the chaos of the storm and the evacuation no one knew what had become of him.

Ophelia was a portrait in composure, and as I spoke with her of how she was handling all this turmoil and uncertainty I realized I was meeting a case study in real faith.

She explained to me how faith was something that had to be lived out every day, in good times and bad, in triumph and tragedy.

She did not want to be known to God as a "fair-weather follower" of Jesus, but someone who would trust in His love and faithfulness even when everything she could see around her said logically she ought to panic.

She knew God had provided her with a roof over her head her entire life and He would again, but for that day the roof He provided was a cot in a shelter and she was thankful for His kindness. She knew God had His watchful eye on her nephew, and took at face value His promise in Psalm 91 that He would give His angels charge over His faithful, to guard us in all our ways.

She spoke easily of God's promises of compassion and loving kindness.

Her familiar faith had come from years of reading God's Word, praying, and trusting.

He had never disappointed Ophelia, and never failed to keep His promises.

The result was a simple, unwavering faith based on relationship and not religion. She had lived her entire life walking hand-in-hand with her heavenly Daddy, and no Force-5 hurricane named Katrina could shake what she had. I finished my visit with Ophelia and moved on, eventually kneeling besides hundreds of cots in the days that followed. But in the time I spent at Ophelia's cot I got more than I gave.

I went to give comfort and encouragement, and instead received a living sermon in trusting the Lord never to be forgotten.

Taste of music

The Charlevoix City Band entertained the crowd during the 5th Annual Taste of Charlevoix Festival. They started the day off early and played their brand of big band and jazz through much of the day. Gary Stutzman (left) is seen conducting the band the morning of Saturday, June 21.

Eye health important

BY TRACEY RUPINSKI
R.N.

Have you thought about your eye health today? For most of us we go through life with little thought about our eyes, until one day your vision is gone.

Is there anything you should have done? Research suggests that eating a healthy, fresh diet rich in vitamin A is the key to healthy eyes.

Vitamin A prevents night blindness. Lack of this vitamin is the single leading cause of blindness in developing countries. It also prevents cataracts from forming and may play a key role in preventing blindness from macular degeneration. With that stated, have you eaten your carrots today?

An average size carrot contains twice the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of vitamin A. If carrots are not your favorite vegetable don't worry, there are plenty of fresh fruits and vegetable that are also good for your eye health. Foods rich in vitamin A are usually yellow, orange or green in color. They are also leafy in texture. Select produce that is fresh and darkest in color. Cooking destroys vitamin A amounts, so try eating them raw or undercooked. If fresh produce is not available, select frozen rather than canned. The canning process strips away much of the vitamin A in foods.

The following is a list of foods high in vitamin A: cod liver oil, liver, carrots, sweet potatoes, kale, butternut squash, red peppers, mangos and cantaloupe.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging serves nutritious meals daily at local senior centers, located in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan. Meals can also be delivered to your home if you are homebound and over 60 years of age. For more information call the Commission on Aging at (231) 237-0103.

Health care concerns

A new AARP survey reveals that older Americans are extremely concerned about their skyrocketing health care costs and they are less likely to support lawmakers who raise those costs even higher. The poll of adults 50-plus finds 81 percent oppose additional increases to Medicare premiums and 66 percent are less likely to vote for an elected official who supports those increases.

"It's time for Congress to stop treating the symptoms and find real solutions to our skyrocketing health care costs," said AARP Executive Vice President Nancy LeaMond. "Americans 50-plus want lawmakers to fix the problem, not just raise their premiums."

Eight in ten survey respondents opposed raising premiums even higher instead of looking at other recommended ways to lower health care costs.

AARP's poll also found that a vast majority of 50-plus Americans are concerned about their current and future out-of-pocket health care costs. Concern over Medicare premiums even extends to those not yet in the program.

AARP has been working to keep premiums fair and improve Medicare's low-income programs. The grassroots effort has already generated more than 205,000 signed petitions as well

East Park update: fountain test A-OK

In this week's East Park update, you will notice that the programming for the Interactive Water Fountain (IWF) seen (above) has been completed. All of the pumps, filters and nozzles are fully functional and operational. Go to http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uj6BdUpJgY4 to see a short video of the IWF being tested on Tuesday, June 17.

• Harbor Master Building (HMB) - Interior finishes to the HMB are complete. The final construction clean-up is underway and were supposed to be finished on or around June 23. Final inspections for the interior of the HMB are currently being performed by the Charlevoix County Building Department. When these inspections are concluded, an occupancy permit will be issued allowing access to the public restrooms and all of the boaters' facilities. The permit could be granted as early as next week. On June 19, a complete system start-up of the mechanical and plumbing systems was held, along with a training session for city staff. On June 20, the Harbor Master is moving in his new furniture. The rooftop of the HMB is complete other than some minor painting of the handrails. Stonemasons are starting to lay up the block walls for the planter beds, steps and walkways that the public will use to access the rooftop. Beginning next week, Manthei Development Corporation (MDC) will start removing the portion of Clinton Street that has been re-designed. This will likely cause some traffic issues in this area, so please avoid driving a vehicle on Clinton Street east of Bridge Street unless necessary. Footings are poured and the block walls have been laid up for the wheelchair-accessible walkway located to the north of the HMB.

• Performance Pavilion (PP) - The previous project update stated that the lighting for the stage area was complete. In fact it was not at that time; however the lighting will be complete by the morning of Monday, June 23 at the latest. Work on the interior finishes continues throughout the PP. Plans to conduct the start-up for the mechanical and plumbing equipment in PP are slated for next week and the stage floor will be polished next week as well. Initial cursory evaluations of this facility's acoustics have been very encouraging. The brick pavers on the rooftop have been completed as of June 20. Most of the painting of the handrails is complete. Handrails continue to be installed throughout the entire site.

• General Site Work - The irrigation system continues to be installed south of the PP. When the stonemasons are finished with the wall to the east of the PP, irrigation will be installed around the front of the stage. If things proceed as planned, sod will be laid to the south of the PP early next week.

are trying to do something about it.

Two organizations have reached out in a big way to teach this country's citizens about the issue of substandard housing: Thrivent Financial for Lutherans and Habitat for Humanity International. Together they created the Thrivent Builds Mobile, a 67-foot multi-media exhibit on wheels that is traveling across the United States. Stepping inside the Mobile enables each visitor to actually experience what it might be like to live in substandard housing.

The Thrivent Builds Mobile will be in Traverse City during the National Cherry Festival, July 5 - 12 at intersection of East Grandview Parkway and North Union Street. Hours for the exhibit are 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. daily. It is an event not to be missed. It is important for all adults to experience this exhibit; it is equally appropriate for children.

Call (231) 348-6926 or (231) 882-4574 for more information.

FLAGS OF OUR FUNDRAISER

Editor:

On behalf of the officers and members of the Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League, I am writing to express our continuing gratitude for the many thousands of dollars which our citizens have donated on our most recent Flag Day sales.

These many dollars have gone directly into an endowment fund, the interest from which provides three $1,000.00 scholarships to area high school seniors who will be attending North Central Michigan College. Your readership should know the coins and dollars which they have been put into our coffers will continue to provide funds into perpetuity. Thanks to your generous support, we could well be adding a fourth scholarship in the near future.

Glen R. Williams, Information Officer, Marine Corps League

A MATTER OF GROOMING

Editor:

As part of a grassroots committee which includes, but is not limited to, Mary Adams, Don Heise, Laura Stebe, John and Bre Curtis, awareness needs to be brought forward to the public on the need of the groomer for the ski hill.

It all boils down to this: if there is no groomer, there will be no season.

The old groomer lasted 18 years and has cost the City a lot to continue to repair as it was one of about five made. The parts had to be custom made and was very costly.

The man-hours that have gone into that old groomer to make it work the last few seasons is astounding.

A new or gently used groomer would save money, decrease man-hours for repairs and for custom made parts. Yes the price tag is high, the city will fund $100,000 with the balance being collected hopefully through grant monies, private donations, pledges and fundraising events.

The old groomer will be sold for parts and go towards the new one.

Yes, the economy is hard. But, Mt. McSauba is the winter gem of the city. It is the second oldest locally owned ski resort in Michigan, it is a vital asset to our town.

Please help us to offset the cost of a new or used groomer, yet to be determined, to ensure the safety of the ski and snowboard enthusiasts. With a new terrain park planned for the 2008-2009 season, with elements built by a local Scout, it is paramount that the ski hill be open for all to enjoy.

With the new wells and pumps installed last fall, we now have the ability to make snow fast and efficiently. We just need the correct equipment to move mass amounts of stockpiled snow.

I commend Ike Boss and Bo Boss for their efforts to raise funds for this very integral part of operations for the ski hill. Without a new snow cat the ski hill will not be able to operate safely.

Can anyone imagine Mt. McSauba not opening? I don't think so.

Please help. Contact Ike Boss at 547-3253 for further information.

Hatch Act case reopened, undersheriff reassigned

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Following notification from the Office of Special Counsel that his Hatch Act complaint is under re-investigation, Under Sheriff Don Schneider has taken a lateral move in an attempt to come into compliance with the federal law.

Schneider is now working in an administrative role, while Chuck Vondra has been named as acting Under Sheriff. Neither officer's salary has changed

"First they said the case was closed, then they said it was re-opened," said Schneider. "I thought I was free to focus on campaigning, now I got this kicking me in the teeth again. I'm guessing someone made a complaint. (The Hatch Act) is being used as a political device."

In a June 6, letter Schneider was told that his position at the sheriff's department did not put his candidacy in jeopardy because his duties were not connected to federally financed activities, nor was he in charge of employees who were. Then in an email dated June 17, Schneider was told that "new information" was received and his case was once again under active investigation.

In his new role, Schneider does not have any authority in the department.

The move is not a resignation, and Schneider said that it was within Sheriff George Lasater's authority to change his job description.

"People still come to me because I have a wealth of knowledge," said Schneider. "But it's one thing to be a source of information, and another to direct someone to do something."

Passed in 1939, the Hatch Act prevents federal employees from running in partisan elections.

Don Sproul, who retired from the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department after 25 years of service, is running against Schneider while working part-time for the Boyne City Police Department. He declined to comment on Schneider's Hatch Act complaint investigation while it was still open.

If the Merit Systems Protection Board finds that the violation warrants dismissal from employment, the employing agency must either remove the employee or forfeit a portion of the federal assistance equal to two years salary of the employee. If the Board finds the violation does not warrant the employee's removal, no penalty is imposed.

Permitted Activities

Covered state and local employees may:

- run for public office in nonpartisan elections
- campaign for and hold office in political clubs and organizations
- actively campaign for candidates for public office in partisan and nonpartisan elections
- contribute money to political organizations and attend political fundraising functions

Prohibited Activities

Covered state and local employees may not:

- be candidates for public office in a partisan election
- use official authority or influence to interfere with or affect the results of an election or nomination
- directly or indirectly coerce contributions from subordinates in support of a political party or candidate

Cvx High School earns NCA CASI accreditation

Charlevoix High School Principal Suzanne Klinger announced on June 6 that Charlevoix High School earned continuing accreditation from the North Central Association Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement (NCA CASI), as accredited division of Advanced CD. This action was taken at the AdvancED Accreditation Commission meeting held in Orlando, Fla. on Dec. 8, 2007.

Charlevoix High School has been accredited since 1926

NCA CASI provides nationally recognized accreditation, the purpose of which is continuous school improvement focused on increasing student performance. To earn accreditation, schools must meet NCA CASI high standards, be evaluated by a team of professionals from outside the school and implement a continuous process of school improvement. Accreditation is granted on a five year term.

"Accreditation demonstrates to our students, parents, and community that we are focused on raising student achievement providing a safe and enriching learning environment, and maintaining an efficient and effective operation staffed by highly qualified educators," stated Principal Klinger.

NCA CASI accreditation is recognized across state lines, which not only eases the transfer process as students move from accredited school to accredited school but also assures parents that the school is meeting nationally accepted standards for quality and successful professional practice.

Dr. Mark Elgart, President/CEO of AdvancED, the parent organization of NCA CASI, stated "NCA CASI accreditation is a rigorous process that focuses the entire school on the primary goal of creating lifelong learners. Charlevoix High School is to be commended for engaging in this process and demonstrating a commitment to continuous improvement."

Parents and interested community members can learn more about accreditation at www.advanced.org.

Libertarian joins 105th race

DEAN JOINS RACE FOR ELSENHEIMER'S SEAT

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Dean

Greg Dean has never been that comfortable with the two existing political parties.

"I'm socially liberal and fiscally conservative," said the Antrim County resident and self-employed contractor.

In 2004, he first entered the 105th race as a Republican before switching out of the crowded field to the less competitive Democratic side. Now, Dean has once again thrown himself into the race for a seat in Lansing — only now he is doing it as a Libertarian. He was nominated for the race at the party's state convention last week.

"Both Democrats and Republicans are two sides to the same coin," he said. "They both need big government. Libertarians believe in small government."

Although Dean admits running a third-party campaign is very difficult — even the wake of Ron Paul's popular run for the Republican nomination earlier this year — he hopes that his grass roots movement gets a new message to the public.

"Most of the Republicans up here are true Libertarians," he said. "We love our country, but fear our government."

Dean said he was unsure how a third-party candidate like himself could affect the four-county race. But he added he hoped to try and draw both of his opponents, Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, R-Kewadin, and Democrat Connie Saltonstall into a some public debates. He named energy independence, the state's education system and its economy as three of the top issues he hoped to address during the election.

"The Republicans are running scared in this year's election, from the presidency all the way down to local politics. They're in fear of losing key positions," he said. "I could be a spoiler."

Top librarian to speak

Dr. James Billington, the Librarian of Congress, will speak at 5:30 p.m. on June 30 at Charlevoix Public Library. There will be a reception in his honor afterward. Billington will bring artifacts from the Library of Congress to highlight in his talk.

All welcome at Republican picnic

At 1 p.m., July 6, in Whiting Park on Lake Charlevoix, the Charlevoix County Republicans will host their 70th Annual Republican Picnic. Cost is $8 per person, children younger than 12 eat free. Century Club Members admitted free. Come join the GOP for some "good Republican chicken" cooked by famous barbecue chef and Charlevoix County Prosecutor John A. Jarema and his culinary staff.

Beverages are provided, bring a dish to pass, bring your children and grandchildren, family, friends and anyone who would like to have a good time.

Look for the elephant and flags.

Special guests in attendance will include Jack Hoogendyk, candidate for U.S. Senate; Tom Casperson, Don Hooper and Linda Goldthorpe, candidates for U.S. Congress; Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer and county officers.

There will be door prizes and guest speakers.

Call John Haggard at 547-4046 (days) or 547-6600 (nights) or e-mail him at samhunt59@yahoo.com for more information.

Mine tour

Following a court order, several members of the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety were allowed, June 20, to tour Wayne Wynkoop's 100-acre parcel which includes his limestone quarry. Surveyors, NTCHS and members of the public are seen here touring the operation. This resevoir (below) is one of several to prevent contaminated water from draining into the surrounding forest or creek in the back of tha property.

'Smallest little tournament' benefits charity

The 2008 Helen Open Steering Committee and Hospice of Northwest Michigan are pleased to announce the 2008 Helen Open, the 8th annual golfing event which is held in honor of Helen Weislik.

Last year the "smallest little tournament" in town raised another $15,000, bringing the total raised and donated to Hospice of Northwest Michigan in memory of Helen Weislik to over $75,000.

Thanks to everyone who golfed in the Open, donated items, or bid at the auction. Your generosity is what made this possible.

For those who may not be familiar with this event, the Weislik family has owned the Townhouse Bar for over 40 years, and this tournament was established as a lasting tribute to Helen Weislik, who dispensed spirited advice as freely as she dispensed spirits. Several generations of Charlevoixans have benefited from Helen's caring and commitment to the community In keeping with her dedication, the proceeds from the 2008 Open will again be directed to Hospice of Northwest Michigan to support their efforts in Charlevoix and Antrim Counties.

Captains for last year's teams are being contacted and invited to register their returning golfers. First priority is given to those who golfed in last year's tournament. We will accept individual registrations from golfers new to the tournament after the returning golfers have registered. These registrations will be used to fill openings on existing teams.

Entry fee is $60.00 per golfer and must be paid at registration. There will not be a registration event this year. Open registration will begin in July for any spots not taken by previous participants.

If you were a sponsor who helped make last year so successful, we applaud your generosity and ask if we will be able to count on your support to make this year equally successful. If you have not donated in the past, we hope that you will join us this year..

This year's Helen Open will be on Sunday, August 17 at the Charlevoix Municipal Course. Signs with donor names will again be printed and placed on the course, and every donor will be acknowledged in the printed program.

Two complimentary drinks at the Townhouse will be provided for each person or business donating at least $50, and food will be available on tournament day for a donation of $10 per non-golfer. An auction will be held and everyone is invited to bid on their favorite items.

The first seven Helen Open events were great fun and raised a lot of money for a worthy cause. This year will surely follow in that tradition.

We look forward to having you join us and participate in the 2008 Helen Open.

For further information you may call Cheri Hoffman, at 547-4578 or Ron Weislik at 547-6690.

Masonic golf fundraiser event

Charlevoix Masonic Lodge presents the 2008 College Fund Benefit Golf Outing. Summer Solstice Art Fair

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce invites you to the 10th Annual Summer Solstice Art Show, featuring high quality art displayed in beautiful downtown Charlevoix.

Participating artisans are carefully selected to ensure a well-rounded show offering a variety of fun and unique creations.

This two-day event showcases paintings in oils, watercolors and acrylics, as well as sculpture, photography, pottery, jewelry and more. A delightful surprise waits around every corner. From contemporary to whimsical, it is a spectacular representation of craftsmanship and artwork with many beautiful and unusual items on display.

- 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, June 28
- 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, June 29

Michigan resident Noel Skiba will be just one of the many talented artists demonstrating her skill during the event. Noel loves painting and has surrounded her life with art. As a colorist, Skiba often paints on location, plein air, capturing a moment in time in an impressionistic style using watercolor, oil and acrylics. Her colorful style wonderfully captures the beauty of Michigan.

Welcome the arrival of summer in northern Michigan at the Summer Solstice Art Show, where works of art and scenic views are just a step away.

Federal Aviation grant

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has awarded more than $1.9 million in grants to three airports in northern Michigan, one of them in Charlevoix.

The City of Charlevoix will receive $404,130 for improvements at Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The grant will provide funds to purchase snow removal equipment, rehabilitate runway 9/27 and remove a building obstructing the approach to the airport. Combined with $2.45 million awarded in May to airports in Sault Ste. Marie, Houghton and Marquette, this announcement brings the total FAA grant funding for northern Michigan's airports to more than $4.35 million for the year.

NMPHW luncheon

The Northern Michigan Pan-Hellenic Women will hold a noon luncheon meeting, July 2 at the new Charlevoix Library, 220 W. Clinton, Charlevoix. The lunch will be catered by the Grey Gables Inn. Hostesses for the day are Ann Bisbee and Mary Jane Wilson.

The program will be a guided tour of the library conducted by the head librarian.

All Pan-Hellenic members in the area are invited to attend.

Reservations are due by Monday noon, June 30 and can be made by calling 582-9703 or sign up at the Bay View Post Office.

Firefighter propane burn training session

What: Free Firefighter Propane Safety Training and Demonstration

When: 6:30 p.m., July 1

Where: Charlevoix Fire Department, 210 State St.
Charlevoix, MI 49720

Who: All firefighters and first responders from Charlevoix County and surrounding counties including Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego and Antrim

The Michigan Propane Gas Association Emergency Response Team will conduct a FREE Propane Emergency Response Training class for fire service personnel from Charlevoix and surrounding counties on July 1.

This event will feature a dramatic live burn and is open to the public, providing the community an incredible opportunity to see their local fire service in action in a controlled setting. Fire service personnel will be educated in Propane Emergency Response techniques and is free of charge to fire fighters in Charlevoix and surrounding counties.

The Propane Emergency Training Program is a state-certified course for all first responders and has trained over 3,000 to date. Law enforcement personnel, city and township officials as well as news media are encouraged to attend this event.

"Propane is a useful, safe and efficient tool for making our lives safer and more comfortable," said MPGA President Wayne Kohley. "This training will not only raise awareness about the benefits of propane, but also provide invaluable information on its safety issues."

The state-of-the-art training for propane emergencies is divided into a classroom session covering properties and principles of propane, while the outside hands-on session includes live burn interactive scenarios designed to simulate various types of propane emergencies. This training provides Michigan first responders and law enforcement with immediate advice and recommendations for an on site emergency; have on site specialized propane equipment and personnel to assist in remedying a propane emergency.

For more information go to www.UseMichiganPropane.com or www.michigan.gov/cis and type in Propane Emergency Training into the internal search.

Some quick facts about propane gas:

- Michigan consistently ranks as one of the largest consumers of propane in the nation.
- The Environmental Protection Agency recognizes propane as a clean burning alternative fuel and it is not harmful to soil and water.
- Propane releases less carbon dioxide than ethanol, gasoline, kerosene, bio-diesel, diesel, fuel oil and coal and does not contaminate aquifers or soil.
- Propane is tasteless, colorless and odorless and therefore an odorant is added that smells like rotten eggs for safety purposes.

Community art show features national talent

The invitational art show is being presented in the former Charlevoix Public Library with the theme "Look About You" and which will feature the works of prominent local artists who have received national awards and recognition for their work.

"Charlevoix is home to so many outstanding artists. It is a thrill to have an exhibit of their work in such a fabulous venue," remarked Rebecca Glotfelty, chair of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, which is hosting the show.

Participating artists include Todd Warner, nationally known for his whimsical and often humorous sculptures depicting long legged birds, horses, puzzled golfers and more.

Warner resides in Norwood Township with a menagerie of animals that are often the inspiration for his creations.

Bonnie Staffel, a long-time resident of Charlevoix and potter for 60 years will also be exhibiting.

Staffel opened her studio in 1965 for 20 years and has been a distinguished exhibitor at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair since its third season. She was the pioneer artist in the Charlevoix area and urged fellow artists to follow her lead.

Visitors to, and residents of, Charlevoix have collected her work for several decades.

Stephen Kostyshyn, also a resident of Charlevoix and long-time participant in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is a nationally recognized basket maker. Kostyshyn continually is accepted into the most prestigious art fairs in the country and his work has been recognized by the Smithsonian Institution. His baskets are unique in that he creates the rims and bases of his work out of stoneware clay, and finishes them with his lovely glazes before weaving the basket together. His work is included in several periodicals on basket making.

Art by Kostyshyn

The works of Russ and Sue Bolt are almost synonymous with Charlevoix. Residents and visitors to Charlevoix often have a unique white and blue Bolt tile of Charlevoix scenes in their homes. The Bolts' work extends far beyond these tiles and includes paintings and mixed media works. Visitors continue to flock to their studio in the former Grange Hall on Marion Center Road.

Husband and wife, Meredith Krell and Steve Toornman often depict scenes from their camping and hiking excursions in the northern Michigan woods. Krell, a B.F.A graduate of Western Michigan University and Toornman, a graduate of Kendall School of Design, are full-time artists residing in Charlevoix. Meredith is known across the state for her linocut prints, hand painted with watercolors. Steve produces exquisite etchings of Charlevoix scenes as well as oil paintings, which portray images inspired by friends and family and one of his favorite loves – motorcycles.

Many other area artists and media will be included in "Look About You," exhibit which opens from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Friday, June 27 at the former Charlevoix Public Library located at 109 Clinton St with a fundraising reception to meet the artists.

Tickets are $100 per person and may be reserved by calling 237-4330. Proceeds are to support the programming and classes of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

The reception will include complimentary champagne and hors d'oeuvres from Charlevoix's finest restaurants. Jazz guitarist Steve Little with guests Jerry Cameron and Mike Hunter will provide their unique style of music during the evening.

The public is welcome to view the show at no charge from 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 28 and 29. Local musicians will provide listening pleasure both days.

Saturday's schedule includes Alexis Dawdy on violin from 10 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., Rick Beamon on guitar, Joanne Beamon - vocals from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., Singer/Songwriter Jetty Rae will perform her soulful ballads from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., and Alexis Dawdy again from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. Dwain Martin will play his guitar on Sunday.

For more information about the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, the schedule of summer classes, the community show and fundraiser, please call 231-547-2333 or visit www.circle-of-arts.org

Die Soft 2: most anticipated sequel you never heard of

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

"Don McClean was the greatest hero of all time, that is, until he teamed up with his son Donnie jr. All seemed well and the father/son team defended justice and the innocent with distinction and valor ... until that fate(ful) day when, during a routine bust, Donnie jr. was killed in a shoot-out. Where Don McClean is now is anyone's guess."

The previous quote from the "Die Soft 2: The Rise of Team McClean" Web site belies the overwhelming humorous elements of this project being shot, directed and produced in Charlevoix and by Charlevoix residents.

"It's a comedy, like the Naked Gun and Police Academy movies," said Matt Smith, who plays good guy and Team McClean member Zeigelstien in the movie.

"We love '80s comedies, even the bad ones," said fellow actor Ben Macks who plays the lead character Don McClean a coast guard operative. "I wouldn't say it's intelligent humor, but it's something to make you laugh and forget about things for a couple of hours."

The story, which cast and crew say has little, if nothing, to do with the first, picks up with McClean at a very low point in his life.

"He has fallen on some hard times and he's kind of down on himself after his son was killed and he has been MIA for the last seven years," Macks said. "Then, this mission comes up that only he can handle and he's asked to come up with a task force of fellow bumbling heroes."

What ensues is dealings with crooked cops, deceptive government officials and dirty politicians.

"It's really campy and kind of tongue in cheek," Macks said.

The show, aimed at adolescents and adults, has been in production since earlier this January, but writing began nearly one year ago.

"If we were to peg a rating on it, it would be PG-13," Smith said. "It's not completely vulgar, but it's not for wee little kids."

Macks added, "There is basically some swearing and wink-wink kind of humor but nothing you wouldn't see on television."

The feature length movie will be shown at noon on Saturday, July 27 at Charlevoix Cinema III. Cost is $5 per person, and the troupe said without help of people like theater owner Bill Supernaw, they would not have gotten this far.

"A lot of the community came out to help make this happen," said director of photography/editor George Scholey. "The local schools, local businesses and people have been a great help."

To see a trailer of "Die Soft 2: The Rise of Team McClean" go to http://www.myspace.com/diesoft2.

The movie troupe, primarily consisting of five individuals, consists of two separate companies, Scholey's Flaming Cabbage Productions and Smith's Putzes Entertainment group.

"We really couldn't do this movie without George," said Keith Patrick, who plays hero Dirk Longbarrel a crazier incarnation of "Lethal Weapon's" Martin Riggs, a character played by Mel Gibson. "He has the equipment and editing experience."

Scholey has been working with video and editing since 1987.

"Basically we started with Monty Python hits with my brother and friends and stuff like that," he said. "We did it just for fun to keep us sane. I'm a big fan of Broken Lizzard (Super Troopers, Beerfest) and Kevin Smith (Clerks, Clerks II, Dogma). These are guys who started out where we are and pushed it and made it."

Scholey added, "There's no reason why you can't do it around here."

In addition to planning a special, albeit "top secret," participation in this year's Venetian Parade, the fellows will soon unveil another teaser trailer for the sequel.

"We live in a great community and owe the community kudos because, with the exception of a couple places we've asked to use their facilities, they've been very gracious for us not having much credibility to prove that we're legit(imate)," Macks said. "They've been very supportive and, the way we've done this movie, we wouldn't have been able to do in a bigger city."

For more information on merchandise, including mugs and T-shirts, call Macks at 547-9097 or Smith at 675-3495.

"We have no budget whatsoever," Smith said. "So whatever we make on ticket sales and merchandise is going into our next project."

Flaming Cabbage/Putzes hope to produce two projects in 2009.

Additional main cast members for Die Soft 2 including Mike Patrick as police chief Desmond Grapelli, Brad Hall as inventor Doc Marigold, Kevin Evans as The Chameleon and the Die Soft 2 theme song was sung by Kentucky rapper Black Diamond.

The main cast of "Die Soft 2: The Rise of Team McClean" (right) intend to unveil their feature-length movie during Venetian Festival at Charlevoix's Cinema III.

New takeout eatery on Cvx's north side

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Tired of fighting traffic to get to fast food restaurants on the south side of Charlevoix?

The owners of JP Take Out, the north side's newest restaurant were.

"I've been driving by here for a couple of years and saw it was empty," said JP co-owner Jake Jensen. "The community needed something on the north side; not everybody is happy about having to drive across the bridge for lunch."

JP features tacos, burritos, nachos, salads, pasta and toasted submarine sandwiches.

"It's fast-n-good food," said Jensen, the founder of Charlevoix Wireless.

Jensen has two children and spent nearly eight years in the military before coming back to Charlevoix.

Jensen's partner Phil Morris, also a shareholder in Charlevoix Wireless, decided to go into business with his friend shortly after graduating from Northern College with a Bachelor's of Science in mechanical engineering.

"I grew up here and went to school here and just decided to give this a try," Morris said. "I definitely think people should try the hot subs, and really any of our Mexican is good."

Located at 12665 US 31 North located at the Marathon gas station which formerly housed a Taco Bell Express, JP is open Saturday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Jensen and Morris hope to have their drive-through window open for service in coming weeks.

Call in your order at 547-1440 or fax it to 547-1447.

Tall ship could be built in Charlevoix harbor

TALL SHIP

"We certainly plan on being a good neighbor," he said.

However, Sobleski still has concerns.

"In the past summers, the dust has really been a problem and the smell from it is awful," he said. "Dust clean-up only happens about once every two or three weeks and sometimes even then it's not enough. It gets really bad down there."

Mayor Norman Carlson understood where Sobleski was coming from on the issue and agreed that sometimes the dust from the gravel road can get pretty bad.

"Obviously the speeding and the dust are issues we need to think about," he said. "The point of this discussion is to hash out any possible problems and not make any final decisions."

According to the project overview, Schafer wants to also construct two temporary buildings on each end of the ship with possibly an elevated walkway connecting the two buildings. The point of the walkway is to allow people to watch and potentially take part in the ship's construction.

James Young, Charlevoix City Attorney, brought up a couple other issues for the board to think about while in the process of pursuing the project.

"You have to consider that you're dealing with a brand new non-profit organization," said Young. "(The city) should consider some sort of contract to make sure that this non-profit goes through with what they're promising."

The focus of the project is to provide a unique educational opportunity for youths both during the construction of the ship and after the ship is completed and launched.

Schafer is in the process of working with several individuals involved in fund raising, non-profit administration and local educational programs such as Sea Scouts and Northwest Academy.

"With the project's nautical theme and this being Charlevoix, I think it is advantageous for us to have something like this here," Carlson said. "It's being funded by an outside source, so it will cost the city nothing."

Charlevoix City Council could return discussion on this matter as early as their 7 p.m., July 7 meeting at city hall.

Rayder admin' bldg., bus garage under construction

officials to be a $1.4 million combined project, it is now expected to come in at just around $1.3 million.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik reminded the public that funding for the building improvements comes from existing funds and cannot be used for operational expenses under state law.

"Those projects are part of the 2003 sinking fund and are not part of the 2008 bond projects," he said. "The administration building was purchased 20 years ago and the bus garage has been around for, gosh, I can't tell you how long. Both had structural issues and between these projects we should be pretty well set for structural needs for many years to come."

Janik has been quoted in the past as saying it was not prudent to invest money in buildings of such disrepair.

Approved during their October, 2007 meeting, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education OK'd the new bus garage facility, which will offer numerous accommodations the old "bus barn" could not, including housing for 15 buses, office space, conference rooms, larger work areas, hydraulic lifts in vehicle bays, bus washing areas, more storage space and room for a computer server.

"We had budgeted around $450,000 for the bus garage and the bid came in at $409,000, but it will be a little above what we had budgeted because the price of steel went up," Biddle said.

Integrity's winning bid on the bus garage was originally $1,078,000 and beat out the following bidders:

- Hallmark Construction Inc., Traverse City - $1,103,500
- Grand Traverse Construction, Traverse City - $1,196,000
- Birchwood Construction Co., Harbor Springs - $1,429,338
- Colwel-Wangeman Construction, Petoskey - $1,493,928

However, Janik said, "What they (Integrity) did was meet with our architectural firm and they made some modifications to keep the costs lower."

The new budgeted prices comes in under $1 million.

"It's closer to $950,000," Janik said. "We originally budgeted about $1.4 million (for both projects) but after making some changes, it looks like we will come in well below budget."

Biddle added, "The bus garage we hope to be finished by the first of October."

While Charlevoix Public Schools was able to sell their share of the 109 Clinton St. property, formerly Charlevoix Public Library, they are still trying to rid themselves of the former administration building which was last appraised at $199,000.

Sinking funds, the type used to construct the new administration building and bus garage, have been used for previous projects including carpeting, roofing, landscaping, soffits, a gym floor and updates to the science rooms among others at the elementary, middle and high schools.

The sinking fund millage set to expire this June was scrapped for a bond which passed by a vote of the people earlier this spring. Janik was pleased to announce that the bond was purchased at .51 mils, lower than the originally speculated rate of .55 mils.

Charlevoix Schools administration is currently housed in the lower level of Citizens Bank at 201 State St., Charlevoix. They can be reached by calling 547-3200.

A keepsake collection of historic sports and recreation photos from Charlevoix and Emmet counties

Petoskey News-Review
petoskeynews.com • local news you can't get anywhere else

Dear reader,
Woven into the history of Charlevoix and Emmet counties are the families who worked hard, and when the work was done, they played.

In November, The Petoskey News-Review will publish, They Came To Play, a pictorial history book featuring sports, recreation and leisure activities including: skiing, golf, tennis, boating, hunting, snowmobiling, baseball, hockey, bowling and more.

This limited edition book will capture Charlevoix and Emmet county folks at play from the 1800's through the 1970's. Your family snapshots will help us see who we are today by reliving who we were yesterday.

Please look through your old photos and find those special sports, recreation or leisure gems. Then call Dena Sydow at the Petoskey News-Review, 231-439-9313, to arrange a time when you can bring your photos in to us. Dena will review your photos and ask you a few questions about the story behind your pictures and ask you to sign a release. If we use your photos in the book, we will include your name as the the contributor. Time is short, we need to see your photos before August 15.

Thank you for sharing,

Sincerely,

Doug Caldwell
President & Publisher

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed aboard the Alwihta, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodbeck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodbeck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

Is Bay Harbor leachate coming to Charlevoix?

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Petrosky

Charlevoix may join Alba in receiving contaminated water from Bay Harbor.

CMS Land Company and St Marys Cement are discussing the option of transferring contaminated water from Bay Harbor to St Marys Cement mixing plant in Charlevoix for use during the cooling phase of the cement making process.

"CMS Land Company and St Marys are continuing to have very productive conversations," said Dirk Cox, spokesman for St Marys. "St Marys was invited to meet with the Friends of the Jordan team also, and at this point all three parties seem to agree that the concept of us using a portion of the Bay Harbor water in our process is worth pursuing."

The 30,000 to 200,000 gallons of water St Marys uses per day, depending on outside air temperature and the amount of cement being produced, means nearly 50 to 60 percent of CMS daily 135,000 gallons of leachate could go somewhere other than an injection well.

"We hope to combine the contaminants in our product, and that way it will end up in someone's driveway somewhere, which really is the safest place for it to be," Cox said. "Still, we need to run tests to make sure it will end up that way and not get sent out in a smoke stack somewhere."

CMS, a former partner in the Bay Harbor, is now responsible for the seepage of caustic waste along some shoreline areas at the upscale resort and nearby East Park. The seepage results from the leaching of cement kiln dust (CKD), a waste product left over from the cement plant which operated in the area decades ago.

"Strict present and future environmental liability issues and associated risks, such as the current situation where CMS Land is remediating a site where it did not create the environmental concern, needs to be carefully analyzed and weighed before a decision can be made about further pursuing the concept," said Tim Petrosky, area manager for CMS Land.

The contaminants are formed when water passes through deposits of CKD, which remain beneath parts of the park. The leachate is caustic and, if exposed to human skin, can cause severe damage. Officials have also determined that it contains toxic metals such as mercury.

Currently, CMS has set up collection lines to pick up the contaminants before it gets to Little Traverse Bay. After treatment to reduce pH levels to a less harmful level, the waste is trucked to an injection well near Johannesburg and a wastewater treatment plant in Grand Traverse County.

Hatch Act mires sheriff race

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Schneider

Candidate for Charlevoix County Sheriff, Don Schneider, said he is being unfairly targeted by the Hatch Act.

This comes because the Washington, D.C., investigators' special unit, devoted entirely to the 70-year-old federal law, withdrew their original clearance after he sought an advisory opinion and re-opened an investigation into his case this month. Schneider is an employee of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office — where he was the undersheriff until a recent job change, and is a candidate for county sheriff.

"The Hatch Act is 180 degrees from what our constitution gives us, you have to prove yourself innocent under the Hatch Act," Schneider said. "Those of us who are upfront and honest about this whole thing are being punished."

The federal Hatch Act restricts the political activity of employees of the executive branch of the federal government, employees of

Beaver fights Phragmites

BY ELAINE WEST
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

There is no doubt about it: Beaver Island has become a state leader in tackling Phragmites, an invasive reed grass that threatens Michigan's shorelines and a host of native plants and animals.

A joint township public hearing was held on June 24 to discuss the proposed Beaver Island Pragmites Ordinance, a measure designed to allow the townships to treat the invasive flora without first having to gather costly and time-consuming individual permission slips from property owners, and also to give shoreline owners a means to discuss proposed treatment with township officials.

"In a nutshell, we're trying to create a process for more effective treatment," said Bryan Graham, attorney for both St. James and Peaine Townships.

The invasive was first identified approximately five years ago by environmental activist and island resident Pam Grassmick.

The Phragmites quickly began their life's mission, doing what invasive grasses do best: growing into 12-foot high, thick, bamboo-like stands on the shoreline. The invasive grass strangled all native plants in their immediate vicinity.

Grassmick enlisted the support of local property owners group the Beaver Island Association (BIA), both townships, and the advice and assistance of Michigan DNR biologist Brian Mastenbrook.

Two years of community education began with a video produced for shoreline owners, Web site information on the invasive, and numerous articles in the island publications.

In the summer of 2007, the war against Phragmites began in earnest.

Mastenbrook worked with the MDEQ to acquire an island-wide permit for herbicidal treatment.

Funding was acquired in large part through donations by island property owners.

The townships, BIA and Grassmick took leadership roles in organizing for the treatment, and finally a contractor, Superior Environmental Aquatic Services (SEAS) was hired.

Last fall, the SEAS crew treated 397 different sites on the island, some single plants just gaining a foothold, others mature stands of Phragmites.

A recent inspection of the treated areas showed a high kill rate.

"It looks 95-plus percent effective," said Mastenbrook. "It was a very, very good job."

Other communities in Michigan are just becoming aware of this invasive and its threat to shorelines.

In the Saginaw Bay area they have resorted to herbicidal spraying by helicopters because of the density of the stands.

Wildlife and environmental experts from around the state are extremely interested in how Beaver Island has dealt with the situation and made such progress with their rapid response. Grassmick has been asked to be a consultant for the Traverse City area, which is preparing to wage their own war on this invasive. As for Beaver Island, they are gearing up for this year's assault.

"We've been through round one, round two is going to take place this fall," Mastenbrook said. "If we keep up on this, we won't be spraying 27 acres ever again."

Knowing that Phragmites can arrive via Lake Michigan's waves and re-infest an area, groundwork is being laid to also treat High and Garden, two outer islands in the Beaver Archipelago.

A grant of $23,000 has been acquired from the Fish and Wildlife Service to treat the two islands.

A GPS survey of all three islands also will take place this summer.

This fall's follow-up treatment on Beaver Island will be funded mostly through additional donations from property owners.

Knowing that this battle will require vigilance and repeated treatments for some time, the township boards will be discussing options for funding to be continued, perhaps becoming a line item on annual budgets.

Officials from both township boards pledged their ongoing support in this matter.

"I look at this as not only eradication, but education as well," said Peaine Township Supervisor John Works Jr.

As the public hearing concluded, Grassmick was given a hearty round of applause from the large crowd.

"We should make you our Citizen of the Year," joked Works.

The audience joined in his laughter with good reason. In May of 2008, Grassmick received that particular honor from a grateful island community.

Put up or shut up

The following comment was posted on June 24, at www.charlevoixcourier.com

As a fairly recent Charlevoix resident, I have had the pleasure of meeting and getting to know Donald Schneider and am proud to claim this honest, upstanding community man as a friend.

However, if he were to stop me for a traffic stop and/or another legal reason, I'd fully expect him to write me a ticket or arrest me giving the circumstances of the act.

Friendship aside, he is not "soft" as it has been suggested. He is fair, honest and will fully enforce the rules he took an oath to uphold.

That said, why is it that some out there are so proud to make slanderous statements, libelous remarks and out-and-out lies about Donald Schneider, yet are too ashamed to publish their names.

And as for the person who made a complaint about the Hatch Act, after he was OK'd, I sure hope you signed your name to this letter or e-mail.

You know your accusations are public information and when they have been found to be untrue, and they will, you can be prosecuted for filing a false statement and/or sued for defamation of character, libel and slander.

Are you just extremely stupid or so computer illiterate to write an e-mail thinking that can't be traced back to you?

If you had this so-called evidence, why did you wait until now to come forward?

He (Schneider) was notified by the U.S. Office of Special Counsel June 6 that his candidacy for the sheriff's office was not in violation of the Hatch Act.

Did it take you two weeks to think of something to accuse him of? Or were you just unhappy with their decision?

My name is Barbara Hernden and I am not ashamed to state the truth and sign my name.

The human weed

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

The mostly open green space that surrounds our home can not be legitimately called a lawn.

Most definitions of lawn suggest it is land covered by grass kept closely mowed.

Ours is closely mowed, but it is certainly not covered by grass.

There is some grass growing there, but the mowed space is partly covered by at least 23 non-grass kinds of plants.

That figure is based on a count done a few minutes ago, and does not include plants that show up later in the summer or earlier in the spring.

Every one of those 23 kinds of plants, as well as the several kinds of grass, could be described as exotic, invasive plant species.

None of them are native to Michigan, and all of them manage to thrive, even with the constant disturbance of close mowing.

One of the truths of immigration is that the immigrants usually manage most easily in disturbed areas, where human activity has removed or altered all or most of the native plants and animals.

We humans create disturbed areas when we immigrate, and we carry plant and animal immigrants with us wherever we go.

Historically, humans must qualify as the supreme exotic invasive species on the planet.

In the same way that we are learning to celebrate the diversity provided by a wide variety of human immigrants, we might consider the diversity provided by imported plants and animals as a mostly positive thing.

Recent immigrants, whether plants or humans, are likely to be less popular than those that have been here for a couple of hundred years.

But time passes, immigrants integrate and contribute, and it is more and more difficult to recognize them as exotic.

Most of the twenty-plus exotic plants in my yard can be found everywhere in Charlevoix, even on the fringes of golf courses.

It is possible to selectively kill them with proper herbicides, but they will return as long as we continue to disturb and mow places.

It is possible to temporarily eliminate dandelions, for example, from a particular lawn, but imagine trying to eliminate them from Charlevoix.

It is even more difficult to imagine eradicating them from a county or a state.

The same is true of almost any kind of plant that has become established.

We provide the places where such immigrants can thrive and we should not be surprised if they stick around.

They diversify our world, and diversification is generally a good thing.

You may suspect this essay is not solely about things botanical, and you would be correct.

A TASTE OF SUCCESS

Editor:

The 5th annual "Taste of Charlevoix" on June 21 was a big success again this year. There was a great turnout and ticket sales were steady the entire day and fun was had by all. Several vendors sold out of food early and had to re-stock throughout the day.

Everyone who attended had a great time, enjoying the wonderful food, entertainment and beautiful weather. The Taste of Charlevoix committee would like to thank all of our participating vendors, the Chamber member businesses who donated their time or materials to the Taste event, our generous sponsors, the City of Charlevoix and its staff, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and its staff and all of the volunteers who helped that day. Without all of you, this would not have been such a success. We look forward to having our next Taste in the newly renovated East Park and making it even more successful and enjoyable for our community.

DO SOMETHING ALREADY

Editor:

Why is every issue to come before the Charlevoix City Council so complex for them? At least over the last 20 years it has taken years for them to approve such things as the public swimming pool and the new East Park. I'm sure there are many others I am not recalling. I understand the financial side of it. That could have been resolved months ago if the Council had acted in a timely fashion. Now it's time to act! Quit dawdling. Do the job, use common sense, of course be careful with the public funds entrusted to you, but do something! Waiting is obviously costing money. At this rate grants won't come in in time to heat September 1 and as the price goes up, the grant money will still be insufficient. Constant repair of the old machine may give you only a few years of service, at a cost. A new one will give many years of light expense. The Council is too mired in its inertness. I'm fairly certain the current members are not the same ones who stalled on the pool issue so I can only conclude there is a genetic problem with being on the Council. It's called "foot-dragging."

TICKLED PINK

Editor:

The 6th Annual Charlevoix/Emmet County Pink Ribbon Ride was held on Saturday, June 21, and raised more than $25,000, with donations still coming in.

This will provide both the Circle of Strength through Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Regional Hospital's Breast Health Fund with a substantial donation to help promote awareness, fund programs in early detection and education, provide support for women and their families, and make available mammograms and ultrasounds for uninsured women in Charlevoix and Emmet County.

There were 261 registered riders this year, 60 more than last year, with our largest contingent of first-time participants.

The riders through their personal fundraising efforts brought in more than half of our proceeds. Without their dedication, this event would not be as successful as it has become.

Beth Carrington of East Jordan raised over $2,700 through her personal sponsorships and took home a pink Marin Portofino bicycle.

We had some great prizes this year and the top 15 fundraisers were awarded prizes, donated by local area bike shops and businesses.

I extend my personal thanks to so many of the businesses in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Petoskey, without whom we could not have put together this ride.

Their donations of funds, goods and services made it possible for us to put on this event and keep our expenses to a minimum.

Finally I extend my deepest thanks to Jean McDonough from CAH Foundation and Therese Green from NMRH Foundation; Diane Gorkiewicz, Kim Stevens, Dee Vincent, Gay Pung and Kay Holley from the Circle of Strength; Donna Moll, Candy Greene, Helen Truchan, Judy Jackson, Sue Huston, Dee Vincent, Missy Elder, Diane Gorkiewicz, Diane Cox, and Randi Hunter and her staff for manning our water stops; Rod Stevens, Craig Reynolds, Kim Stevens, Kay Holley and Bob Roloff and his crew for running our SAG vehicles; John McClorey for having his services available to riders, Cheryl Hofweber and Terri Reynolds for marking the route, Lori and Tori Cheadle, Lisa Should St Marys Cement use leachate water from Bay Harbor?

WORD on the street

Charlevoixans voice their opinions ...

Tony Duerr
"Those of us who aren't technical experts on the matter need to rely on the experts to solve these kinds of environmental problems."

Zondra Gardner
"Definitely in favor of them getting rid of the water, although there may be other options."

Steven Steinglass
"I don't know enough about the dispute to make a good decision."

Aubry Kopytko
"I think it's a good idea to send it to the cement company as oppose to just sending it to Grand Traverse or Alba."

Regulators: Permit needs still unclear

If CMS Land and St. Marys Cement ultimately decide to transfer wastewater collected along the Bay Harbor shoreline to the Charlevoix cement plant for use in a cooling process, CMS area manager Tim Petrosky said they would need to pursue permits from both the U.S. Environmental Protection Ageney and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

"Applying for a permit is way down the road if this is found to be a viable option," he added.

Mick Hans, a Chicago-based EPA spokesman, said the agency isn't comfortable discussing specifics of the permitting process since the companies haven't yet approached it for any permits.

"It's too early to talk about specific scenarios," Hans said.

Bob Wagner, an environmental manager at the DEQ's Gaylord office, said the state's permit requirements for the wastewater idea would depend on exactly how the liquid would be put to use at St. Marys. Depending on this, Wagner said DEQ potentially would need to consider revising the plant's permit for surface water discharge or air emissions, or both.

"We have not received any notice of intent or anything along that line," he added.

One, two, recycling's for you!

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

When she didn't like the teaching tools she had at her disposal, Nicole Sterrett decided to create one of her own.

The second-grade teacher, who's curriculum included recycling, said the materials made available to her simply didn't offer enough to her students.

"All of the books in our library were so old and there really wasn't anything recent written about recycling," she said.

This led to Sterrett writing her own children's book about recycling. She wrote it so she could use it in her classroom and get her kids more interested in the environment.

"I have four of my own kids and as cheesy as it sounds, the future really does start with the youth," she said. "I just want my kids to enjoy the earth when they get to be my age."

The artwork for the book proved to be one of the hardest parts. Since she wasn't much of an artist, she decided to do cut-out figures instead. The one hand drawn character in her book is a snake named "Save-It Sam."

"The artwork took me about two weeks to do. I had the whole counter top covered in cut-out figures and pictures for the book. My husband really helped out a lot by playing with the kids and keeping them occupied while I worked," she said.

Sterrett said that whenever they'd talk about recycling to the kids, she would always repeat the message that the best thing they could do was keep others informed.

"The more people I could get aware of recycling and doing little things to save the earth, the better... that was my goal, to get people informed," she said.

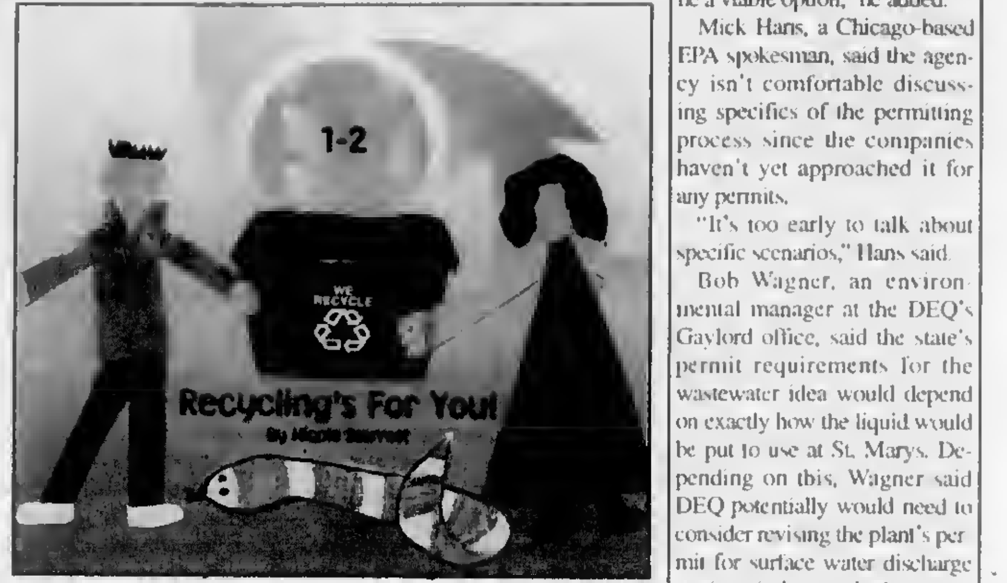
There's a nursery rhyme that goes along with the book and it follows along to the tune of "1, 2, Buckle My Shoe." She felt the tune of the rhyme was appropriate for her book entitled, "1-2, Recycling is For You!"

Though Sterrett is very proud of the book, she's also very modest about it. She did everything for the book herself, except for a minimal amount of help she got from a handful of supporters. One of which was Charlevoix Elementary Librarian, Margie Culver, who helped her rearrange a couple minor things in the story.

"Jodi Thompson, the music teacher was also a big help with researching and providing some sheet music to make sure I didn't infringe on anyone else's work or anything," she said.

Sterrett's next children's book is going to be environmentally focused as well, but she plans on narrowing it down to energy conservation.

"1-2, Recycling is For You," hasn't been distributed yet, but look for it to hit local bookstores in the coming months. Those interested in purchasing the book immediately can go to www.publishamerica.com and order it there.



Charlevoix Elementary Teacher Nicole Sterrett has written a book on recycling for use in her class.

JATL: Jazz @ the Library
Wednesdays in July and August, 7:00 pm
Come learn about the great jazz masters and listen to their music in Grandma Geri's Children's Garden. BYOC (bring your own chair). In case of rain, JATL will be held in the Community Room.

July 2 As the second season of JATL opens, we feature our illustrious piano player, Steve Stargardt, who will introduce our listeners to the contributions of Jazz pianists, such as Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Dave Brubeck and Bill Evans. Accompanied by bass and drums, this concert will reenact some of the great piano jazz trios from the past.

July 9 Session two will feature one of our favorite players, Steve Little, who will perform the music of great Jazz guitarists such as Wes Montgomery, Charlie Christian, and Joe Pass. Steve is also an accomplished vocalist, and will add his talents to the backing of the JATL trio.

Classical Music Lecture
Saturday, July 12, 2:00 pm
Jung-Ho Pak, conductor of the Cape Cod Symphony Orchestra and Music Director of the World Youth Symphony Orchestra at Interlochen, will be discussing "How to Listen to Classical Music." If classical music intimidates you, Maestro Pak will take the fear out of listening to classical music by explaining how to follow the architectural "map" of a piece of music. He'll discuss how a composer uses different tricks of the trade to build excitement, to fool you, and to inspire you. A reception honoring Library Director, Valerie Meyerson will follow. Reservations appreciated. 237-7340.

OBITUARIES

William Paul Behrens: Nov. 9, 1916 - June 22, 2008

William Paul Behrens, 91, of Charlevoix, passed away Sunday, June 22, 2008, with his family at his side.

A memorial service was held 10 a.m., Saturday, June 28, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, the Reverend Chip Sauer officiating.

Bill was born Nov. 9, 1916, in Arcadia to Henry and Othelia (Gerndt) Behrens.

He served his country during World War II in Burma as a Staff Sergeant in the US Army.

After returning home, Bill moved his family to Chicago, where he studied culinary arts to become a chef.

He owned his own business and he worked at many famous hotels and country clubs, eventually retiring from the American Medical Association as their Executive Chef.

After retiring, he moved to Charlevoix.

Bill fished, enjoyed his family and loved the Lord.

He is survived by his wife of 67 years, Clearine; daughters, Sandy and her husband, Bernie "Sonny" Ward III of Charlevoix; Mary and her husband James Danhour of Parker, Colo.; son, Gary and his wife Waletta Behrens of Chicago; grandchildren, Christie Ward, Brian (Maegan) Ward, Kelly Ward, Heather Ward, Brett Behrens, Brittany Behrens.

Bill was preceded in death by two sisters and five brothers.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

Cvx Democrats at local library

Election year planning will take a major step when Charlevoix County Democrats gather July 10th at the Charlevoix Public Library, at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in this year's election is invited to attend, learn what local Democrats are doing, and participate in future events.

"We've got a full agenda with planning for the fall election at the top," commented Bill Lovett, chair of the local Democrats.

Charlevoix Democrats, who will open a headquarters in Charlevoix Labor Day, are planning for summer events that include area parades, a picnic, work with individual candidates, and the Rock the Vote For Change rally and voter registration event planned for July 31 at Northern Lights Recreation Center in Emmet County.

"This election year is generating incredible enthusiasm," said Lovett. "We have more volunteers than ever. There's excitement about candidates from our Presidential nominee Senator Barack Obama to our own candidate for state house, Connie Saltonstall."

Leading the agenda at the July 10 meeting is an update by Ryan Nelson from Petoskey on the Rock The Vote for Change Event.

That free event, which will feature a number of well-known local bands, food and beverages, is being organized by Emmet and Charlevoix County Democrats and local volunteers with the Obama campaign.

Lovett said that other items include planning for the county picnic and organizing campaign volunteers.

The meeting that begins at 7p.m., will be preceded by a "dutch-treat" dinner, to which everyone is invited, at the Villager Pub at 5:30.

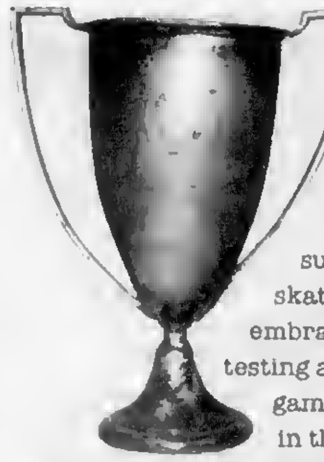
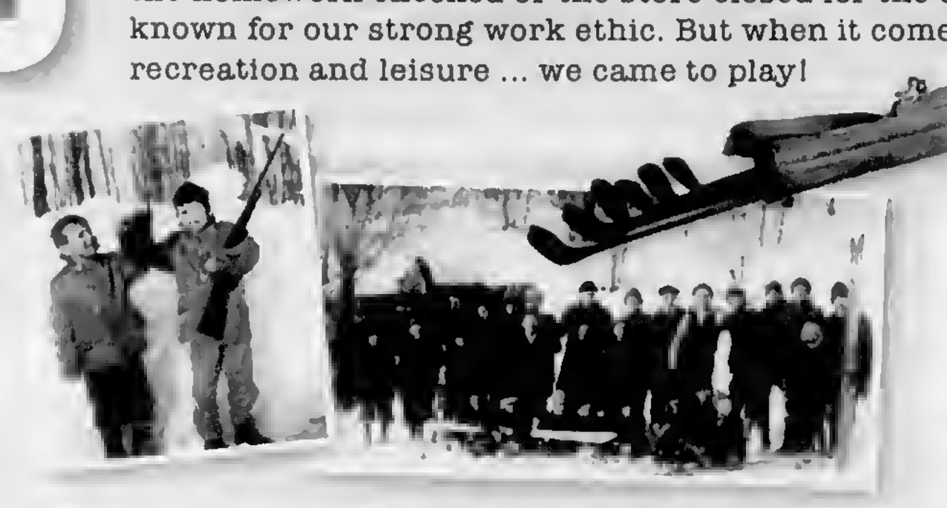
Sports & Leisure Photos From Emmet & Charlevoix Counties, 1800-1970s

They Came to Play – the Up North Way!

All work and no play makes for a dull life. And folks up north have known that since Victorian days. We've always added leisure, sports and fun to our week—after the work was done, the homework checked or the store closed for the day. We were known for our strong work ethic. But when it comes to sports, recreation and leisure ... we came to play!



Whether traditional games like football and basketball or unconventional sports such as croquet or speed skating, area residents embrace competition, skill-testing and the love of the game. We fish, hunt, boat in the great outdoors. To satisfy the need for speed, we ride horses, bikes, motorcycles and drive race cars. We skate, ski (summer & winter), canoe, jog and camp. We box, dance, jump rope, cheerlead and play cards. (Lots of cards, especially Euchre.) Plus there's golf, baseball, softball, hockey, soccer, wrestling, bowling, billiards, track and field and much, much more. We get involved and enjoy it, win or lose.



Yes, we love sports and recreation in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. The News-Review will be publishing a book of sports and leisure photos from the two-county area. Similar to the previous book, Million-Dollar Memories, They Came To Play will capture the essence of our people at play. You won't want to miss the opportunity to add this entertaining book to your home library.

Will you share your sports and recreation photos?

If you have photos of folks in Charlevoix or Emmet counties taking time out to have fun from the 1880s through the 1970s, action shots or team shots — we would like to publish them in this new book. We will take good care of each of your precious photographs and will return them after publication. Each photo you contribute will include your name.

LETTERS POLICY

Readers are encouraged to write letters to the editor addressing pertinent topics of community interest. The Courier editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters for length, correct grammar, libel and content.

Letters to the editor must be signed by the author, and the name of the author will appear with published letters. Letters should only have one author, but we will accept up to three separate signatures on a letter. We do not publish unsigned letters.

Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and not exceed 450 words. The deadline for letters is noon the Friday before publication.

An address and daytime phone number should accompany the letter for verification purposes.

Send letters to: Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI, 49720, fax to (231) 547-4992 or e-mail your letter to news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Canadian scam

A Charlevoix County resident was recently involved in a scam that cost her $5,100 out of her savings. The scam is as follows: Grandmother receives a call from the alleged grandson stating "grandma I've been arrested in Canada for fishing without a license. I'm in jail and need $2,800 for bond to get out of jail." The caller also states that he has a cold and his voice is slightly distorted. The bond money is requested to be sent via MoneyGram to Canada. Second phase of the scam, additional call is received from a male identifying himself as her grandson's attorney stating that he now needs $2,300 for fines and costs so he can leave Canada. The fine and costs money is sent via MoneyGram and the criminals taking advantage of the grandparent have received $5,100. Canadian authorities indicate this is an ongoing problem and scam that happens frequently.

HAPPY 25TH BIRTHDAY

Editor:

Thanks to all the nice people who came to help us celebrate our twenty five years in business at the Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix. From June 4 through June 7, many took advantage of the clothing sale as well as the prizes and tasty treats.

We appreciate their patronizing us for the last 25 years.

We are a non-profit organization, sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

We sell used clean donated clothing and other merchandise at nominal prices and approximately two-thirds of the revenue is directed to the needy and non-profit organizations.

In our 25 years of business, we have extended over two million dollars to these recipients.

With God's blessing and the community, we hope to be in this ministry for another 25 years.

July 4 parades, festivities

At 10 a.m., the July 4 parade in Charlevoix will be held on Friday.

The parade will start at the American Legion and go through Veterans Park and is planned to end in East Park.

If East Park is still incomplete at that time, the closing of the parade will take place at Bridge Park.

During the closing of the parade, there will be a speaker, and the Charlevoix City Band will be performing as well as the church choir from Bible Baptist Church.

The conclusion of the parade should take place around 11:30 a.m.

After the parade, come down and celebrate the launching of the Mackinaw, a hand-crafted cedar sailboat.

The launching will take place at Dock A in the City Marina at around 11:30 a.m.

According to shipbuilder Bob Schafer, it's sure to be a "never before attempted style of launch."

The City Marina is located down by Bridge Park.

At noon on July 4, Horton Bay will hold its parade.

Teenager saves house from fire

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Cecil Drost got a call from his granddaughter at about 8:30 a.m. She was the only person in the house and it was on fire

Whitney Drost, who was 13 at the time, woke up on June 13 to smoke. When she opened the door to her room, she heard a crackling noise and saw that the dishwasher was on fire. Thinking quickly, she grabbed her cell phone and ran out of the house.

"I left the house, called 911 and got the dog out," she said. "Then I called my grandpa because he's just up the road a little bit and after that I called my Dad."

Her grandfather, Cecil, who lived a quarter of a mile away from their Phelps Road home, rushed to the scene.

"By the time I got there, I could see flames in the kitchen," he said

Whitney had grabbed a yard hose which was tangled with another hose and the two of them straightened it out across the yard. The quick-witted Whitney dragged her end to a hydrant attached to a well.

After securely tightening her end to a faucet, she yelled to her grandfather that it was on.

"I waited for about 10 seconds and nothing was happening, then I thought, 'oh no' but then water came shooting out," Cecil said. "It was the first time this season the hose had been used, so it was a little dry."

Whitney's father, Larry Drost, was going into work at the time and when he got the call from his daughter, he headed back home.

"The fire department got there in about 10 or 15 minutes after I called 911, and my Dad got there a little after I called him," said Whitney.

Before the fire department arrived, Whitney had successfully put the fire out.

"There was so much black smoke inside of the house (after the fire was out) that you couldn't see anything in front of you," she said.

Even though the fire was out, once the fire department got to the scene, they soaked the interior of the home to ensure no further fire or smoke damage, according to Whitney.

What impressed the grandfather most was how Whitney kept her cool throughout the situation and didn't panic.

"I knew everything was going to be all right," she said. "I just don't really freak out that easy about things like that."

Both Whitney's father and grandfather were irritated by early reports which, according to them, were made to sound as if it may have been Whitney's fault, or that it was the result of a cooking mishap.

"I just want other kids to learn from her story. She deserves all of the credit," Cecil said. "She was quick and knew what to do and I think she's a good example for others to follow."

Larry's family is now currently living at the Edgewater Inn until their house is repaired.

"They say it will be about three months before we can go back home," he said.

The fire damage in the Drost home was extensive enough that the family could be living elsewhere for up to three months.

Beaver community center doors open

The Beaver Island Community Center opened Tuesday, July 1 with a reception at the facility.

There was a ribbon cutting ceremony and guided tours of the center. Wednesday, July 2 residents and visitors are invited to Paradise Bay Park to join with the descendants of Beaver Island's first community members in commemorating their ancestors' arrival on the shores of the archipelago. Upon the departure of the Emerald Isle at 11:30 a.m., Native American drums, flutes and even a fiddler will herald the approach of canoes from around Whiskey Point. After the travelers disembark, short speeches of welcome and remembrance will be followed by a Native American Hoop Dancing performance on shore by Raymond Shenoskey, an award-winning national competitor in the Hoop Dance who resides in Petoskey.

Everyone is invited to the Community Center for an afternoon of Native American music, dance, food, art and games beginning at 2 p.m. with a women's drum group from the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa & Chippewa Indians. The festivities will conclude back in Paradise Bay Park with a brief ceremonial blessing and thanks for the day's gifts at 4:30 p.m.

Thursday, July 3 welcomes the musical wit, wisdom and inimitable entertainment of

The Chenille Sisters to the Center's auditorium stage with a matinee performance at 2 p.m. and an evening performance at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 for the matinee and $20 for the evening performance and may be purchased by calling (231) 448-2022, or in person at McDonough's Market or Montage (across from the library on Donegal Bay Road).

Friday, July 4 celebrates our country's "birthday" with cake for everyone at noon in the Welcome Center, followed by a recognition of Beaver Island's veterans at 12:45 p.m. in the auditorium, featuring performances by the Beaver Island Community Choir. The celebration wraps up in time for the annual Fourth of July parade and resumes with the premiere of the first "Friday Night Flick", Walt Disney's Enchanted at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $7.50 at the door, or are available at a discount by becoming a Beaver Island Community Center Partner For Activities. For more information call 231 448-2022 or visit the Web site at www.pabi.beaverisland.org. Saturday, July 5 holds a celebration of the Island's rich Irish heritage featuring lasting links to the old country through tasty treats and tea, oral histories, and musical and dance performances beginning at 2 p.m. and culminating in an evening of Irish song and dance at 8 p.m.

Islanders, and those with an Island connection, musicians Edward Palmer, Danny Gillespie, Danny Johnston, Cindy Gillespie-Cushman, John McCafferty, Brian Roman, and Glen Hendrix will perform. Admission is free and the cash bar opens at 7 p.m.

Sunday, July 6 wraps up the grand opening celebration with a community-wide invitation to attend a special interdenominational blessing and consecration of the new Beaver Island Community Center by the community's spiritual leaders at 11:30 a.m.

Following the blessing will be an engaging afternoon of lively competition for young and old alike with billiards, euchre, cribbage, and board-game tourneys, as well as the first of many Sunday afternoon movie matinees.

The Community Center will be open regularly to the public 7:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sundays.

Information on activities and events can be found in the Welcome Center, at www.pabi.beaverisland.org, or by calling (231) 448-2022.

For the week ending June 27

• Harbor Master Building (HMB)

All of the interior work on the HMB is complete less a little bit of clean up. The architect has provided a punch list to Hallmark Construction Inc. (HCI) today for the interior of the building. In reviewing the punch list, all of the items are very minor and will not hold up the completion or opening of the building. This shows that all of the contractors involved have performed a very thorough job completing their portions of the work. HCI is already starting to work on the punch list items and should be able to complete them by the end of next week. HCI is currently working with the Charlevoix County Building Department to separate the electrical permits from the two buildings so that the Building Department can issue an occupancy permit for the HMB while the Performance Pavilion (PP) is being completed. All of the railings on the rooftop have been installed and are soon to be painted. The HCI trailer has been removed from the site.

• Performance Pavilion (PP)

The interior finishes continue throughout the building. Jeff Kroesing, HCI's superintendent, is now working out of the PP staging area. City staff will have a training session on the operations of the mechanical, heating and cooling systems in this building on Wednesday, July 2. The stage floor has been polished and the control joints have been cut. Overall the stage floor looks very nice. The rooftop of the PP is almost 100% complete except for the addition of some planting soil and finishing the painting of the handrails

• Interactive Water Fountain (IWF)

All of the pumps, filters and nozzles are fully functional and operational.

• General Site Work

Starting from the south and working north, plantings and final grading for the sod should be complete by the end of Saturday, June 28 (South of the PP). Plantings along the promenade continue. By the end of today the irrigation system will be fully functional from south of the PP to Plaza C, where the flagpoles are located. The irrigation contractor is currently working in the area between Plaza C and Plaza B. Manthei Development Corp. (MDC) is now placing and grading the soil between the PP and Plaza C. If time permits today, HCI will pour the concrete that will complete the walkway in Plaza C from Bridge Street to the promenade. HCI has removed all of the extra re-rod etc. to the south of Plaza A. This will allow MDC to install the fill material needed, get the rough grades established and allow the irrigation contractor to continue working north. By the end of Saturday, June 28 the stonemasons will be finished except for one set of steps to veneer and some other minor items. The schedule now is to start the re-work of Clinton Street next Tuesday, July 1. Drivers are asked to avoid driving on E. Clinton Street to help minimize traffic congestion. The wheelchair-accessible walkway to the south of the HMB is about 80% complete. Once there is no need for equipment to use this as an access the remaining portion will be poured.

Reading Rainbow winner

Winners have been announced for the 14th Annual Reading Rainbow "Young Writers and Illustrators Contest" at WCMU public television.

The top place contestants were chosen out of a pool of 208 entries from central and northern Michigan.

To enter, children in grades kindergarten through 3rd grade created their own books complete with illustrations, and sent them to WCMU for judging.

First-grader Sophia Thompson of Charlevoix won first-place for her submission.

"The purpose of the annual 'Reading Rainbow Young Writers and Illustrators Contest' is to encourage literacy, creativity and fun among children in grades K-3," said WCMU's Ready to Learn Coordinator Charlotte Galgoci.

The first-place winners in each grade level will be treated to a pizza party in June at WCMU to celebrate their success.

They will also be featured in on-air spots for CMU Public Radio and will be videotaped reading their stories for air on CMU Public Television.

Additionally, each first-place story and its illustrations will be available to read on WCMU's Web site, www.wcmu.org throughout the summer.

Entries were judged on originality, creativity, storytelling and integration of copy with illustrations.

Judges for this year's competition were Lise Mitchell, Director, Chippewa River District Library; Sue Ann Martin, Dean, College of Communication and Fine Arts, Central Michigan University; and Karen Adams, Dean, College of Education and Human Services, Central Michigan University.

Local first place winning stories will be sent on to the national Reading Rainbow "Young Writers and Illustrators Contest." Judging of the national contest entries will take place in May, and national winners - Grand Prize, Second Place and Third Place - will be announced in June 2008.

United Way celebration

Supporters of Char-Em United Way gathered to celebrate the success of its recent campaign, thank those involved, distribute community investment allocations to partner agencies, and make the annual John Newton Awards. United Way President, Joenne Curtis, welcomed guests. She thanked everyone for their role in raising $323,428 in pledges and donations. It was a record amount for the local United Way. Curtis acknowledged the Board of Directors, other volunteers, and staff who worked on the fall United Way campaign. Shawn and Doug Hall, Campaign Co-Chairs, were honored for their leadership. Curtis thanked event sponsors Circuit Controls Corporation, Harbor Industries, and Arbor Associates. For more information about Char-Em United Way contact (231) 487-1006 or charemuw@sbcglobel.net.

DENNY WAY

Great Lakes Energy Board of Directors

My name is Denny Way. Along with my wife Jeanne, we live in Norwood Township in Charlevoix County. I am seeking a position on the Great Lakes Energy Board Of Directors. Tradition and vision are driving factors in Great Lakes Energy. Many folks remember the days of electricity coming to rural areas. GLE has a history of quality service at the best prices possible. At the same time, energy needs are changing and Directors need to be focused on future electric sources while continuing to deliver timely service. You are the owners of GLE, and as your representitive I will be available to you with any questions or concerns you may have. Please check your July issue of Country Lines magazine and vote for Denny Way. I look forward to serving you.

Thank you, Denny Way

Military academy

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) is accepting applications from students seeking a congressional nomination to the U.S. Air Force Academy, U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and U.S Merchant Marine Academy.

"Each year I am truly impressed with the talented and accomplished young men and woman who apply for this prestigious nomination," Stupak said. "I look forward to learning more about the bright and driven young people who are eager not only to improve themselves through this opportunity but also committed to serving our great country."

To be eligible for a congressional nomination, applicants must be a legal resident of Michigan's 1st Congressional District, at least 17 years old and not past his or her 23rd birthday by July 1 of the year of academy entry, unmarried with no dependents, a United States citizen of high moral character, and able to meet high leadership, academic, physical and medical standards.

To assure that nominations to the service academies are based on merit and every applicant has a fair chance to compete for available openings, Stupak uses a Citizens Advisory Committee made up of community representatives from throughout the Michigan's 1st Congressional District. The committee reviews candidate application files, interviews the candidates and recommends selections for nominations.

"I greatly value the time and effort the men and women on the Citizens Advisory Committee put into helping select students to represent northern Michigan at our nation's service academies," Stupak said.

To be eligible for an interview, all necessary paperwork must be completed by Oct. 11.

All recommendations are based on a competitive application process.

Application information may be obtained by calling Stupak's Crystal Falls office at (906) 875-3751 or toll free (800) 950-7371.

Additional information can also be found on Stupak's Web site at www.house/gov/stupak by clicking on the "Service Academies" heading at the top of the home page.

Ride the Yankee Lady

At 10 a.m., July 18, the Yankee Lady B-17 will make a low pass over Paradise Bay prior to landing at Beaver Island's Municipal Airport.

Other vintage aircraft will also be on display throughout the weekend of the Beaver Island Air Show July 18 and 19, depending on weather conditions.

Public rides on the Yankee Lady will be available for $425 per person. The vintage plane accommodates up to 10 passengers at a time.

Riders will be able to sign-up on site or make advanced reservations by contacting Dave Wright at the Yankee Air Museum, (734) 483-4030.

Reservations are recommended for a family group. Rides are tax deductible donations to the museum.

Public tours of the beautiful polished aluminum plane will be available for a small donation. One of only 12 still able to take flight, the Yankee Lady is the finest flying example of the venerable B-17 in the world.

For more information on the 1945, B-17 G model plane, visit the Yankee Air Museum online www.yankeeairmuseum.org.

IGN's mission: aid those in crisis worldwide

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Tim Salmonson's IGN (Invision Global Network) is on a mission to help people.

IGN is a nonprofit organization that helps put together trips for groups to go on and help people in crisis throughout the world.

"There are three ways people can get involved," he said. "The first way is to go on a trip yourself, the second is by becoming a partner and the third is by simply donating money."

Salmonson grew up in Charlevoix and set up his home base for IGN in St. Petersburg, Fla. He's come back to his hometown to try to get some residents from the area involved.

"I've gone on about 70 trips myself and we've put together somewhere around 12 trips through IGN," he said.

To go on one of these trips, it will cost around $2500 plus airfare. The price includes logistical things, such as tools, food, transportation, housing, translators and project funds.

Salmonson said, if patrons are planning on going on a trip over the Atlantic or Pacific, they should plan to be gone for at least two weeks. If going on a trip to Central or South America, they can plan for an eight day trip.

IGN is an organization dedicated to developing strategic partnerships using holistic practices to help people reach their full potential in life.

One of the ways IGN is doing this is through a social networking site, www.myglobalconnection.org, which connects people who share similar concerns for the world.

With an emphasis on Judeo-Christian values, Salmonson encourages everyone to get involved, in particular, college-aged people and church groups. Church groups are especially encouraged because, according to him, they know what it means to go and help people elsewhere.

Salmonson has people from all over the country getting involved in IGN. Even one of his friends from Chicago, Cindy Gillie, left corporate America last year to come and join the group and become a trainer herself.

IGN is different from other mission groups, Salmonson explains, because they don't just drop off food and water and assume that's going to fix the problem(s) in a particular town or village. Instead, one of his groups will go in, survey the community and try to figure out specifically what the people need, whether it be clean water, medicine, better living conditions, etc.

"It's kind of like the old adage, 'give a man a fish, he'll eat for a day, but teach him how to fish and he'll eat for a lifetime...'" said Salmonson. "We want to go in there and work with these people to help them get what they need, whether this is teaching them how to garden, or farm, or fish, or use tools we provide them with."

A few of the places Salmonson's groups have traveled to have included Thailand after the Tsunami and Haiti after they were hit by Hurricane Jean. In those cases, they brought food and cleaning supplies to those countries.

Anyone interested in more information about IGN should visit: www.invisionglobal.org.

St Marys proposes to use run-off in cooling process

ST MARYS

CMS has received approval to operate a more than 2,000-foot deep injection well 35 miles south of Petoskey to dispose of the leachate.

"It jeopardizes Lake Charlevoix and the Jordan River watersheds," said Ray Bier spokesman for Friends of the Jordan Watershed, the northern Michigan environmental group spearheading the fight against the Alba well. "Everyone is in a different situation here. The bottom line is that it makes no sense to take the problem from Emmet County to Antrim County."

Noting the early stage of the research, Petrosky said transfer of the wastewater to St. Marys is being considered as one interim approach to handling the seepage; and perhaps as a long-term approach as well. Given the quantity of wastewater generated at Bay Harbor and East Park, he noted that the St Marys idea wouldn't divert all of the seepage proposed for injection in Alba.

CMS doesn't yet have a clear idea of how the St Marys idea would compare on a cost basis to other seepage disposal options, Petrosky added.

According to St Marys officials, any quantity of water they can draw from Bay Harbor's contaminated site is less leachate that will end up in the Alba well.

"St Marys currently consumes water to control gas and material temperatures within various parts of the cement manufacturing process," Cox said. "The water currently used for this purpose is a combination of Lake Michigan and other waters collected within the plant in our own drain fields. We propose to use some of the Bay Harbor water to displace as much of the Lake Michigan water as possible."

He added, "We all seem willing to discuss this if there is net environmental benefit."

While CMS has yet to commit the St Marys plan, Petrosky said CMS will "evaluate" all potential long-term water disposal options and is "reviewing the technical, environmental and legal issues associated with the concept."

Bier and the Friends of the Jordan are willing to continue discussions with both CMS and St Marys on bringing water to Charlevoix. However, they remain adamant that the Alba injection well must not be used.

"It's not only a bad idea, but it solves nothing in the long run," Bier said. "The well they're considering in Alba is only 2,100 feet deep and a deep well injection is supposed to be from 4,000 to 10,000 feet deep."

He added, "It's not our view that this (water) should be put down a deep well anywhere. There are other alternatives that are reasonable towards public health and safety and they should all be explored."

Bier also said "I don't really have anything against CMS or Bay Harbor or any of the people involved in this whole leachate problem. What I have a problem with is the transfer of this towards Alba. All I want to do is protect our watersheds."

Cox offered no opinion on the Alba well issue, but said CMS is prudent in taking their time to review all legal obligations associated with St Marys potential use of the waste water.

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, a Petoskey-based watershed services and advocacy group, has followed the contamination and cleanup issues at Bay Harbor for the past several years.

"At this point in time, any and all potential alternatives and pollution prevention measures should be evaluated to determine the best resolution for the environment and the community," Tip of the Mitt policy specialist Jennifer McKay said.

With the limited information currently available about the St. Marys idea, McKay said a preliminary natural resources concern would involve air emissions. Noting that the CKD leachate has chemicals which could pose environmental concerns if released as a gas, she said she hopes such concerns are examined as the idea is researched.

"The idea to my knowledge, came from St. Marys," she said. "I commend St. Marys for trying to help come up with an alternative that would be best for the community."

Is Hatch Act outdated?

HATCH

the District of Columbia government and some state and local employees who work in connection with federally funded programs.

All officers and employees subject to the Hatch Act are restricted from soliciting, accepting or receiving political campaign contributions, and they may not use their official authority to influence the result of an election. These individuals are also not allowed to run for elective office in a partisan election. People are free to obtain an opinion from the Office of Special Counsel, and can even take a disagreement with the government agency to court. Complaints can be filed anonymously.

Rep. Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, has introduced legislation, H.R. 4272, that would limit the Hatch Act in municipalities with a population less than 100,000 people.

Although Stupak would not comment on any specific Hatch Act investigations, he has been outspoken that the law needs to change.

"I am concerned about the confusion caused by the way this law is applied to local candidates who work in connection with federally funded programs," said Stupak. "Unfortunately, the Hatch Act, in its current form, may severely limit which residents can serve in local office."

Recently, Sheriff George Lasater amended Schneider's job title and duties, hoping to bring him into compliance under the federal act by removing most of his authority.

"I think the Hatch Act is being abused by parties who may want to take advantage of it to embarrass the sheriff's office and candidates out of it," Lasater said.

Schneider is running against Don Sproul, a former 25-year sheriff's department employee. Sproul has declined to comment on Schneider's investigation while it is open.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners have also declined to comment on the investigation.

Reflections of Superior is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. In 2001 and 2003, a rotating crew of artists sailed ahoard the Alwihta, a homemade replica of an historic wooden sailboat built by Fritz Seegers of Kalamazoo, around the circumference of Lake Superior from ice-out in June until the storms of October. The Reflections of Superior exhibition is a collection of work inspired by that voyage. Visit the center to see the work of seven of the artists who made the journey. Included in the exhibition are drawing/digital works by Fritz Seegers, etchings by Ladislav Hanka of Kalamazoo, woodblock prints by Mary Brodbeck of Kalamazoo, paper constructions by Cynthia Coté of Calumet, oil paintings by Brent Spink of Kalamazoo, a video documentary by Mark Spink of Colorado, and fiber art by Phyllis Fredendall of Houghton. Reflections artist Mary Brodbeck will be at CTAC on June 30 and July 1 conducting a two day workshop on Japanese Woodblock Printmaking. The workshop will begin with an introductory history of woodblock prints. The class will continue with design development, with a focus on composition, and then proceed to carving and printing. Step by step demonstrations will be given throughout. No experience is necessary to attend this workshop.

Teens save drowning man

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

When they saw a dinghy circling around in the middle of the lake with no one in the driver's seat, they knew there was something wrong.

When Margeaux Leakas, 16, of Dayton, Ohio, and her friend Lacey Flanigan, 17, of St. Louis, Mo. decided to meet their friend and go for a ride in Flanigan's jet-ski, they saw something that didn't look right.

"People were just standing on their docks, pointing to the water. All those people had bigger boats or yachts, so they couldn't really do anything," said Flanigan. "I mean, by the time they would have gotten themselves untied and started up, it would have been too late. So, we just hooked it over there."

What the people on the dock saw was a drowning man.

"We could see a man in a bright blue shirt from where we were, and he was just throwing his arms around everywhere," said Leakas.

The man in distress, Robert Leitz, 62, of Sister Bay, Wisc., was not wearing a life jacket.

"I figured it wasn't going to be a very long trip, and I could see my friend's boat from where I was," he said. "I was going to visit a friend of mine on the other side of the lake, so I kind of had my guard down."

According to Leitz, he was only about 100 yards off of the municipal dock when he

He braved the icy depths of Lake Michigan, long hours on the road and even handcuffs to deliver what could be a piece of a centuries old French ship to U.S. Marshals.

The diver who surfaced with the artifact, leader of Great Lakes Exploration Group (GLEG) Steven Libert, was on June 2 granted the admiralty arrest he has sought for years.

"The meeting with the Marshal went very well. We discussed various matters involving the case and the Attorney General's Office wanted me arrested for removal of the artifact," Libert wrote in e-mailed response to questions. "I guess the A.G.'s office still refuses to believe that Federal Law supersedes State law on matters of admiralty claims."

During a phone interview Libert explained to the Courier that he was not arrested per the Attorney General Office's request and was later told the "problem was sent on vacation."

The admiralty arrest simply means the court holds the artifact and constructive possession of the ship, that is holding the ship without actually having physical possession of it, until it can be determined whether the wreck is Le Griffon and if the State of Michigan or France owns the ship.

Now that Robert Holmes Bell, Chief U.S. District Justice and his court have jurisdiction over the unidentified wreck it cannot be seized, moved or disturbed without a court order.

The state also gets what it wants from the admiralty

Le Griffon hunters secure artifact arrest: the location of the wreck must be disclosed to both Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and Michigan Department of History, Arts, and Libraries.

"Our major concern was the protection of the site from interlopers and looters," Libert stated. "This issue will be our major concern throughout the entire process of identification and recovery."

For now, the four-inch long piece of wood roughly the size of a slender cigar believed to be from the bowsprit, will be kept in a freezer for safe storage and has a one million dollar insurance policy covering it.

However, getting the overgrown splinter to its current resting place wasn't easy. Due to the excitement, number of stops along the way and concerns of airport security, Libert spent days on the road from Virginia to Ohio, then on to Grand Rapids, Traverse City and back to Virginia.

"I calculated that in 86 hours I had six hours of sleep and 30 hours of driving," he stated. "The decision to drive was made as we were concerned that the TSA security would confiscate the artifact as it was packed in a medium size cooler with eight pounds of dry ice."

Hoping to ease tensions between his group and the state, Libert is working with CMURM the Center for Maritime Underwater Research Management of Laingsburg, to prepare a "memorandum of understanding" for a scientific investigation to identify the site in cooperation with GLEG and the Michigan Historical Center Department of History, Arts and Libraries.

"I expect the Attorney General's office to continue their efforts, although I am working toward a cooperative relationship with the Michigan Historical Center," Libert wrote. "Our only recourse is to seek protection from the Federal Court."

The next step for GLEG was to host more fundraising efforts for their expedition, but the idea was scrapped due to past actions by State of Michigan officials.

"It was decided however not to under take this endeavor until we have complete assurance from the A.G.'s office that they would not attempt to sabotage our efforts as in 2006," Libert wrote, referencing an incident where, though he was legally raising funds in Charlevoix, a Michigan official sent letters to Libert's partners and even Charlevoix City officials stating that he was in violation of the law. A letter of apology from the state was later sent, but Libert contends it was too little, too late for the damage they caused.

"I do not anticipate any further dives to the site this summer. GLEG will be working with CMURM on an archeology design review. This details the scope of work to be performed, timetables and budget for the project," he stated.

While State of Michigan officials did not respond to the Courier by press time, they continue to contend that anything on the bottomlands belongs to the state unless it could be proved the ship belongs to France.

"Two of our colleagues just returned from France where they met with French officials with regard to our project and to conduct some further research. France is willing to send over a representative as is Canada. The invitation however has to go through diplomatic channels. That would be GLEG requesting the State of Michigan to contact the U.S. Department of State to make the formal invitation," Libert wrote. "Of course we want a Michigan official also present during the identification phase. GLEG and CMURM are excited about the opportunity to enter into a cooperative relationship with the State of Michigan."

He added, "As always we are striving to promote Michigan's shear beauty and it's cultural and water resources. If this ship is identified as being Le Griffon it is our hope that Charlevoix will be its new home. Numerous productions companies are interested in our story. We hope to film everything in Michigan and use Michigan's talented resources.

Clever as some people think they are when they deface or steal political signs, we can think of few things as rife with cowardice, stupidity and downright jackassery (no offense to the democrats) within the political dirty trick grab bag. We get it, you're passionate about your candidate and really loathe the opposition, but there must be something better you can do with your time than destroy another person's property. As far as we're concerned, vandalizing political message boards is no different than destroying any private property: these signs cost money, and often Joe Ham-n-Eggs spends a portion of his own paycheck to show support for his favorite politician. And, even more disgusting than broken windows, raw eggs thrown at houses or toilet paper strewn trees is the act of denigrating the political opinions of your fellow citizens and neighbors. We have to wonder how you vandals would feel if your opponent decided to destroy your property, political sign or otherwise, in the name of their presidential candidate.

For those of you unsure of how best to serve your political party, we have devised some productive ways to engage in the political process.

Check out the following:

- Write a letter to the editor expounding on all the ways your candidate is superior to the opposing party.
- Start a conversation at your favorite coffee hangout about who would best serve America.
- Jump on Charlevoixcourier.com and begin blogging all those thoughts about John McCain, Barrack Obama, Connie Saltonstall, Kevin Elsenheimer, Don Sproul and Don Schneider.

We'll never be rid of hooligans, but maybe, just maybe, we can work together to elevate politics.

Wait is worth it

As a citizen who has earned semi-retired status, I have more time to take in my surroundings and appreciate what envelops my life and others. Something I couldn't miss noticing in this mild reflective state of mind was the amount of impatience that pervades our lives. I am the first to admit that my own diminished capacity to be patient has created a new way of communicating – I rarely start a sentence with the first couple of words. I leave the listener clueless as to what I am talking about. Okay, I admit I did that before retirement. I thought things would slow down when I left a rewarding but time consuming job. Now I find myself very much mistaken. I can't help but notice others around me getting frustrated as well because a line is too long, a light isn't changing fast enough or an Internet connection is taking too long. It appears we are always running behind- and why is that? Has technology enabled us to move at such a pace that we expect every aspect of life to move at the same break neck speed . It's easy to see why we have a society who now possesses the inability to simply wait. My message today is to encourage people to slow down, decompress and remember good things take time.

Like wine and cheese and even babies, the wait is always worth it. As I begin to rock in my Cracker Barrel chair on the front porch, I started thinking about good things that have come while waiting. With the passage of time, the insight of newcomers, a touch of creative vision, and a sprinkle of feisty determination, some beautiful changes have taken place near my front door. Change is a good thing and it automatically comes like the rise and setting of the sun . Some of us may cling to the past as a safety and security net, others thrive on the new. I appreciate the history of Charlevoix but enjoy seeing creative visionaries at work. In my opinion, historically we have not lost the taste of what Charlevoix was; we have improved her appearance and melded in the old with the new and it has met with success.

We have a school board and superintendent that are working together weathering budget cuts to keep us current under times of financial stress. Charlevoix has a hard working city council who negotiate and mediate at every curve to save the tax payers money. On the shores of Lake Michigan sits a beautiful hospital with a home-like maternity ward, B&B- look sleep clinic, top notch CT scan, topped off with a restful solarium. I'd be remiss in not mentioning the Charlevoix Public Library. So phenomenal that when Dr. Billington, the Librarian of Congress arrived this past week he said he needed to cut out of his speech. His planned talk referred to how the Library of Congress could assist us and he was presently surprised the help wasn't warranted. We have a new city park that has come together with the thoughtfulness and communication of all parties and protected by a caring street superintendent. For some the park moved slowly but contracts and changes that needed to be made take time so it could be picture perfect. We have a city manager who listens and communicates with his staff and is a team player. A chamber of commerce that is moving in tune with technology which has led to additional members.

Good things like art, tea and getting into shape all take time. What is our hurry unless there is an urgent need due to a catastrophe occurring. We all need to step back and say why are we rushing through life so quickly. Doing something in a too swift manner increases the chance of error. We are more apt to lose things, drops items and forget something when we hurry. Time does wait for man and woman and child. We hurry to wait in line. We hurry to wait at a red light. Sometimes situations are placed in front of us to make us slow down to remember something else we need to do.

I am reminded that all good things must come to an end so with that being said I'll end here and wish you a thoughtful day. Take a deep breath and enjoy your surroundings-the mental health you may save may be your own.

Charles Bronson the key to cheap gas

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

I'm not a praying man, but even a deist knows when enough is enough, and having my comfy American lifestyle disrupted by crude oil rapists has driven me to seek higher council.

It all started last weekend when I was miserly metering $25 worth of unleaded second mortgage into my truck's gas tank. Though it might as well be Carlsbad Caverns, cause it's never going to see full again.

Granted, my six-mile-a-day round-trip commute to work is laughable, but before you roll up this here paper and try to bludgeon me to death with it, know that the wife goes to and from Traverse City four days a week.

Now, don't get me wrong, I don't mind the pinpricks of capitalism when supply and demand are at work, but as I recently discovered, as much as 60 percent of the oil price spike could be related to speculation.

"The price of crude oil today is not made according to any traditional relation of supply to demand," wrote F. William Engdahl. "It's controlled by an elaborate financial market system as well as by the four major Anglo-American oil companies."

Gas is worth $1.72 per gallon, yet we're paying $4.29. Those who claim it an issue of supply and demand are either ignorant, simple or both. The issue of why a natural resource like oil, which it seems should be treated like air and water, has been allowed to be hijacked by profiteers and spineless worm speculators who crank the prices up while they offer nothing productive to the process.

The whole act of speculating is a fraud: Guys in suits buy oil that doesn't exist with money they don't have and then sell it to other guys in suits for a premium. All this selling and reselling artificially inflates the value of the oil we do have.

Meanwhile we still have people screaming that we invaded Iraq for cheap oil. So, where the hell's my cheap oil? And, if that's the case, why isn't Uncle Sam putting his star spangled boot up the collective keister of these soulless speculators?

"But Gohs, what would Jesus do?" asks the part of my brain that's been watching episodes of Bible Man every Saturday.

Well, he flipped over gaming tables and chased out the money changers on at least one occasion. But I think what we really need in this case is Mr. Majestyk; Charles Bronson, now there's a man who can break some tail and get things done.

So, Charlie, if you hear this prayer all the way up there in Heaven, could you take a break from beating up bad guys and blowing up drug manufacturing operations long enough to come back and straighten out these goons?

LETTERS to the editor

SERENITY NOW

Editor:

Twenty-two years ago one generous benefactor, a group of forward thinking recovering people and a cadre of friends and supporters joined together to form The Serenity House - Alano Club of Charlevoix.

Since that time legions of suffering alcoholics and others in need of various twelve-step groups have benefited from that selfless act. Having outgrown the aging and ill-suited two story building at 106 Mason Street, the board of directors, with broad support of the membership, made the difficult decision to demolish the old house and build anew at the same location. Looking towards the next twenty years and beyond the board of directors is announcing a modest fund raising campaign to expand the current meeting space. The needs are simple and at a projected cost of $200,000 not extravagant. All members of the board of directors have pledged financial support and are looking to the entire membership for that kind of commitment. Support of the community is not only welcomed but in fact crucial. Early donations have pushed the effort more than half way to the goal.

Rare is the family or business that has not been impacted by addiction issues and as one early and very generous donor said, "what happens at the Alano Club in Charlevoix has had a profound effect on my life and the life of my family. We need to ensure that this continues."

Donations can be made to "Charlevoix Alano Club" and mailed to P.O. Box 422, Charlevoix, MI 49720. If you have questions, please contact Alano Club Management Services Coordinator Scott Kelly by calling 547-1144.

GOHS FULL OF BEANS

Editor:

I am one of those readers in disagreement with your article from the June 25 edition of the Courier (Oppression 101), because I can't see anything wrong with having legislation swayed by Christian ideas.

Our thoughts, actions and even our laws are bound to be influenced by something, and for many people there is no stronger persuader than religion.

We are taught to apply lessons from history, but when that history involves religion it is often labeled unconstitutional.

We should not disregard the teachings of Jesus and other biblical figures solely because they are associated with religious beliefs. Non-religious people should try to view Jesus as a historical figure rather than a religious one, and maybe they will be able to appreciate his philosophy instead of believing it is a threat to our government.

I don't think anyone has a problem with our government being influenced by great thinkers such as Plato or Immanuel Kant, so when it comes to matters of legal policy, drawing from the knowledge of religious teachers should be no different than drawing from the knowledge of others.

If I were to quote Hobbes in backing up my stance on a specific piece of legislation, no one would have an issue, but if I supported the same position with the words of Jesus or Paul, somebody would immediately bring up separation of church and state and deem my argument irrelevant.

Our consitution does nothing to prevent the sharing of ideas between religions and government, and it would be a shame if it did.

COULDN'T HAVE DONE IT WITHOUT YOU

Editor:

The staff and Board of the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan would like to thank everyone involved in the 2nd annual Women Can/Women Do Charlevoix County Benefit Luncheon.

This event helped raised over $25,000 for the WRC. It would not have been successful without each of the individuals mentioned below. Our gratitude goes to: The event committee members: Joyce Herbert, Kathy Lame, Nancy Porter, Gretchen Tambellini, Jean Van Dam, Carole Vial and Trish Wright.

These hard-working volunteers begin their efforts in December each year and are responsible for all the details involved in planning an event of this size.

The table captains: Patti Aikin, Melody Collins, Charlotte Diller, Sue Dixon, Susan Flanders, Joyce Herbert, Gaye Hodge, Vel Kammermann, Diane Kidder, Shari Kitchen, Kathryn Lobenherz, Carolee Macfarlane, Barb Malpass, Marcia Newkirk, Jane O'Brien, Nancy Porter, Connie Saltonstall, Debbie Sears, Nancy Sherman, Ralph Stowe, Gretchen Tambellini, Carole Vial, Nancy Weber, Linda Wertz, Phoebe Wietzke and Robin Wottowa.

These wonderful individuals made sure that the event was standing room only with all of the available seats being sold.

Table designers came up with 25 of the most artistic, unique, creative table designs you have ever seen.

They made the lunch a can't miss event.

Special thanks to the Gaillard String Trio members for their performance of the Prelude music and to Diane McMahon for preparing and donating the most delicious desserts.

Finally, thanks to Linda and Richard Mueller for providing Charlevoix partners working with Lori Meeder (standing from left), Director of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Entrepreneurial Division, to provide services and resources to start-up or existing businesses include Keith Carey, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority; Michael Hinkle, President of Charlevoix State Bank; Erin Bemis, Executive Director of Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce; (seated from left) Rob Straebel, City Manager for City of Charlevoix; Zane Carter, Vice President, Northwestern Bank-Charlevoix; Greg Bryan, Broker/Owner, ReMax of Charlevoix; and Robert Hoffman, CPA, Certified Public Accountants & Consultants.

Leaders promote entrepreneurship

A group of business, chamber, government and community leaders in the City of Charlevoix has banded together to strengthen the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Entrepreneurial Division's goal to make the region the hub of entrepreneurial energy. The partnership will help the NLEA Entrepreneurial Division make northern Michigan become a more fertile ground for innovation and business creation and attract additional talents and resources for existing businesses.

"We have brought together a good cross-section of business and community leaders to help us grow as we build what we call an incubator for new or existing businesses," said Lori Meeder, Director of the NLEA Entrepreneurial Division.

Partners in the Charlevoix area include Keith Carey, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority; Robert Hoffman, CPA, Certified Public Accountants & Consultants; Michael Hinkle, President of Charlevoix State Bank; Erin Bemis, Executive Director of Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Zane Carter, Vice President of Northwestern Bank-Charlevoix; Greg Bryan, Broker/Owner of ReMax of Charlevoix; and Rob Straebel, City Manager for the City of Charlevoix.

Meeder said NLEA will count on these partners to identify start-up and existing businesses that could use services and resources to help turn an idea and a dream into reality.

As the NLEA division continues to grow its services, local community partners will assist two-fold: first, by identifying entrepreneurs needing assistance and secondly, possibly providing expert advice or services in areas such as talent development, early-stage funding, regional marketing, business outreach, and more. Ultimately, the NLEA Entrepreneurial Division hopes to form what is called "incubators" which could take a variety of shapes and forms; From an actual building that provides affordable space for new companies with common services, to a menu of experts to help with human resources, finance or marketing.

For more information about NLEA and its Entrepreneurial Division, visit www.northernlakes.ne or call Meeder at (231) 582-6482

NORTHERN MICHIGAN'S ONLY 4D BREAST MRI

Introducing a Powerful New Tool in the Fight Against Breast Cancer

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital takes the lead in women's health with new Breast MRI imaging

Breast MRI is an extremely powerful tool that compliments your physician's resources in diagnosing and fighting breast cancer.

The benefits of Breast MRI are many:

- This advanced diagnostic system may detect breast cancer missed by mammography for women who are high-risk due to a family history of breast cancer
- New research suggests MRI scans may detect precursors to breast cancer, allowing early intervention to prevent cancer growth among high-risk women before it even starts
- Performing this test may also reduce the number of breast biopsies done to evaluate a suspicious breast mass seen with mammography

Breast MRI at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital provides:

- Leading expertise in reading and analysis of Breast MRIs through a partnership with one of the nation's leading Breast MRI institutes
- Digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, in our continued commitment to women's health, is proud to be the first and only Breast MRI provider in all of northern Michigan.

STILL KICKING

Editor:

The Charlevoix Girls Varsity Soccer Team had its most successful year ever this year.

For the fourth year in a row they were conference champs, won their second district title, their first ever regional title, and competed in the state semi-finals losing to the eventual state champion Kalamazoo Christian. Of the four final schools remaining, Charlevoix was the only public school and on top of that, the girls had the highest grade point average. This year's team had a cumulative GPA of a 3.7. (sixth in the state regardless of division). We also placed six girls on the all state teams.

However, as in most successful endeavors, we did not do this without help and support from a great many members of the community. I'd like to thank all the fans for coming out not only to our home games, but also those who made the trip(s) to Holton. It was great to hear the cheering and the girls were really picked up by the support. Thanks to Tom Bergmann, Charlevoix 4-H soccer, Bob Schofield, Charlevoix Sports Boosters, CHS Staff, Doug Drenth, Ken Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Way, Don Voisin, Zita Winn, Jim Marsh and parents.

You all added to our success and we thank you.

HELP FOR GRIEVING

Editor:

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing your job, moving, dealing with a chronic illness, or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designated to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will beheld from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from now through Aug. 12 at Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix

The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief, and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitator for this program is Dr. Andrew Sahara of North Country Community Mental Health. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

We would appreciate anyone interested in attending these classes to pre-register by calling the hospice office at 582-8800. After the first session, the classes will be closed. There is no charge for this program.

MUCH TO-DO 'BOUT NOTHIN'

Editor:

I'm a tax payer and I think all this to-do about Mr. Schneider is a big to do about nothing. He has always been very honest and up front about everything.

Why is Hatch Act going after Mr Schneider? Why don't they stick to cleaning up some of the big shots or so called.

This is a small town, Sheriff Lasater did a good job and I think Mr. Schneider will also do the same.

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL UNDERSHERIFF

Editor:

This letter is to the citizens of Charlevoix County. I am writing in regards to the true professional you already have as your undersheriff and what a benefit it would be to your county to have him as your next sheriff.

Sheriff Lasater has filled, with great honor, the office of sheriff for almost 32 years and he has always had my utmost respect as a fellow sheriff. He will be missed. However, you have the opportunity to fill that void with another official that I believe will never miss a beat and represent your county with honesty, integrity, and the knowledge of what it takes every day to get the job done.

I have worked with Don Schneider on several occasions and sit on a Mutual Aid Committee with him. His agenda is always what is best for Charlevoix County. I have served as the Antrim County Sheriff for almost 8 years and believe it is important to my office to work hand in hand with an adjoining county.

In closing, I highly recommend Don Schneider as your next Sheriff for Charlevoix County

ACCESS FOR ALL

Editor:

This time of the year brings on the summer festivals, like July 4 and locally the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. All of us enjoy all of the musical events, art and craft festivals, parades and last but least of all, fireworks displays.

All of these activities are available to everyone, or are they?

How about that segment of our society who are physically or mentally challenged?

Why are there not designated areas at these events for specialized vans reserved for these people close enough so that they too could enjoy these activities.

Granted, every town has parking issues, but one would think exceptions could be made.

I personally have a very close friend, who has been a health care professional for 25 years in the field of care for the physical and developmentally disabled, and she assures me that parking is a huge issue.

Let's make it an equal playing field, and remember that all of us could end up dealing with disability in our lifetime.

WHERE DOES IT END?

Editor:

Granted gasoline prices are going up. A number of us are using another method of transportation: a bicycle. We ride our bikes to work, appointments and to the grocery store. Now why are we paying 75 cents for air to do all the running around we could do in a car?

What's it going to cost to breathe?

OBITUARIES

Robert Tripp: Oct. 14, 1928 - July 5, 2008

Robert L. Tripp, 79, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, July 5, 2008, in Charlevoix. Funeral is 1 p.m. today, Wednesday, July 9 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, the Rev. Gloria Ward officiating. Burial will be in Undine Cemetery. Bob was born Oct. 14, 1928, in Livonia to Lester E. and Ione (Struble) Tripp. His family moved to the Burgess area in Hayes Township when he was 16. Bob served as a corpsman and baker in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War. On Sept. 21, 1957, he married Shirlene G. Allison in Petoskey. Bob enjoyed hunting and fishing, growing roses, wood turning, helping Shirlene in their ceramics shop and painting, and he loved his dog, Babe, who was his best friend. He was a member of VFW Post #3675, Northern Michigan Flywheelers, the Whirlaways Square Dancing Club, Sam's Sportsmans Alliance of Michigan, and the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club. Bob retired as a police officer from the City of Charlevoix Police Department in 1989, after serving 18 years. Bob is survived by his wife Shirlene of Charlevoix; daughter, Charlene (David Trautman) Kitson of Alanson; son, Duane L. Tripp of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Joshua and Amanda Kitson, Robert L. Tripp, and Danielle Tripp; great-grandson, Kayden, visitation was 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Memorial contributions may be made to the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers P.O. Box 494, Walloon Lake, MI 49796.

Dekar Ezri Schmidt: Died June 27, 2008

Dekar Ezri Schmidt passed peacefully in the arms of family on June 27, 2008. He was born at 10:46 a.m. and met the eyes of Jesus at 7:10 p.m. the same day. Dekar was the son of Cortney and Marge Schmidt of Atwood (Ellsworth). He is survived by eight siblings, Hali, Aaron, Solomon, Eli, Rachel, Jadon, Melchizedek, and Isaiah, all at home. His paternal grandparents are Jerry and Judy Schmidt of Tomahawk, Wisc.; and maternal grandmother, Laura Pehoski of Stevens Point, Wisc. Dekar gave us a lifetime of love during his short time on earth. The Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep Foundation provided a volunteer photographer to record his short life with us. In lieu of flowers we would be pleased to have you support their mission to help other grieving parents through their remembrance photography at: The Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep Foundation, 7800 S Elati St. #111, Littleton, CO 80120, or: http://nowilaymedowntosleep.org/pageDisplay.php?page=42. Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Vera M. Edison: Nov. 3, 1938 - June 19, 2008

Vera M. Edison was born Nov. 3, 1938 in Charlevoix and passed away June 19, 2008 in East Grand Rapids, Mich. She was married to her best friend and love, Larry Edison (CS) for 42 years. She was the daughter of William Harold and Mary Towsley of Charlevoix. Her brothers are Allan (Loretta) Charlevoix, Robert (Bette) Sand Lake and Stanly in the UP. She was a mother to Ross Case of CS, Corrine Ginnever of Charlevoix, Scott Case of CS. Ronald Edison of Sparta and Mary Kay Golcyzski of Rhode Island. She has fourteen grandsons and two granddaughters, 10 great grandsons and two great granddaughters. Vera retired from 28 years with GM-Fisher Body, was a member of the Red Hat Society and graduated from Charlevoix High School. She was a gracious, non-judgmental friend who enjoyed life. Services were held ata Bliss, Witters & Pike (CS). A simple ceremony attended by over 200 family members, Red Hats and friends followed by a luncheon provided by the American Legion (CS Post). Private interment at Sand Lake Cemetery. For memorial contributions, please donate to the American Cancer Society.

Katherine "Katie" Curtis: Feb. 18, 1942 - July 4, 2008

Katherine "Katie" Curtis, one of Charlevoix's shining stars, passed away peacefully, liberated from cancer on July 4, 2008 at the age of 66. She was born in Petoskey on Feb. 18, 1942, to Frank and Sophie (Sobleskey) Foster, and graduated from Petoskey High School in 1960. Katie loved Charlevoix and tirelessly volunteered her talents to various organizations. She led the American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post #226 Auxiliary serving at its president for over 30 years. In addition to the Legion, she also donated her time to the Alano Club, and Saint Mary's Church Altar Society in Charlevoix, she loved being a member of the Red Hats and all will miss her blue eyes and radiant smile. Katie had a special 44-year friendship with Birdie Whitley. Together, they operated Birdie's Beauty Shop and side-by-side kept the ladies of Charlevoix looking beautiful. Katie was a devoted wife to Jack Curtis who preceded her in death just 64 days ago. She was a wonderful mother and is mourned by her children, Kimberly (Jim) Atkinson of Bloomfield Hills, and Denny Curtis of Charlevoix. Katie's lights of her life were her grandchildren. She was a doting grandma and will be deeply missed by Stephanie, Katelyn, Trey and Courtney. Katie is survived by her sisters, Teresa Golding of Petoskey, Annie (Eddie) Shepherd of Harbor Springs, Ruthie Grady and Hazel Lund both of Grand Rapids. Annie and Ruthie never left Katie's side in the last days of her illness. Katie's brothers, Al and Frank Foster, both of Petoskey, preceded her in death. Her mother in law, Ruby Curtis and sister in laws Jeanie (Rick) Davis and Linda Ostling also survive as well as over 40 nieces and nephews. Visitation was Monday at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the Rosary was recited. Rite of Christian Burial was 11 a.m. Tuesday, July 8, at Saint Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix, the Reverend Jerry Hunko officiating. Burial will take place next to Jack in Saint Mary Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Courier sister paper to host 105th candidate debates

USERS INVITED TO SUBMIT QUESTIONS

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The Petoskey News-Review will begin hosting an online debate between the three candidates in the 105th District race today at www.mismartvote.com.

Every week, reporters and editors will create a question for Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, R-Kewadin, and his two opponents — Democrat Connie Saltonstall and Libertarian Greg Dean. The three candidates will have a week to respond and portions of their answers will appear in Monday's issue of the paper, along with the question for the following week.

Readers are invited to follow and comment on the candidates answers, and submit questions of their own.

Elsenheimer is running for his third term in as representative to Lansing. After establishing himself as a rising star among the Michigan's GOP, Elsenheimer initially did not plan on running for re-election this year. However, after not securing his party's backing for the a seat on the court of appeals, Elsenheimer filed for re-election. He said that he plans to let his past record in the House speak for itself, and maintains that he is a fighter for the interests of Northern Michigan.

Saltonstall has already begun to reach out to her Democratic base, meeting with a local chapter of the UAW earlier this month. She said she hopes to ride the wave of support the Democrats are enjoying thanks in part to low approval rating of President George Bush.

Dean, who ran against Elsenheimer back in 2004, first as a Republican then dropped out of the crowded field to run as a Democrat, recently won the nomination of the Michigan's Libertarian party. He said that Democrats and Republicans are "two sides of the same coin," and hopes to challenge both candidates on a number of issues.

All three were e-mailed the following question, earlier today:

What do you think are the three most important issues voters must consider when casting their vote in the race for the 105th District?

Noah Fowle can be reached by e-mail at nfowle@petoskeynews.com

"Rebuilding the Michigan economy. With nearly 94,000 jobs lost this year alone, we continue to lose jobs at an alarming rate in our state. We must find a way to replace those jobs. One major step is to fix a broken legislature that has put partisan politics and special interests ahead of the challenges facing our state. It is the job of a state representative to work with all legislators for a Michigan that benefits both workers and business." Candidate Connie Saltonstall (D)

"The key issues that I believe voters will consider this fall include: Size and scope of government; energy; and state spending," Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, R-Kewadin." Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Kewadin)

City manager looks back on first year, forward on future

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Straebel

The end of this summer will mark the one year anniversary of Roh Straebel being on the job as City Manager.

Straehel said the thing he enjoys the most about his job is the day to day interaction he has with such an "eclectic group of people."

"I've also enjoyed the positive interaction with the City Council and staff members," said Strachel. "City Council has been doing a good job of setting the parameters and letting us do our job."

Everyday, he gets to talk to a variety of people from attorneys, to developers to environmentalists.

In his position, Straehel noted the top three challenges he and the city have had to face so far: the East Park Project, the inability to hire two new Journeyman-Lineman and balancing the budget.

"The East Park Project has been one of the most complicated to manage," he said. "It's gone from trying to re-imburse grant dollars to a whole range of other little problems."

As far as the Journeyman-Lineman situation goes, he said there just haven't been too many qualified applicants for the position.

"We're thinking of possibly raising the hourly rate as an incentive," he said. "We currently have two on staff, but we really need two more so that we have four on board. That would complete the staff in that area."

Last, but not least of challenges Straebel faces is the budget.

"The first budget goes from April of 2008 to March 31 of 2009. Right now, we're $139,000 in the red, even after slashing $185,000 from the draft budget," he said.

Aside from those obstacles a city manager is expected to deal with, Straehel said the city is running smoothly and there seems to be no major complaints.

Though the delay of the East Park Project has been an issue with many residents, Straehel said there's nothing to worry about.

"We've had great oversight on the project from Pat Elliot, so we're hoping to close that out in the next couple of weeks or so," he said.

Straebel feels that it's not the city manager's job to set goals for the city or to come in with an agenda.

"In general, it's the city council's objective to set the goals for the City of Charlevoix," said Straebel. "Through many meetings I've helped council define those goals. Ultimately, it's the City Council's job to decide what direction to take the city in."

Originally from Saginaw, Straebel moved out West after graduating from Ferris State University. After spending a few years in Breckenridge, Colo., he decided to become a Peace Corps. volunteer.

He eventually moved to Denver to become a Community Development Specialist and found that he really liked local government.

After that, he got accepted to the University of Colorado and completed his Master's program there.

Straebel spent six years as a town manager in Hayden, Colo. and then moved to Taos Ski Valley and became a village administrator for three years.

Family is what brought Strachel back to Michigan.

He said he always had a great affinity for the northwestern part of Michigan and the recreational opportunities offered around here.

Strachel's job today, in a nutshell, is to make sure the City Council runs as smoothly as possible.

"The more information you can get to the council before a meeting, the less questions that arise and the more efficiently they can run," he said.

The everyday matters that Straebel deals with are many phone calls, following up on concerns and complaints, putting together council packets, negotiating contracts, writing correspondence and signing off on a lot of bills.

"I like the broad, long-range overview of the City Manager's office," said Strachel. "I think I have the type of personality that thrives in a challenging work environment."

East Park Progress

The Harbor Master Building (HMB) was opened to the public on Thursday, July 3. Boaters now have access to all marina amenities and the public can now access the public restrooms. All veneered stone work is now 100 percent complete. Remaining concrete flatwork around the HMB will be completed this week. Clinton Street is currently being reworked, with new curbs to be poured today. Sod laying activities in East Park continue with a second load of sod earlier this week. The remainder of the sod will be delivered on Thursday, July 10. By Friday, July 11, the entire project should be deemed substantially complete. A punch list will be generated following shortly thereafter detailing any small fixes required to fully complete the project.

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.
LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Petoskey area residents have always cared deeply about the environment, the lakes and Little Traverse Bay…OUR bay. The old, abandoned cement plant in Petoskey put our natural resources at risk.

The remains of the old plant have long been removed. Now the CMS Land Company is working with others to clean our shore and protect our bay.

CMS Land has invested more than $60 million to improve water quality around the old plant site.

What was once described as a "moonscape," has been transformed into the Bay Harbor development and nearby Resort Township parks and is now known as one of North America's largest, most successful brownfield restoration projects.

CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

World War II bombardier will fly again

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

It's been 63 years since he's flown in a B-17.

Now, at the age of 83, Elson Spangler, a World War II veteran, will be taking his first flight in a military aircraft since the war ended.

"I flew in 24 missions," said Spangler, "it would have been 25, but the war had ended before my last mission."

In several missions, Spangler was the lead bombardier.

"The bombardier would fly the plane over the last 30 miles or so of the mission to try to find the target," Spangler said. "The navigator would help the bombardier find the target."

Spangler will be flying on the Yankee Lady B-17 during the Beaver Island Air show on July 18 and 19.

The Yankee Lady is one of only 12 flyable B-17s in the world.

It is a B-17 G, which is a model that was built in 1945.

Spangler was with the 15th air force out of Southern Italy.

He and his crew had flown over Yugoslavia, Greece, Ukraine, France and many other European countries. During that time, he survived two crash landings.

"The first crash was near the Adriatic Sea. We were shot down by enemy anti-aircraft fire," Spangler said. "We just ditched the B-17 that had crashed. The second time I was shot down was my last mission of the war. It was in the Alps near a marshaling yard. During the end of the war, one of the main targets was the railroad yards because the Germans were trying to get all of their materials out of the area."

Spangler was 19 years old when he first started flying combat missions.

When he turned 21, he went home and started college at Michigan State University in 1945.

At that time, while he was home, the war in the Pacific ended.

While at Michigan State, he studied engineering. After he went through four years of college, he got married in 1949 to his wife, Helen, who he's been married to ever since.

He and Helen had three children and six grandchildren.

After receiving his education, Spangler went to work at General Motors in the research lab.

Spangler wrote a book called, "An American Flyer," which is for sale at the Smithsonian Aerospace Museum in Washington.

"I'm very excited about them thinking highly enough about the book to include it in their museum," said Spangler. "It's an honor."

McSauba heat hut makeover

Calling all builders, architects, and do-it-yourselfers.

Come witness the extreme makeover of the Charlevoix Ice Skating Warming Hut on the grounds of the Mt. McSauba Ski Hill from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on July 18.

The warming hut will be converted into a log cabin.

An 18 inch band of cultured stone added to the bottom of the building will create the appearance of a stone foundation. Finishing touches will include new windows and doors, a front deck, and roof.

Generous contributions made by local businesses helped make the event possible.

Call the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for more information at 547-2101.

Livestock program

Livestock producers have until July 18, 2008 to enroll in 2005-2007 Livestock Compensation Program (LCP) and Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP). LCP compensates livestock producers for feed losses occurring between Jan. 1, 2005, and Feb. 28, 2007, due to a natural disaster. This can include producers who suffered losses resulting from blizzards that started in 2006 and continued into January 2007. Eligibility requirements for LCP have been determined that a producer must be in a primary (or contiguous) disaster county declared by the Secretary or President between Jan. 1, 2005 and Feb. 18 2007 or must be in a primary (or contiguous) county that received an Administrator's Physical Loss Notice that is directly associated to a disaster declaration made by the President. Producers who owned livestock during calendar year 2005 in Michigan may be eligible for LCP with the exception of the following Counties: Alcona, Arenac, Gladwin, Iosco, Macomb, Midland, Ogemaw, and Wayne. Producers who owned livestock in calendar year 2006 in Michigan may be eligible for LCP with the exception of the following Counties: Alcona, Arenac, Iosco, and Ogemaw. All counties are eligible for calendar year 2007. Keep in mind that producers may only receive benefits for one year LIP compensates livestock producers for livestock losses between Jan. 1, 2005, and Feb. 28, 2007, that resulted from natural disasters, including losses due to blizzards that started in 2006 and continued into January 2007. Producers interested in applying for assistance should contact their local FSA county office

SPORTS reviewing the action

A few words with a Lion quarterback

...AND IN THIS CORNER

A.J. Hoffman

On Saturday, June 28, I got the chance to sit down and talk with Drew Stanton of the Detroit Lions.

At 6-3" and 230 pounds, the 24-year-old quarterback from Michigan State University was the 43rd overall pick in the 2007 NFL draft.

Stanton had been mentioned as a potential candidate for the Heisman Trophy by several ESPN analysts.

Though Stanton missed all of his rookie year due to a knee injury during training camp, he says he's excited about the upcoming season.

The second-year quarterback was originally born in Okemas.

He and his family moved to Oregon for awhile. And after his sophomore year in high school, they moved back to Michigan.

After graduating from Harrison High School in Farmington Hills, he was ranked as a four-star prospect by rivals.com.

Q: Did you run in the marathon today?

A: No, but my sister and my sister-in-law did. They both did the half marathon today (13.1 miles). Also, I'm sponsoring a runner today through the Special Olympics. I met him at the Summer Games at CMU (Central Michigan University). His name is Todd Williams.

Q: Did you come up for just the marathon, or are you planning to stay a little while?

A: We're up here on vacation for the week. It gives us a chance to relax and hang out near the lake and just enjoy the area. We come up every year for about a week during the week of the fourth of July.

Q. Last year you were put on the reserve/injured list for a little while because you had to undergo arthroscopic knee surgery, how are you feeling now?

A: Oh, I felt much better in the Spring and I feel really good now. I started running and training and it felt better. It became really encouraging from that standpoint.

Q. I understand they've been changing the location of summer training camp for the Lions, it used to be at Saginaw Valley State University, the area where I'm originally from, so do you know when and where it's going to be held this year and will you be ready to participate?

A: I'll definitely be participating in training camp, and I'm really excited about it. Training camp starts July 23 and it's going to be at the Lions new training facility. It's a very nice facility, its brand new.

Q. Aren't you speaking later today at the awards ceremony?

A: I'm not sure if I'm speaking or not, but I'll definitely be down there. Right now, my family and I are just waiting for Todd to come through. We're just waiting for him to finish the race then we'll be over there.

Q: Is this your second or third season with the Lions, and do you expect to get any starts this year? Aren't you anxious to get in there and replace Kitna?

A. This will be my second season, and actually I've learned a lot from him. The offense is a lot more quarterback-friendly this year. Jon knows how to do the right things and he's been teaching and working with me on a lot of different things.

Little League advances to quarter final against Lewiston

Charlevoix Little League, 11 and 12-year-old division, opened up tournament play Monday night against Boyne City in game one with a 5-4 victory.

The winning pitcher was Shane Sutherland who pitched 4 and two-thirds innings collecting 10 strikeouts while giving up only two walks and four hits.

JJ Bottomley came in relief pitching 1 and one-third inning to pick up the save striking out three of the six batters he faced giving up two hits.

Leading hitters included Sam Eakes with a triple and two runs scored; Will Telgenhof with a single and a RBI, and a single a piece for Brad Rizzo, Noah Certa and Shane Sutherland who also scored a run.

In game two, Charlevoix fell to Gaylord with a score of 8-6, but fought back from an early 5-0 deficit.

"The boys never gave up" said team manager Brian Certa. "They are a great group of kids full of enthusiasm for the game."

Telgenhof was the losing pitcher but settled down after the first inning.

Logan Eckhardt came in relief and shut Gaylord out the last two innings.

Leading hitters for Charlevoix were Noah Certa and Bottomley with two singles apiece.

Brad Rizzo, Sutherland, Telgenhof, Luke Klinger and KeNen Borths all had singles. There were nine hits in all.

In game three, Sutherland picked up his second pitching win as Charlevoix defeated East Jordan 8-4

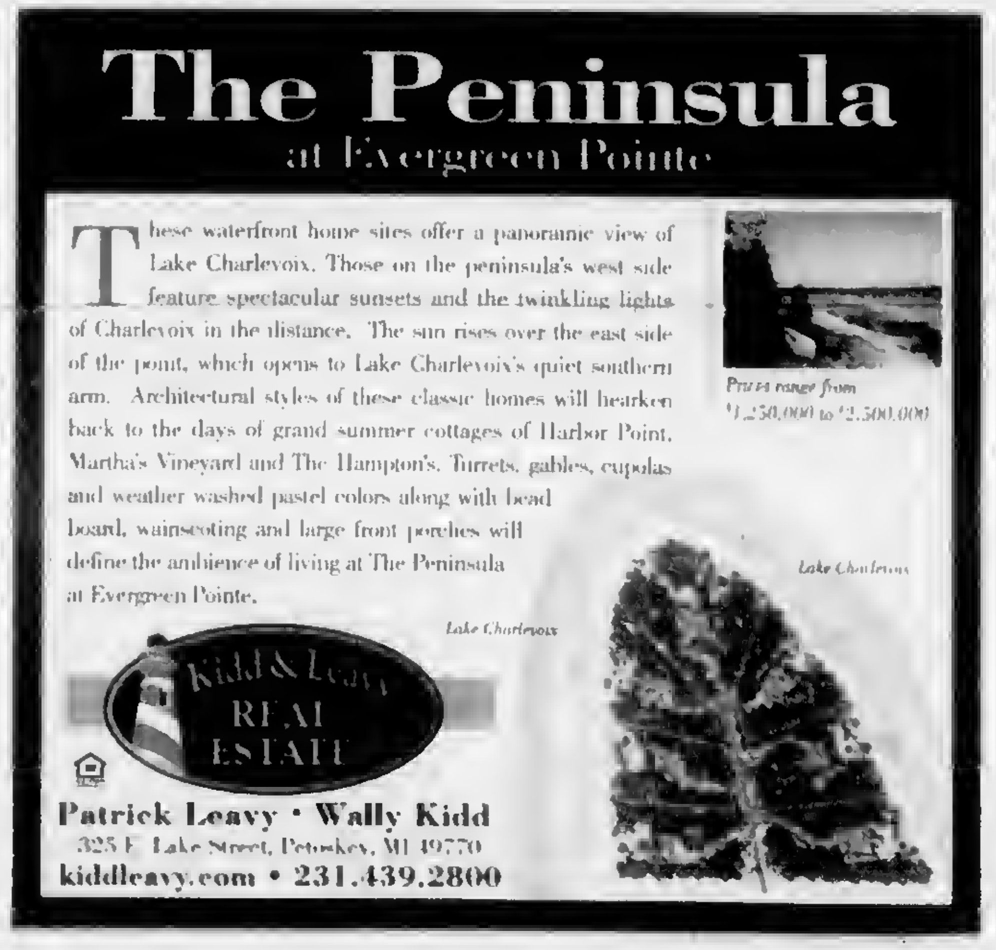
Sutherland pitched 4 and two-thirds innings striking out eight and walking two.

Bottomley finished the game striking out two.

Leading hitters included Sutherland with two singles and a single each for Sam Eakes, Noah Certa and Telgenhof. Noah Certa and Telgenhof scored two runs apiece.

Charlevoix Little League now advances to District 8 Quarter Finals in Lewiston.

Results were not available by press time.



The Peninsula
at Evergreen Pointe

These waterfront home sites offer a panoramic view of Lake Charlevoix. Those on the peninsula's west side feature spectacular sunsets and the twinkling lights of Charlevoix in the distance. The sun rises over the east side of the point, which opens to Lake Charlevoix's quiet southern arm. Architectural styles of these classic homes will hearken back to the days of grand summer cottages of Harbor Point, Martha's Vineyard and The Hampton's. Turrets, gables, cupolas and weather washed pastel colors along with bead board, wainscoting and large front porches will define the ambience of living at The Peninsula at Evergreen Pointe.

Prices range from $1,250,000 to $2,500,000

Several restrictions lifted at Bay Harbor

Restricted access area reduced along Lake Michigan shore.

Public Health officials issued a revised Public Health Advisory on July 1, 2008, for Bay Harbor , allowing access to two sections of shoreline that had been previously restricted because water along portions of the five-mile Bay Harbor shoreline was contaminated by highly caustic leachate. At the same time, officials caution that contact with contaminated by highly caustic leachate. At the same time, officials caution that contact with contaminated water in the areas which remain restricted can cause severe burns to humans and animals.

The local health department and the Michigan Department of Community Health are partnering with other regulatory agencies to assure that human exposure to harmful contaminants is restricted by issuing Public Health Advisories and controlling access to sites of concern. The other agencies involved include U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) , Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, and Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians.

Access restrictions at Seep 1, a release area west of Bay Harbor Lake, has been reduced from 1,800 feet of restricted shoreline to 930 feet, according to Scott Kendzierski, Director of Environmental Health Services for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "We revised the Bay Harbor Public Health Advisory when spring monitoring data collected by CMS Energy and EPA confirmed that pH values continue to be less than 9.0 standard units, which is considered safe by the Michigan Department of Community Health and which meets Michigan's surface water standard," he said. Additionally, EPA has authorized the removal of access control fencing and signage along the previously impacted shoreline.

CMS Energy is responsible for environmental clean-up caused by cement kiln dust (CKD) piles at the former Penn-Dixie cement plant site. When water runs through CKD piles, it creates a highly caustic liquid known as "leachate."

"It is encouraging that the interim control methods are having a positive impact on the amount of leachate collected and improved water quality along the shoreline,' said Kendzierski. CMS has installed elaborate collection systems along release areas, which are continually monitored and undergo ongoing modifications to enhance their ability to collect leachate before it can vent to Lake Michigan.

Near other seeps, leachate continues to discharge into Little Traverse Bay, posing a health threat. Public Health Advisories were issued for these area based on the acute risk of exposure to high pH and its ability to damage body tissues, Kendzierski said. Exposure to leachate at pH values of nine to 11 can result in irritation to eyes, skin, and mucus membranes. Irreversible damage can be caused by exposure to leachate at pH values above 11.

Elevated Ph Values along Bay Harbor shorelines have been shown to extend out up to 90 feet out into Little Traverse Bay in some areas, but generally are diluted below 9.0 closer to shore. Despite improvements, some areas continue to show leachate pH levels ranging between 9.0 and 13.0.

Five distinct locations continue to discharge leachate and are restricted under ongoing Public Health Advisories. East Park Seep, owned by Resort Township and located east of Bay Harbor, has been under a significant construction project to divert water and encapsulate CKD material left on site. Village Harbor Lake Seep, which lies adjacent to East Park was discovered to have high pH leachate on a 400-foot trough at the bottom of the channel and discrete areas of high pH along the southwestern corner. Seep 1, a long stretch of shoreline west of Bay Harbor Lake, is now restricted to a reduced 930-foot section between Bay Harbor Lake and Circle Drive. Pine Court Seep is an area just north of private homes on Pine Court. West CKD Seep exists northwest of the clubhouse at the Bay Harbor golf course.

"These areas, though showing improvement, still exhibit pH levels that are considered by the Michigan Department of Community Health to be a health threat. People are warned to avoid contact with these waters and are advised to restrict swimming, diving, and other recreational activities to waters outside the advisory areas," said Linda Dykema, PhD, Toxicology & Response Section Manager from the Michigan Department of Community Health.

"We are monitoring CMS and EPA testing results for each of the seeps very closely," Kendzierski said.

This is the second time since 2004 that the Health Department has lifted portions of ongoing Public Health Advisories. In 2006 the Health Department removed restriction for some 1,600 of shoreline.

"As we confirm the effectiveness of the collection systems and see continued improvement with respect to pH and human exposure issues, Public Health Advisories will be modified or removed accordingly. Our top priority is the health and safety of residents and visitors. We'll continue to issue Health Advisories and communicate why they are in effect until the public health issues have been resolved at Bay Harbor," he said.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties.

Round Lake Book hosts author Peg Herring

Peg Herring, historical novel author, will be signing from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, July 12 at the Round Lake Bookstore on 107 Mason Street, Suite 102.

Herring's book, "Macbeth's Niece" is a romance that the Historical Novel Society called "an entertaining yarn worthy of a place by a Celtic fireside."

Herring, a former educator, published with Five Star, a part of Cengage Learning.

In addition to writing, she speaks to groups about the joys of reading, particularly mysteries and historical novels. She recently presented her workshop "Write, Edit, Publish" at both the Indian River and the Petoskey Public Libraries, where people interested in becoming published writers gathered to learn about this challenging process. Herring spoke on mystery novels at the Charlevoix library in April of this year.

A native of Onaway, Peg began publishing plays for high school students in 2002 and has since added short stories and magazine articles on various subjects to her resume.

Novels are her first love, however, and her first has received critical praise.

Day of Caring planning continues

Spearheaded by Char-Em United Way and Harbor Industries' Get Involved Team, the Day of Caring is one day on which hundreds of volunteers throughout Charlevoix and Emmet Counties provide services to non-profit agencies needing help with special projects. Last year, over 600 volunteers worked on 50 projects throughout the two-county area. The 5th Annual Day of Caring is scheduled for Tuesday Sep. 16, and United Way hopes to involve 1,000 volunteers this year.

Julie Voci, Day of Caring Coordinator for United Way, explained the need. "Everyone knows that our community is suffering under the stress of a weakened economy; loss of jobs, the high cost of gas, health care, and even milk. As more people need assistance, they are turning to our community agencies which, like everyone else, have to get by with less. People who never thought they would need help are struggling and asking for aid. The Day of Caring provides us the opportunity to fill this need in our community."

The Day of Caring was started locally in 2004 by Harbor Industries, which encourages employees to be involved in their communities. In the first year, 70 volunteers worked on seven projects, and that has grown dramatically over the past four years. Volunteers perform tasks ranging from washing senior citizens' cars, to building shelves for the Red Cross, to washing windows at the Safe Home.

Other members of the Day of Caring planning committee include Bay Winds Federal Credit Union; Huntington National Bank; Way Transportation; Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Manufacturing; and Charlevoix High School.

"Just to give you an idea of the value of your volunteer efforts," Voci said, "every volunteer hour you provide is worth $19.51. It doesn't matter if you are a stay at home mom, a receptionist, CEO, retiree, line worker, your time and efforts are priceless to the agencies you help and the people they serve. It is our hope that you will find this to be a fulfilling, gratifying, and wonderful experience which will lead you to not only want to participate next year, but to join us as we work to make volunteering a year round endeavor."

If your non-profit organization has a project that has been on your wish list, just waiting for you to have the time to "get to it", please contact United Way so a Day of Caring Project Request Form can be sent to you. Businesses, organizations, faith communities, or individuals can form a team of 1 – 100 to help with Day of Caring. Volunteer teams will be matched with projects. Deadline for applications are the first week of August.

To get a Project Request form or a Volunteer Sign-up form, contact Julie at United Way. Call (231) 487-1006 or e-mail your form requests to charemuw@sbcglobal.net and put "Day of Caring" in the subject line.

Richard GILLESPIE
for Sixth District County Commissioner

"A vote for me is a vote for fiscal responsibility and transparency in county government."

Experienced Public Servant
Sixth District Commissioner, 1992-1996
Community Leader
Chairman of the Beaver Island Transportation Authority
Successful Business Leader
Real estate broker, licensed builder, licensed pilot
If elected, I promise to:
- Provide the kind of diligent oversight it takes to prevent needless lawsuits against our county and its taxpayers
- Offer innovative ideas for conserving public money and promoting public trust
- Promote open communications, and provide the people of Charlevoix County with the public information they deserve and have a right to know
- Work pro-actively with the County Road Commission to improve the quality and safety of our county transportation infrastructure

Above all, I promise to always keep the best interests of our community in mind, to always do what I say I will do, and to accept full responsibility for the actions I take

If you are voting absentee, please order your ballot package now, thank you!

Young heroines rescue drowning Wisconsin man took the throttle of the boat and throttled up.

HERO

"All of a sudden, the boat jumped out from under me," he said.

Leitz, who claims to be a pretty good swimmer, and has been involved with boating for over 30 years, said he just made a stupid mistake.

"My first instinct was to try to catch up to the dinghy because at the time it was just idling away from me," he said. "The water was so cold though and I was losing strength as I was trying to catch up to it."

Leitz said someone told him the water was 52 degrees when he fell in. Anything less than 70 degrees can induce hypothermia.

"I was in the water for about four or five minutes. If those girls hadn't gotten to me in time, I think I would have lost consciousness," said Leitz.

Leitz's only hope was the two girls on the jet-ski who were still out of reach at that point.

As he was fighting to keep his head above water, the dinghy was coming back at him.

"I knew there was nothing I could do, so I lifted my arm up to try to knock the boat out of the way," Leitz said. "The next thing I knew, I was looking at the bottom of the dinghy."

The propellor of the dinghy sliced his ear and a part of his shoulder, leaving him in need of approximately seven stitches in his ear.

When the girls got to the scene, they saw Leitz bleeding and flailing around in the water.

One of the girls threw him her life-jacket but Leitz didn't respond to it. So, Leakas decided to jump in the water and save him herself.

Flanigan was not only steering the jet-ski, but she was tied to it as well, so this left Leakas to saving the man's life.

The 135 pound Leakas was somehow able to swim the 250 to 300 pound Leitz to safety by getting him to a nearby boat that was on its way.

"There was a family on that boat, and the father kind of helped me lift him up onto their boat," Leakas said. "From there, the family covered the man's face with a towel because that's where the bleeding was coming from; then they headed to Ward's to get the man to a hospital."

After Leakas got back on the jet-ski, the girls located the out-of-control dinghy. Flanigan jumped on the small boat, which had run into a moored sailboat, and hit the killswitch.

Later in the day, the girls met the man they saved, and his wife, at the hospital.

"Both he and his wife gave us a great big hug and they just kept saying 'thank you, thank you, thank you.' They were incredibly grateful towards us," Flanigan said. "It's so weird: Last summer, I rode the jet-ski around and used it for fun all season long; This year, I used it to save somebody's life."

Leakas said the event was all a blur.

"I had never taken any life-saving classes before," she said. "The water was freezing, and I don't even know how I was able to do it. I can hardly remember how I swam with him."

Leakas added, "He was moving around everywhere and I think I just put my arm around his chest or over his shoulder to get him over to that family's boat."

Ann Denison, Leakas' grandmother, was the first to receive the girl following her heroic action.

"She just came home to me and didn't say anything. She was just shaking," Denison said. "When I asked her what was wrong, she said, 'I just saved a man's life.' You could tell she was in shock."

She added, "I told her, 'you should feel lucky, not everyone gets the chance to save somebody's life.'"

Both of the girls work as camp counselors at the Belvedere, where they'll be living for the summer.

"They really are very amazing girls," Denison said. "They did the right thing and I'm very proud of them."

EXPERIENCE THE DIGITAL MAMMOGRAPHY DIFFERENCE

Advanced Technology Made Possible by the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Foundation and the Generous Donors of Our Region.

A Clearer Choice.

Advanced imaging offers breakthrough in breast cancer detection

Digital mammography – the most advanced imaging technology in the prevention and detection of breast cancer – is now available at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital.

Digital mammography provides:
- improved effectiveness for women under 50, pre- or peri-menopausal women, and women with dense breasts
- images that are sharper and clearer than film
- the option of zooming in on specific regions of interest

The Northern Michigan Regional Hospital digital mammography difference includes:
- the advantage of multiple on-site radiologists for easy, rapid consultation on difficult cases
- computer automated detection (CAD) providing radiologists with an extra "set of eyes"
- digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

When it comes to women's health, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is clearly committed to early breast cancer detection.

For more information about digital mammography, please call 231.487.4863 to reach Breast Health Services.

The charges against a pair of men arrested earlier last week in connection with a rash of business and church break-ins are beginning to stack up.

Following a cooperative investigation involving police agencies in Emmet and Charlevoix counties, police arrested Michael Lee Allred, 23, of Petoskey, and Eric Scott May, 21, of Charlevoix on Wednesday.

The two are facing a host of breaking and entering charges in connection with break-ins that took place in the Alanson, Petoskey and Charlevoix areas in recent weeks.

They were arraigned Friday, July11 on one count each of possession of burglar tools, breaking and entering with intent, and criminal enterprises stemming from an early Wednesday break-in at the NAPA store on Charlevoix Avenue in Petoskey. They were also arraigned on three counts each of breaking and entering in connection to three recent incidents in Charlevoix County. The Charlevoix cases stem from break ins that took place on June 16 at the Church of

County seeks relief in whistleblower's lawsuit

BY BENJAMIN GOHS EDITOR

Two defendants now remain after four county officials were dropped earlier this April from a whistle-blower suit filed by former jail administrator Babette Meggison.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema and county commissioners Shirley Roloff, Chris Christensen and Joel Evans were voluntarily dismissed by the plaintiff following depositions in the case filed in June, 2007, which leaves Charlevoix County and its Sheriff George T. Lasater, then Meggison's supervisor, to do battle in the case now overseen by U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids.

"We have no authority over her as an employee. She is an employee of an elected official," Jarema said. "She was told to clean things and she didn't do them. Naming us four was a frivolous lawsuit right from the beginning."

The county's legal representation intends to file a motion to dismiss the remaining suit in the coming weeks.

THE COMPLAINT

According to the complaint filed by Meggison's attorney Debra A. Freid of Saginaw, Meggison, who was hired as a corrections officer in 1988 and named jail administrator in 1997, and an undisclosed number of her co-workers developed respiratory and other illnesses in 2001 due to poor air quality following renovations and construction of an addition to the jail.

"Staff and inmates continued to get sick and the complaints to plaintiff (Meggison) continued," the East Park open for Venetian

July 20 is the deadline of all deadlines.

Charlevoix city officials say despite starting nearly eight months later than planned, and lagging months passed the most recent of several moving deadlines, East Park will be ready in time for The 78th Annual Venetian Festival.

"My hope and prayer is that we will open the park on schedule and then we'll just have a punch list left after that," said Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "The punch list is little odds and ends you find when you first start using things. They are little things that a contractor may overlook, like touch-up paint, that a fresh set of eyes might catch."

The project, now expected to be complete when the first act goes on stage at East Park's new performance pavilion, has been plagued with bureaucratic bog-downs from the State of Michigan's Waterways Commission, which is one of three parties with a con-complaint stated. "Plaintiff sought help from Sheriff George Lasater, but again, nothing was done which actually cleaned up the air and/or addressed the perceived health risks."

The issue then seems to have lay dormant for nearly four years until, in 2005, it was once again brought to the surface with an environmental testing report which determined that Co2 levels in the jail's control room were high

THE PROBLEM

A May, 2006 report by Rhoades engineering stated that the ductwork should be cleaned, and in June, 2006, Jarema was directed by the board of commissioners to determine whether their insurance carrier would pay for the work. It was later discovered that improper use and maintenance of the heating ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) system by Babette Meggison's brother-in-law Tom Meggison, then a jail maintenance worker, may have contributed to the air quality issues.

County documents reveal that fresh air vents were kept closed despite orders to keep them open, air exchange grills were not cleaned, filters and belts were improperly fastened.

THE CONTROVERSY

The issue climaxed when, at the February, 2007 board of commissioners meeting, Babette Meggison and several coworkers spoke out about the jail's HVAC system, going so far as to say she felt there might be a cover-up.

The commissioners, four of whom had been on the job for less than two months when the accusation of a cover-up was levied, voted unanimously to have two companies perform a full clean-up of the HVAC system.

THE WHISTLEBLOWER

The bulk of Meggison's suit relies on her claim that she was subsequently mistreated by her bosses because she came forward with said jail air quality concerns.

In addition to emotional distress, mental anguish and ill-effects to her physical health, she claims to have suffered injury to her feelings, loss of professional esteem and reputation, humiliation, embarrassment and loss of income.

The Whistleblowers Protection Act of 1980 was designed to protect employees who report violations or suspected violations of law or who participate in hearings, investigations, inquiries or court actions.

Employers may be in violation if they are found, "Discharging, threatening, or otherwise discriminating against employee reporting violation of law, regulation, or rule."

Babette Meggison seeks an amount exceeding $25,000 not including costs, interest and attorney fees.

"It was a collective effort to try to deal with it including myself, Tom Meggison, we had interest from some of the county board of commissioners, specifically (Connie) Saltonstall and it included her (Babette Meggison)," Lasater said. "Everyone I've talked to say it's (HVAC system) excellent and I've had no complaints thanks to the efforts of John Jarema and the county board of commissioners."

Lasater said when he was first notified of the issue he asked the testing agency if his employees were in harm's way.

"They said definitely not," he said. "There was a realignment of assignments due to the fact that some of the required preventative maintenance was not being taken care of."

Lasater said the accusations that he refused to respond to Meggison's pleas for help and that jail staff treated her poorly are "absolutely false."

Jarema said she never made a complaint, nor was she about to make a complaint about a perceived violation of law, rule or regulation per the Whistleblower's Act.

"(The) only violation I know of is the violation of the maintenance person who shut off the air dampers which caused a high level of Co2 in the control room," Jarema said. "She never brought that forward, it was the engineers, mechanical inspector and installer. By her own admission, the maintenance person was under her guidance and she could be held liable for his negligence."

East Park ecstacy

Ecstatic: The only word of which we can think to describe the culmination of the 78th Annual Venetian Festival and the completion of East Park. Sure, there were a few bumps along the proverbial road, but with a stellar team consisting of street superintendent Pat Elliot, city manager Rob Straebel and Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority head Keith Carey, in addition to Hallmark Construction and the city's new architect, the project has come to fruition.

Not only is the park more beautiful, functional and unique than we ever could have imagined, but its first use will be for Charlevoix's largest celebration.

We want to thank all those men and women whose hard work made the realization of the park possible, and we also want to thank all the folks who exercised great patience in waiting for what is truly the gem of the north.

So get ready, folks, for soon we may all enjoy what is arguably the pride of Charlevoix, and beyond.

Black smudge = green living

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I will confess right at the start that I buy a copy of the New York Times every day if I can find it. Unlike the decades-ago readers of Playboy Magazine who would tell us that they bought the magazine for the written articles and did not look at the pictures, I am inclined to look at the pictures before reading the news or commentary.

The photographs are often outstanding, even spectacular, and the written material is of high quality.

As any reader of that newspaper rapidly becomes aware, the ink comes off the page and onto the fingers handling it.

I called the Times, as I am sure thousands of other readers have, and was informed that they use a soy-based ink, which is environmentally friendly and makes recycling simpler.

Initially I was annoyed by the gray smudges I left on everything I touched after reading the paper, but I have had second thoughts.

A former student of mine, who was for some years the Minnesota State Epidemiologist told everyone who would listen that the most important key to general public health and to reducing the spread of contagious infections was to do diligently what our mothers had all told us to do. "Wash your hands," they said.

Especially wash your hands before eating anything, so the germs on the hands would not get to your mouth, nose and throat. According to my former student, hand washing is the key to public health.

During the course of a morning reading of the New York Times, I am almost forced to wash my hands at least once and often twice. When I bundle up the Times for recycling, I need to wash my hands again. All that hand-washing must surely contribute to my personal continued good health.

There is a larger issue lurking here. I am not sure how many people read the New York Times daily, but it is a larger number.

There is a better than even chance that as a result of all that encouraged hand-washing, the population of Times readers is generally healthier than their peers who read the Wall Street Journal or U.S.A. Today which do not have ink on their fingers after reading.

They might even be healthier than readers of the Charlevoix Courier.

I am certain this is not a plot or a conspiracy, but the combination of environmentally benign ink and a potentially healthier readership is too much of a win-win circumstance to ignore.

Every newspaper could contribute to general good health by using ink that smudges easily, thus encouraging hand washing.

We are told that reading of actual print and paper newspapers is generally declining. If we could just get all the papers to use smudging ink, flu and colds might almost disappear from our world, or at least from newspaper readers.

And newspapers might be saved from extinction once their contribution to good health is recognized.

Either that or more and more people would just walk around with ink-stained fingers and hands. The choice is ours.

Memories of a well spent youth

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Is it pathetic for a dozen or so guys in their mid-30s to gather for a weekend each summer? Maybe.

There's a lot to be said for letting go of the past. But, hecks, who doesn't wish they were young again?

As I ready the campsite, and my liver for the fifth annual reunion of the guys, I can't help but look at this picture of us from 1994. It was taken at my first apartment in a little slum in Cheboygan.

Having never spent more than a day away from one another, it wasn't long before most of the guys made the trek from our hometown, Bay City, to the great white north to see how their "Benny" was doing.

And that's how it always was. No matter where we were or how long apart, our close-knit group could always take up right where we left off.

Gone now are the days of partying in the old barn, camping in Rose City and climbing a billboard in a gorilla suit just to mess with passing cars: After a short police chase, Johnny Law called it distracting to the flow of traffic.

We called it hilarious. And, looking back, I suspect the officer got a chuckle as well because he never did ticket us for trespassing or running from him.

I guess life can't be all Mad Dog 20/20 and fishing on the Rifle River, which is exactly why we still get together once a year.

I laugh when I think about how long it takes for these guys to revert from fathers, husbands and professionals back into 15-year-olds. In no time at all we're laughing and ragging one another and trying not to be the first one to fall asleep for fear of that compromising picture appearing on a T-shirt.

Sure, not everyone can make it; Kyle moved to Arizona back in '92 and was never heard from again; Joel moved to Montana; and one of the guys, who shall remain nameless for reasons which will soon be clear, shot three fellas during a brawl a few years ago. It was ruled self-defense, but we know better. I haven't seen the gunslinger in nine years, but I miss him.

I suppose a couple of the guys who haven't made it to a reunion yet are suffering from some problems which make taking a trip just too much to handle, and I sympathize.

Some of us got fat, some of us got divorced, one of us still lives in his mother's basement and at least three of us are raging alcoholics—In case you were wondering, I'm the fat one.

It's tough to find the time and money to drop everything, but when you take the trials of life into consideration, we generally get a good turnout.

We had about seven show up last year, which ain't half bad considering the first get-together consisted of four. It sounds like this year we might get as many as 10, but that remains to be seen.

Well, I've got to get packing my Tums and aspirin.

Oh, and if you happen to see a picture of yours truly in full makeup and sleeping with an inflatable pig, try to remember that it was merely a desperate attempt to recapture my youth, and not just another Saturday night for Gohs.

Standing off to the right is cousin Danny and sitting behind Gohs' son, Nicholas, is Dan. Missing from the photo are Kent and Kyla.

SUPPORTERS OF SCHNEIDER

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the supporters of Don Schneider, candidate for Charlevoix County Sheriff, who walked in the East Jordan Freedom Festival Parade with nearly 60 in attendance and the Boyne City July 4 parade, with over 110 from all over Charlevoix County, was wonderful. We all know what a busy time summer is in northern Michigan and say-thank you to everyone who made the time to be there for Don; you are all very much appreciated.

PROSECUTOR APPROVED

Editor:

As the Prosecuting Attorney and Chief Law Enforcement Official for Charlevoix County, I have had the opportunity to work with both candidates running for Charlevoix County Sheriff.

The prosecutor's office and the Sheriff's Office must work as a team to ensure the safety of our citizens.

We must be on the same page and be pro-active in our programs to make this community safe.

In my first term, I have prosecuted two murder cases, both of which were handled by the Sheriff's Office.

These cases were complex and involved and I was fortunate to have the professionalism of the Sheriff's Office in seeking justice.

Don Schneider was instrumental in both cases. He has integrity and is a true leader.

Don Schneider has implemented several pro-active programs at the Sheriff's Office including a forensic computer analyst, free DNA kits for parents, Prescription Drug Recovery Program and Project Lifesaver.

The in-house forensic computer analyst has been invaluable in seeking swift justice so that victims have closure as soon as possible.

Don Schneider is ethical, moral and a proven leader.

He has chosen Chuck Vondra as his Undersheriff.

Chuck Vondra, mayor-pro-tem in Boyne City and City Commissioner for nine years, has extensive experience in budgets.

Schneider's Office will be fiscally responsible and an office we can all be proud of.

The team of Schneider and Vondra will carry on the foundation established by Sheriff Lasater.

I fully endorse Don Schneider for Sheriff of Charlevoix County. He is a proven leader; he is pro-active and will run the Sheriff's Office with dignity and professionalism.

Please join me in voting for William Donald Schneider for Sheriff on Aug. 5.

TAKE A BOW, TAKE-A-SEAT HELPERS

Editor:

We would like to express our gratitude to all those who helped make the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix Take-A-Seat Chair-ity Auction on June 25 a huge success. We were able to net a approximately $25,000 to be distributed among our five recipient organizations: B.A.S.E.S., Challenge Mountain, First Congregational Church Community Outreach, Hiland Cottage Hospice House and Northern Community Mediation.

We especially want to thank the 43 artists who generously donated their time and creative talents to create one-of-a-kind pieces of functional art to make our auction so unique. In addition to the artists we are greatly appreciative of the participation of 141 others from all over the state who helped in myriad ways as committee members, sponsors, advertisers, event volunteers, furniture donors, repairers, sanders, and primers, and silent auction donors.

Our hats off to the team that made the evening so enjoyable: our caterer, for the fabulous food; John Murray, our auctioneer, for making spending money fun; and pianist Don Neidert, for his lovely music.

And, of course, thank-you to the 235 people who attended the event, purchased items and/or generously donated to the five organizations the night of the event.

This event was a reflection of the spirit that is alive here in our communities, and confirms our belief that we live in a very special area whose residents care deeply about their communities and want to show their gratitude by giving back in whatever way they can.

Thank you for helping us with our community outreach mission.

DON IS DANDY

Editor:

As chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican party for the past 24 years, I am endorsing William Donald Schneider, candidate for Charlevoix County Sheriff. He has been a supportive, active and registered member of the Charlevoix County Republicans for 11 years, currently serving as vice-chair. He supports our party by making our local events a priority and always attends our Lincoln Day Dinner each spring and our annual picnic each summer, as well as other events we hold throughout the year. Please join me in voting for William Donald

Christine Boss: Feb. 22, 1915 - July 10, 2008

Christine Boss, 93, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, July 10, 2008 at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital in Petoskey.

She was born February 22, 1915 in Banks Township, the daughter of Herman and Maggie (Veenstra) Heeres.

On February 20, 1937, she married William Boss in Ellsworth. They made their home in South Arm Township for many years, moving to Ellsworth in 1967, and to Charlevoix in 1997. Mr. Boss died February 20, 2008 on their 71st wedding anniversary.

Christine worked as a homemaker who especially enjoyed sewing, gardening, reading, doing puzzles, drawing and painting. She was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church.

Surviving are her children Ronald (Jan) Boss of Albuquerque, NM and Cindy (Kenneth) Derenzy of Alamogordo, N.M.; son-in-law Michael Jacobson of Mancelona; six grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and a brother, Henry (Kathryn) Heeres of Ellsworth. She was preceded by an infant daughter Margaretta, son Gordon Boss, and daughter Lois Jacobson.

The funeral service was held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, July 15, at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church with the Rev. Carl J. Afman officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery. For those wishing to make memorial contributions the family suggests Ebenezer Christian School or the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church.

Gerald Johnson: Nov. 23, 1919 - July 8, 2008

On July 8, 2008, November's Angels came and took their beloved Gerald home to rest, their valiant soldier will fight no more.

He was born Nov. 23, 1919, in Boyne City, to John Adolf Johnson and Hazel Lillian (Smith) Johnson. As a small child, he worked alongside adults digging potatoes and picking cherries to help support the family. He held several farm related jobs while attending Boyne City

Public Schools. He graduated from Boyne City High School in 1937. He was a certified lumber grader through Michigan State University. He joined the Civilian

Conservation Corps in 1938. He worked at the Motor Wheel Factory in Lansing, where he fell in love with the love of his life, Edith. On June 5, 1942, he married Edith Bebee in Lansing, where they made their home. He was drafted into the U.S. Army in December of 1942. He was a member of the 508 Battalion of the 82nd Airborne. Within 19 days, they saw he was a natural born leader of men. He was promoted to staff sergeant and assigned to the 3810th Quarter Master Trucking Company. He served under General Gavin, Patton and Ridgeway. He participated in the European Theater of War. He fought battles in Normandy, France, Rhineland, the Ardennes and Central Europe. He participated in combat for five major campaigns of the war: The Invasion of Normandy (D-Day), Battle of the Bulge, The Bridge at Remagen, The Liberation of France, the Fall of Berlin. He was one of the suicide drivers, men who hauled gasoline and incendiary bombs to the front lines. Out of 45 trucks that left Spa Germany, only two trucks made it to our tanks, which had run out of gas 3 miles outside of Berlin. He also drove the first gasoline truck across the Bridge at Remagen. He was a survivor, he was a leader, he was a soldier. He received the motor vehicle drivers badge, M1917 Rifle Marksman Carbine Expert Medal, Good Conduct Medal, W.W.II Victory Medal, American Campaign Medal, European African Middle Eastern Campaign Medal with five Bronze Stars. After the war, Gerald and Edith moved to Northern Michigan and made their home on their farm in Hayes Township on Maple Grove Road. Gerald owned and operated Kant Hardley Lumber Company for 30 year. He also worked for log homes and the Buick factory in Flint, while maintaining the family farm. He was a lifetime member and past post commander of the VFW Post 1153 in Charlevoix. He was a 32nd Degree Mason. He was the bingo chairperson of the VFW bingo for 17 1/2 years. He also volunteered to pick up the supplies for the food pantry for its distribution for 18 years. He enjoyed his bingo patrons and spending time with all of his many friends and neighbors. He lived up to his name: spear mighty and strong, the Norseman. He was a powerful man in both mind and body. Driven by a strong work ethic, he demanded it of others. He was a man of justice. He possessed a grand sense of humor and used it often. He was a big bear of a man with huge, hardworking hands. Hands that drove trucks, built several homes, cut logs, carried a gun through a tragic war and held babies lovingly to his chest. A beloved son, husband, brother, father, grandpa and friend, he will be missed forever. He is survived by his beloved wife, Edith, and their children, Gerald Johnson, Mike (Rosemary) Johnson, Hazel (Gary) Loder, Judy Johnson, Cindy (Steve) Johnecheck, Melody (Gerry) Marquardt and Bonnie Johnson. He is survived by his brothers and sisters, Thomas (Tiny) Johnson, Glenna Gillespie, Leonore Baker and Johnny (Mary) Johnson. He is survived by his grandchildren, Dianna (Ron), Michael II (Heather), John, Karl (Tammy), David (Andrea), Laura (Tim), Jessica (Tim), Steve (Kim), Matthew (Taryn), Tyson, Kristine, Gerald (Valerie), Jared and Sarah. He is survived by his great-grandchildren, Michael III, Amber, Jayde, Kayla, Cash, Ali, Morgan and Michael, Star, Naomi, Lilymarie, Lilah, Lillian, Kimberly, Margo, Noah, Kaylee, Gabriel, Tanner, Samuel, Forest, Rylin, Meghan and Madeline. He is also survived by many nieces, nephews and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents, John and Hazel; brother, Sherland Pixley; sister, Clarice Gillespie; and his beloved son, Gilbert. His battle for peace was long and hard, but he rose from the field victorious with Gilbert by his side. A memorial service honoring Gerald's life will be held in the future. Memorial contributions can be sent to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Old soldiers never die, they just fade away. Arrangements are being handled by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Donald E. Potter: Dec. 22, 1947 - July 11, 2008

Donald E. Potter, 60, of Charlevoix, died Friday, July 11, 2008, at his home in Charlevoix. Funeral scheduled for July16 at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, the Reverend Michael Arp officiating. Visitation was from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, at the funeral home, and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix. Don was born December 22, 1947, in Charlevoix to Ernest "Ernie" and Marguerite "Millie" (Gamble) Potter. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1966, then attended college in Nebraska as an education major. He worked for the City of Charlevoix parks. In 2005, after 32 years, Don retired from Charlevoix Public Schools where he worked as a custodian. He coached Major Little League in Charlevoix for fifteen years, Charlevoix Girl's Basketball for seventeen years, and volleyball for two years. He was passionate about model trains, enjoyed hunting, fishing, boating, and bowling; taking friends for long rides on his pontoon boat, and sports of all kinds. The friendship he had with the Charlevoix School staff was very special to him, as were his friendships to students, relatives, and all of his buddies. His parents were his best friends, and he spent weekends with them at his home in Central Lake cooking out, fishing, and spending time with his dogs. Don is survived by his mother, Millie of Charlevoix, and all of the friends mentioned above. Don's father Ernie preceded him in death in 2006. Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, the Charlevoix/Antrim County Humane Society, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, or to the Salvation Army.

Council approves ski hill groomer funding

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

City council committed to funding part of the purchase of a new ski hill groomer for Mt. McSauba.

A $5,000 fully refundable deposit has been made by the city on a used 2007 Pisten Bully groomer that is $20,000 less than a new model.

"If other possible donors see that the city council made a financial commitment, then they'll probably see that it's OK to do the same," said Ike Boss, city recreation director. "I think if you commit now, the rest of the city will follow."

At the last city council meeting, there was discussion regarding the city committing up to $100,000 towards the purchase of the groomer.

Boss

However, since the city does not have sufficient reserve funds in the Mt. McSauba fund, the city will need to borrow the money.

According to Boss, fundraising to date is estimated at around $20,000.

Grants have been submitted to the Dow Foundation, Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the Oleson Foundation, the Frey Foundation, and a Bay Harbor granting organization.

Costs for the 2007 model with a 1-year engine warranty at $1,500, switchblade which costs $8,000 and $2,300 in shipping is totaled at $228,300.

City treasurer Rick Brandi recommended the city's water fund could be used for the loan with repayment over the next 10 years.

The loan would include interest at the market rate, which the water fund would have earned otherwise.

"I like to keep it clean and know where we're getting the money from," Brandi said. "The electric fund was already committed to a possible loan for the East Park Project if we needed it."

Brandi also said structuring the loan from the water fund in this way with the interest rate guarantees that the money will all be repaid.

Funds to pay the annual debt service would come from revenue generated from tower leases at Mt. McSauba. Annual revenues amount to nearly $13,800.

"The ski hill will not be able to make capital improvements," said Brandi. "The money from the tower lease will go back to paying the water fund."

Last month, Boss came before the city council to ask the city for approximately $215,000 for a new ski hill groomer for Mt. McSauba.

A groomer provides better conditions for skiers and makes the trails safe to ski on.

Without a groomer, Boss said Mt. McSauba would be unable to operate this winter and would face the possibility of closing down permanently if they never got one.

Boss suggested that, since Charlevoix is "so pro-recreation," they should not mind contributing to the purchase of a new groomer.

The old groomer broke an axle and Dwight said he and his workers spent more time trying to fix it than they did actually using it.

He also said operating the hill without a groomer is not an option because it puts people in danger.

Boss said he's very confident he will have raised $150,000 by Sept. 1 of this year through fundraising.

According to Boss, the rates for the ski hill this winter will increase slightly to help contribute to the cost of the groomer.

However, because of Mt. McSauba's popularity over the years, the minimal price hike won't make too much of a difference.

"We've filled every summer session this year (for children's day camp)," Boss said. "We've never done that in 34 years. I'm confident that the ski hill will be successful this winter."

BEST THINGS IN LIFE NOT FREE

Editor,

Looking back upon the July 4 festivities with its parades, picnics and fireworks celebrating the birth of our nation, with all its liberties and freedoms, we often fail to fully acknowledge that these liberties and freedoms are not free.

Looking back five weeks further to the ceremonies of Memorial Day with the processions, prayers, rifle salutes and buglers sounding taps, the reality of the cost of our liberties and freedoms were solemnly made visible in cemeteries across our nation by the American Flags waving above the graves of our veterans who all gave some and some gave all to ensure our way of life, liberties and freedoms.

When our men and women entered the military service, took the oath and donned a uniform, they entered into a contract with the people of the United States, through our representative form of government, and agreed to defend our Constitution, giving their lives if necessary, that our nation would remain free as the founding fathers intended.

In return, the people, through our government, agreed to ensure that all veterans would be afforded an opportunity to receive a higher education, buy a home, find employment, be cared for medically and receive a dignified funeral when answering the final call.

The Veterans Administration (VA) has long been reputed to not be user friendly as veterans are often flooded with paperwork, given excuses and, at times, forced to wait years to receive benefits to which they are entitled.

The VA offers very little information as to benefits available to veterans and usually only after contacting a county veterans counselor, or a service officer of a veteran's organization, will the veterans receive the benefits they are entitled to.

One of those little known benefits is end of life care authorized by the Veterans Eligibility Act of 1998.

Any eligibly veteran, who is enrolled in the VA health care system, may receive hospice care at a VA hospital, a community hospice or at home through a community hospice agency and the VA is obligated to pay the entire bill. Period. No means test.

The requirement to qualify for hospice is that a doctor has to attest that the patient is likely to die within six months. But, known this: an enrolled veteran is entitled to end of life care at VA expense.

Electing to get some of the end of life care through Medicare does not change the veteran's right to get care from the VA when that is what the veteran wants.

The nation that forgets its defenders will itself be forgotten.

Duty and honor for God and country.

Meeting scheduled to discuss Norwood's roads

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Care about Norwood roads?

Then be sure to make the 6 p.m., July 21 meeting at Norwood Township Hall when the Roads Committee comprised of Denny Way, Rod Richardson, Bill Gnodtke and Tim Boyko, will be discussing the possibility of starting a construction project on the roads.

"We took a ride around the Norwood area and examined the roads and their conditions," said Way. "Dixie Highway, which is one of the target roads we've got in mind, is a half mile stretch and it hasn't been worked on in over 25 years."

Two of the other target roads are Lake Street and Harris Street.

Way's big concern is getting local residents out to the meeting so that he and the committee can hear everyone's feedback and answer any questions they may have.

The township plans on splitting the construction into two big projects. Dixie Highway by itself and the other project would be Lake Street and Harris Street collectively.

"If the residents support the idea of new roads, which we very badly need, then we'll go and get money from the road commission," Way said.

The roads committee is looking for ways to solve the drainage problems with the roads which would include cleaning out the culverts, build a base back up, add slope and re-paving them with a crown.

"The excess money over and above what was in the road fund was simple excess general fund balance," said Boyko. "We (township board) concluded the best use of this money would be to maintain the roads in our township. We still have, and will maintain, a safe rainy day balance."

According to Way, the project will cost approximately $215,000.

"We're sitting on around $190,000 for the project," he said.

Way also said that there is a possibility, if residents express a concern of too much construction, that the two projects can be done at separate times.

"We can even do one this summer and one next summer if that's what the people want," he said.

The Roads Committee is a local group in Norwood that drives around and evaluates road conditions.

Way said he and the other three members ask themselves two things: Where is the need for a better road, and where is traffic impact the highest?

"I think the task force has done a good job prioritizing projects," Boyko said. "We hope to discuss what roads were fixed recently and what roads we propose to work on this year."

Way said the meeting is meant to draw discussion between local residents and the Roads Committee to make sure it is an accepted idea amongst everyone before they go to the Charlevoix County Road Commission and ask them to coordinate it.

The digital TV transition is coming soon

What Is The Digital TV (DTV) Transition?

Currently, many over-the-air stations are broadcasting in both analog and digital TV formats. After February 17, 2009, full-power TV stations will broadcast only in digital. The DTV transition will affect those who watch free over-the-air television (through a rooftop antenna or "rabbit ears"). If you watch over-the-air programs on an analog TV, you must take action before February 17, 2009.

Why Are Broadcast Stations Switching to Digital?

Federal law requires the switch, which will free up the airwaves for police, fire, and emergency rescue communications, allow broadcasters to offer programming with better picture and sound quality and offer more programming choices, and allow for advanced wireless services for consumers.

What Should I Do to Be Ready?

You have three choices.

• choice one - Connect your analog TV to a digital-to-analog converter box. Digital-to-analog converter boxes are in stores and have a one-time cost of $40-$70. To help you pay for the boxes, the U.S. Government is offering two $40 coupons per household. For more information on the coupons, visit www.DTV2009.gov, or call 1-888-388-2009 (voice) or 1-877-530-2634 (TTY). Plus, you should not need a new antenna if you get good quality reception on analog channels 2-51 with your existing antenna. Or

• choice two - Buy a digital television (a TV with a built-in digital tuner). You do not need a High Definition TV (HDTV) to watch digital broadcast television. You only need a digital TV (or an analog TV connected to a digital-to-analog converter box). Plus, you should not need a new antenna if you get good quality reception on analog channels 2-51 with your existing antenna. Or choice three - Subscribe to a paid TV service. If your TV set receives local broadcast stations through a paid provider such as cable or satellite TV, it is already prepared for the DTV transition. Cable companies are not required to transition or switch any of their channels to digital. However, if you have an analog TV that does not receive local broadcast stations through your paid provider, you will need a digital-to-analog converter box to watch digital broadcasts on that TV.

For more information call (888) CALL-FCC or visit www.DTV.gov.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN'S ONLY 4D BREAST MRI

Introducing a Powerful New Tool in the Fight Against Breast Cancer

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital takes the lead in women's health with new Breast MRI imaging

Breast MRI is an extremely powerful tool that compliments your physician's resources in diagnosing and fighting breast cancer.

The benefits of Breast MRI are many:
- This advanced diagnostic system may detect breast cancer missed by mammography for women who are high-risk due to a family history of breast cancer
- New research suggests MRI scans may detect precursors to breast cancer, allowing early intervention to prevent cancer growth among high-risk women before it even starts
- Performing this test may also reduce the number of breast biopsies done to evaluate a suspicious breast mass seen with mammography

Breast MRI at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital provides:
- Leading expertise in reading and analysis of Breast MRIs through a partnership with one of the nation's leading Breast MRI institutes
- Digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, in our continued commitment to women's health, is proud to be the first and only Breast MRI provider in all of northern Michigan.

Meggison seeks more than $25,000 in damages

MISTREATMENT IS ALLEGED

In a March 12, 2007 letter from Babette Meggison to Lasater, she complained of being treated poorly and having her duties altered, she believed, as a result of speaking out about the air quality.

"I expressed frustration about the perceived lack of action by the board and the prosecutor," she stated. "Since that time, my working conditions have continued to deteriorate and have become almost unbearable."

Lasater put jail maintenance oversight under the purview of the undersheriff because Babette Meggison failed to ensure her maintenance employee Tom Meggison was properly maintaining the HVAC system.

Tom Meggison was then transferred to work at the Charlevoix County Building for the final months leading up to his retirement and a new maintenance worker replaced Tom Meggison at the jail.

According to Jarema, Babette Meggison, "Did not do her job, as she let him (Tom Meggison) violate the mechanical code. He was a contributing factor, if not the sole factor, in high Co2 levels in the jail (and) he didn't maintain the filters in an appropriate manner."

Jarema also said Babette Meggison was well aware the HVAC system's vents needed to remain open and that it was a health risk to keep them closed.

Babette Meggison, who did not return phone calls by press time, called in sick to work on March 12, 2007 and, though still considered an employee because she has not quit and was not fired, she is currently receiving no pay.

Babette Meggison has been off work for nearly 16 months, during which time Charlevoix County Jail corrections officer Derek Gaylord has been the acting jail administrator.

Babette Meggison's husband, Jerry, is running for the District Five Charlevoix County Board seat.

Tom Meggison is running for the District Six county

WEEKLY BRIEFS

A collection of governmental, law enforcement and community happenings

• Charlevoix County Planning Department is currently taking public comment on their future land use plan and recreation plan. Visit www.charlevoixcounty.org to view the plans and get more information.

• As the bounty of local food is becoming readily available, more people are getting access to fresh, local produce through Project FRESH this summer.

Project FRESH (Farm Resources Expanding and Supporting Health) is a program that makes fresh produce available to low-income, nutritionally-at-risk consumers and also supports Michigan farmers. Project FRESH operates from June 1 through Oct. 31 each year. Coupon booklets are provided to participants in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) to purchase locally grown fruits and vegetables at authorized farmers markets and roadside stands. Specially printed coupon booklets are issued to WIC participants who reside in participating counties. Each participant receives ten $2 coupons which may be used at the authorized markets and stands. For more information about Project FRESH, visit www.projectfresh.msu.edu. To learn more about MIFFS or MIFMA, visit www.miffs.org or www.farmersmarkets.msu.edu, or call (517) 432-0712.

• Michigan residents and visitors need to adhere to Michigan's quarantine banning the transport of ash trees, ash materials and all hardwood firewood from quarantined areas to prevent the spread of Emerald Ash Borer (EAB). Quarantine violators face fines/penalties ranging from $1,000 up to $250,000 and face up to five years in jail if found guilty.

• The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club announces its 2008-2009 Board of Directors: president Michelle Burke, director Crystal Schemanski, treasurer Celina Wanek, secretary Alicia Guidice, and vice-president Elisabeth Drost.

• Supporters of Char-Em United Way recently celebrated the success of its recent campaign, thank those involved, distribute community investment allocations to partner agencies, and make the annual John Newton Awards. They raised a record $323,428 in pledges and donations. Call (231) 487-1006 or e-mail charemuw@sbcglobal.net for more information.

• Free family planning services are available at Health Department offices for women age 19 to 44 who qualify for the Plan First! program. Plan First! coverage includes office visits for family planning-related services, prescriptions for birth control, birth control supplies, and lab tests.

The plan covers: American citizens or qualified immigrants, those who meet monthly family income limits, those with a Social Security number or who have applied for one and those who are not receiving Medicaid benefits. Applications for Plan First! are available at Health Department offices, www.nwhealth.org or www.michigan.gov/mdch.

• The Board of Directors of the United Way of Northwest Michigan appointed Steven Wade, out of 46 applicants, to serve as its Executive Director. Wade has a degree in Social Work from Shepherd College in West Virginia and has worked for and run several non-profit organizations. He has been an area resident for the last eight years.

• The Charlevoix Junior Golf program participants and their parents saluted the Municipal Golf Course at a special family night event recently in an effort to publicly thank the city course management team and to also enable parents to become aware of the excellent golf facility. The event attracted 60 junior golfers and 90 moms and dads.

• The Charlevoix Area Community Pool recently installed a new ultraviolet light (UV), which is the newest and most advanced water purification and treatment method for swimming pools, water parks, and municipal drinking water processing plants. The pipe carrying water from the filters to the pool is interrupted with new pipes to carry the water into, and then from, a polished stainless steel cylinder approximately four feet long and 10 inches in diameter. Inside the long axis of this cylinder is the four-foot, UV emitting, electric light tube in a waterproof quartz container. The UV rays interrupt the microscopic metabolism of any and all living organisms thusly killing all germs in the water, including those organisms resistant to prolonged contact with chlorine or bromine, the traditional chemical sanitation treatments in pools.

• U.S. military personnel and other Michigan motorists have the option of buying temporary license plates for vehicles they drive infrequently, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land reminded them today. A 30-day plate costs one-tenth of the vehicle's annual registration fee or $20, whichever is more, plus a $10 service fee. A 60-day plate costs one-fifth of the registration fee or $40, whichever is more, plus a $10 service fee. The plate is a paper permit that must be displayed in the vehicle's rear window. Visit www.Michigan.gov/sos for more information.

• Public health officials recently tested their plans to distribute over 120,000 doses of life-saving medication within 48 hours in case of a communicable disease outbreak in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. The Homeland Security Administration requires local health departments to develop plans for distributing medications from the Strategic National Stockpile of pharmaceuticals and in coordination with local emergency operations centers. The Strategic National Stockpile (SNS) is maintained by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) & Prevention. Once local and federal authorities agree that it is needed, medicine and medical supplies can be quickly delivered to any state in the U.S. within 12 hours. For additional information about the exercise, call Paxton at 547-6523. For additional information about the CDC's Strategic National Stockpile visit www.bt.cdc.gov/stockpile.

• The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a watercraft accident at approximately 3:30 p.m. on July 6 with injuries on Lake Charlevoix near Oyster Bay. Patrick Murphy, 26, of Howard City, was operating his father's 28 foot watercraft when an unusual wave struck the vessel. This wave caused victim, Connie Denton, 55, of Grand Rapids, to injure her back when being jarred in her boat. Charlevoix EMS was contacted and Connie was transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and later relocated to Northern Michigan Hospital of Petoskey. The jarring from the waves caused Connie Denton to have injuries to her back consisting of a fracture that will require surgery. The accident remains under investigation.

• Under a new law, teen drivers whose cell phone use contributes to a traffic crash or ticket may be prohibited from using while driving, under a probationary licensing restriction. During the last 10 months of probation, any tickets, at-fault crashes or license suspensions extend the probationary period until the teen completes 10 consecutive months of violation-free driving.

• A 23 year-old male Charlevoix resident, was arrested for one count delivery of morphine in a school zone and one count maintaining a drug house. The subject was lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail.

• At approximately 6 p.m., June 1, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to Charlevoix Area Hospital where a 17-year-old old male was being treated for injuries sustained in an ORV accident. The Colorado teen lost control of the red 1998 Honda four-wheeler he was driving and struck a tree on Forest Ridge Trail near Phelps. He was found wandering aimlessly down the road. Cozart was transported by his father to the hospital and treated for scratches, bruises and possible head and C-spine injuries. Cozart was not wearing a helmet. Accident is still under investigation at this time.

• At approximately 6:45 a.m., June 2, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was dispatched to a motorcycle personal injury accident. The accident occurred on M-66 within Eveline Township, near Ironton in the S-Curves. The accident occurred after a motorcycle struck a deer. The motorcycle was driven by John Antaya, 54, Charlevoix County. Antaya was immediately transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix ambulance. Antaya sustained a broken leg, broken vertebrae and damage to his face. Antaya was later transported from Charlevoix Area Hospital to Munson for surgery. Prior to the surgery, Antaya was in stable condition. Drugs and Speed were not a factor in the crash.

• The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a watercraft accident with injuries at approximately 1:45 p.m. on July 6 on Lake Charlevoix in Eveline Township. Judy Niswonger, 65, Charlevoix, was in the cabin of her vessel that was docked in Ironton when it was struck by another vessel. Niswonger sustained a contusion to her lower left arm. Niswonger refused medical treatment.

• The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a watercraft accident with injuries at approximately 4:30 p.m. on July 3 on Lake Charlevoix near Loab Bay.

Joey Alessi was operating a jetski with Ryan Reid, passenger, when they hit a wave, lost control of the vessel and fell off. Reid suffered bruises and a laceration to his lip. He was treated and released from Charlevoix Area Michigan Hospital in Charlevoix.

• Sheriff George T. Lasater advises political signs are being taken at an alarming rate as the primary comes close to the election. Taking a political candidate's sign is a criminal offense of larceny and also very disturbing to the candidate supporters. The Sheriff's Office will be offering a reward of $100 for information on larceny of a political sign resulting in the apprehension of the perpetrators. Information may be submitted to Sheriff Lasater by mail at 1000 Grant St., Charlevoix, MI, 49720 or by telephone at 547-4461.

• Maurice Claude Labelle of Canada was injured while riding his 4-wheeler in Chandler Township. The driver struck a rut and was ejected from the ATV which then drove over him. The driver severely injured his upper torso area. The driver was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by Allied EMS where he was listed in serious condition.

• At approximately 7:26 p.m., on July 1, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office on Beaver Island received a call from 911 that a windsurfer went missing and was overdue returning to

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q: Did the construction of Bay Harbor and East Park create the environmental problem?

A: No. Before the development the site was home to an abandoned cement plant and limestone quarry that operated from 1904 – 1980. About 2.5 million cubic yards of cement kiln dust was left in piles – totally open to the environment - around the site by the former owner. The redevelopment of the site substantially improved environmental conditions and turned the abandoned brownfield into two public parks and a resort that draws tourists from around the world.

Q: Were "corners cut" when redeveloping the property?

A: No. An environmental study and reclamation plan was developed by project partners and then reviewed and approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and former Attorney General Frank Kelley. The work was conducted under a brownfield redevelopment agreement that recognized the long-standing environmental blight on the site. Such agreements are common and without them redevelopment of brownfield sites would be rare. Under that agreement, a site once described as a "moonscape" was transformed into two public parks and an award-winning community. Bay Harbor now supports about 700 jobs and has contributed more than $110 million in taxes and $40 million in wages and services since its inception.

Q: Is the water safe?

A: Completed and on-going actions taken at East Park and Bay Harbor have resulted in pH readings routinely below the action level of 9 over the vast majority of the shoreline. Today, only a small part of the five-mile-long shoreline still shows any elevated pH levels from what was left at the old cement plant. CMS Land is taking steps to reduce even further the pH in those areas.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

his residence on Beaver Island. A dispatcher from 911 received a call from Cassandra Biehler of Grand Rapids stating that her husband Frederic Biehler was windsurfing off a point on Beaver Island known as Sucker Point. Mrs. Biehler indicated that her husband normally stays in the general area but she had been unable to see him for quite some time and was worried due to the changing weather conditions that something may have happened to him. Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Beaver Island Deputy Jake Wasylewski was notified. At 9:31 p.m. the Water Rescue team was radioed that by an individual who believed they located the missing boater in Pete Manitou Bay on Garden Island, about three and a half miles from where Mr. Biehler had begun wind surfing. Welke stated that there was an individual standing on the beach matching Mr Biehler's description. Water Rescue made it into the shallow bay to make contact with Mr. Biehler at about 9:43 p.m. Once in the boat, Biehler was checked over by Paramedic Ken Bruland, and other than being cold and some scrapes, was in good health and high spirits.

• at 5:37 p.m., June 15, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded with Charlevoix Township Fire and Charlevoix City Fire/EMS to US 31 near Ance Road for a three-vehicle crash with injuries. The crash occurred when a green 1994 Plymouth Voyager driven by Carol I. Wordt, 37, Lansing was northbound US 31 waiting for traffic to clear before making a left turn into the Marathon Gas Station. Before the mini-van could turn, a black Chevrolet Silverado pickup driven by William A. Pearsall (34) of Charlevoix also northbound struck the mini-van in the rear forcing it across the centerline and onto the shoulder where it overturned. The pickup, now without steering, continued northbound crossing the centerline and sideswiping a brown 1997 Chevrolet Suburban driven by Hans M. Wiener, 79, Charlevoix. All occupants of the mini-van and the pickup were transponed to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where they were treated and released for minor injuries. No alcohol or drugs were involved, and seatbelt use helped minimize the degree of injury.

• At 4:48 p.m., earlier this June, one-tenth of a mile south of Dalton Road, Kristen L. Ziesmer, 18, Kalkaska, was driving her friend's car southbound on Maple Grove. Kristen was unable to negotiate a curve on gravel traveling off left shoulder of road and striking a tree. Kristen and Holly Machelle Gribble, 18, Fife Lake, were both injured and transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix EMS. Both women were treated and released for minor injuries. This accident is currently under investigation. There was no alcohol involved and the vehicles airbags did not deploy.

• City of Charlevoix Fire Department Called to two incidents.

At 11:07 p.m. on June 1, Charlevoix City firefighters were dispatched to heavy smoke coming from apartment 604 at Pine Cove Apartments, 1001 May St. The fire was quickly extinguished. The resident started cooking food on the stove then fell asleep. Nothing was severely damaged, and after ventilating the building everyone was allowed to return to their apartments. No one was hurt in this incident

At 8:24 a.m., June 2, firefighters were paged to a basement fire at 212 West Carpenter St. Firefighters arrived to discover a water leak had extinguished a basement fire. One resident sought medical treatment for an unrelated injury. This fire is still under investigation.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Ordinance No. 730 of 2008

An Ordinance To Amend The Code Of The City Of Charlevoix By Revising Section 9.125 Of Chapter 113 Of Title IX To Allow Dogs that are performing in city-approved events and to reword section 9.125

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Revision of Section 9.125
Section 9.125 of Chapter 113 is revised so that it shall read as follows:

9.125. Dog Regulations – East Park Area.

From Memorial Day to Labor Day, no person, who owns, keeps or possesses a dog, shall permit the dog to enter on or within the regulated portion of East Park unless the dog is on a leash and is under control of the person holding the leash. However, during a city-approved event in East Park, no person, who owns, keeps or possesses a dog, shall permit the dog to enter the regulated portion of East Park even if the dog is on a leash and under the control of the person holding the leash. This prohibition of dogs in the regulated portion of East Park during city-approved events shall not apply to dogs that are performing in the city-approved event. For purposes of this section, the "regulated portion of East Park" shall mean that portion of East Park that is bounded by: on the north – the sidewalk to the south of East Clinton Street continuing to the north side of the Harbor Master Building ending at the sidewalk adjacent to Round Lake; on the south – the south wall of the Performance Pavilion continuing in a straight line to the sidewalk adjacent to Round Lake; on the east – the sidewalk which runs along Round Lake between the aforementioned northern and southern boundaries; and on the west – the sidewalk adjacent to the east side of Bridge Street between the aforementioned northern and southern boundaries. In addition, for purposes of this section, a "city-approved event" shall mean an event, festival or activity which has been approved or authorized by the City pursuant to this code, the City Charter or by virtue of the City's ownership of the land being used for the event, festival or activity.

SECTION 2. Effective Date.
This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.
ADOPTED this 7th day of July, 2008.

Ordinance No. 730-2008 was adopted on the 7th day of July, 2008, by the Charlevoix City Council as follows:

WHAT'S MISSING AT VENETIAN?

Have you ever noticed what is missing at the Venetian Festival?

It isn't live entertainment. Throughout Venetian Week, bands in East Park will be jumping with a wide variety of music.

It isn't kids' activities. The Venetian Games include kids and teens in soccer, basketball, running, sailing, golf and tennis tournaments. Teens are provided their own music venue at the "Battle of the Bands." Kid's Day at Lake Michigan Beach also provides a slew of low and no cost children's entertainment.

It isn't spectator opportunities. The street parade and the boat parade have entertained spectators for decades, and the Ultimate Air Dogs will dazzle Festival goers with their canine leaping prowess.

It certainly won't be fireworks that are missing, considering the festival features two nights of world class fireworks displays.

What's missing is admission prices. All of the big events and entertainment offered at the Venetian Festival are absolutely free to the public.

But, it still costs the Venetian Festival upwards of $200,000 (only 1/10 of the National Cherry Festival budget), to put on its premier festival, which is why the nonprofit volunteer organization needs your help. If you've ever enjoyed a concert in the park, Kid's Day, the Venetian Games, the street parade, the Venetian boat parade or the spectacular fireworks displays, please contribute, so that we can continue to bring you quality entertainment and activities in the future.

Frankly speaking, 2008 is a pivotal year for Festival finances, considering the revenue loss and increased expenses which the Festival was forced to incur in staging outside of East Park in 2007, which totaled over $50,000.00. In the event the Festival does not receive increased and new contributions, the Venetian Board may be left with no alternative but to dramatically reduce the two costliest (and nonrevenue generating) events, concerts and fireworks.

Please do not look away when it is time to contribute. By donating to the Festival, you can become a noted member of the Venetian Burgee Club. Anyone who donates $100 or more becomes a member of the Club and receives a burgee pennant. The pennants are emblazoned with the Venetian logo, the current year and the level of sponsorship.

Levels are: Admiral level, $3,000 minimum donation with a blue burgee; Captain level, $1,000 minimum donation with a red burgee; First Mate level, $500 minimum donation with a gold burgee; and Crew level, $100 minimum donation with a white burgee.

Please send donations to: Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., PO Box 120, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 or visit the Venetian Festival Merchandise Stand in East Park, during the festival.

trolling interest in the park project due to the matching funds given to the City of Charlevoix for on work phase one which is the city's new marina.

"People have to remember that it literally was a two-year project that's been squeezed into 18 months," Carlson said of the nearly $12 million project. "We're dealing with ... the citizens of Charlevoix, the DDA (Downtown Development Authority) and Michigan Waterways all making different decisions, trying to coordinate getting answers and dealing with 30 different contractors and subcontractors on essentially three different projects: Phase one, the marina, phase two the harbormaster building and phase three the performance pavilion and the rest of the park."

He added, "Throw in changes to the trout stream because the first one was illegal, and we're very good with where we're at."

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straehel said he is excited that nearly two years after the groundbreaking of phase one in 2006, the project is nearly complete.

More than $6 million of East Park's $12 million price tag is being paid for by the Michigan Waterways Commission.

East Park offers amenities including a kitchenette, lounge and nearly a dozen showers for boaters at the Harbor Master Building, an interactive lighted water feature which can be choreographed to music, stone viewing plazas, a state of the art amphitheater designed to project the highest quality level of sound onto the audience and, Straehel said, it was all constructed so as to maintain the view of Round Lake Harbor.

According to Charlevoix Street Superintendent and East Park Project overseer Pat Elliot, the new Harbor Master's Building was opened to the public on July 3.

"Boaters now have access to all marina amenities and the public can now access the public restrooms," he said. "All veneered stonework is now 100 percent complete (and) remaining concrete flat work around

Don't Panic, Boyko sells ServiceMaster franchise

Tim Boyko, President of Boyko Inc. is pleased to announce the sale of ServiceMaster Professional Cleaning Service to Timothy Wise of ServiceMaster Don't Panic.

Wise brings 25 years of experience to the disaster industry, including hurricane Andrew and the New Orleans catastrophe. Boyko has been helping people get back into their homes and business's with one call, ServiceMaster Don't Panic will do it all; from a structural dry out and clean down, to a contents pack out and rebuild. Our service satisfaction continues to grow consistently.

Boyko said ServiceMaster Don't Panic's success is based solely on "customer service."

Call (866) 936-6872 or (866) 9-Don't Panic 24 hours a day.

"I have accomplished what I set out to do with the franchise and I am glad the new owner, Mr. Wise, with his years of experience is buying our business," Boyko said. "We have been incredibly blessed with wonderful employees and customers, I have no doubt that Mr. Wise will continue to expand this business and provide the service customers have come to expect and deserve from ServiceMaster."

With more than 4,500 franchises around the world, ServiceMaster Clean has been in the cleaning and disaster restoration business for more than half a century.

"Our goal is to consistently raise the professional standards and expand our business in northwest Michigan including Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties," Wise said. "As I have grown up in Petoskey I considered this to be my true home and I am excited about this new opportunity.

Along with running for Charlevoix County Commissioner, Tim Boyko plans to continue working on a new venture.

"I have been test marketing a new sparkling cherry beverage in northern Michigan for Tahone Orchards," he said. "We served the drink at the Taster's Guild in Traverse City, Taste the Local Difference event in Petoskey, the Chef's Challenge at Shanty Creek and most recently at Taste of Charlevoix. We have been having great success introducing this local, non-alcoholic beverage."

Boyko's company Blue Truck Foods is distributing the drink and other healthy local food products in northern Michigan.

He can be reached at 237-0000 and on the web at bluetruckfood.com.

Don't get burned in foreclosure

As the foreclosure crisis reaches epic proportions and previous homeowners seek rental properties, many are finding themselves in double jeopardy as their landlords get foreclosed upon. Just as people are trying to get their lives back on track, many find themselves evicted from their rental through no fault of their own.

"People need to be extra careful when choosing a property to rent," says Dan Page of the American Apartment Owners Association. "This is a very difficult rental market and it is tempting to rent the first place that fits your needs. But be careful. A few simple steps can help you avoid the heartache of getting evicted because your landlord didn't pay his mortgage."

To help renters avoid this nightmare: Three questions all prospective renters should ask before moving into a rental property. The types of rental landlords and rental properties to avoid like the plague. How to research potential landlords before spending a dime.

Dan Page is the Director of Development for the American Apartment Owners Association (AAOA). AAOA helps landlords with all the day to day challenges of running their investment properties. Call (303) 938-8280, or e-mail Page at dpage@joinaaoa.org.

State forcing schools into financial corner

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

"If we keep going like this, we're going to go broke."

Those words spoken by Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik on the 2008-2009 budget indicate the inevitable and ongoing implosion of Michigan's economy.

"We've been in reduction mode for the last six years," Janik said of the projected $450,000 to $500,000 deficit.

If things do not improve, Janik said, "We'll have to re-evaluate what we're going to sacrifice next year."

Last year's projected deficit was around $350,000.

According to Janik, there are several upcoming factors that will also have an effect on this year's budget: State aid is expected to increase to $100 per student. Also, the curriculum development salaries are also expected to fluctuate, and in the last six years alone, the school system has 150 fewer students, 15 fewer teachers and 20 fewer support staff.

With 82 to 85 percent of the school's $11.7 million budget spent on personnel, there are not many places to cut.

"We're down to the bare bones. There's no fat left," Janik said. "The question is, 'How do we reduce staff and maintain high standards?'"

Who makes the tough decisions?

Janik

"The board doesn't choose where the cuts will be made," said John McLean, President of the School Board. "The administrators make suggestions as to where cuts could be made and they spend a good six months or so on that decision. After that, the board votes on if those particular cuts are in the best interest of the schools or not."

McLean said that the financial tightening is also due in part to a combination of things, including not getting enough money per student each year and the fact that enrollment is going down.

McLean

According to McLean, enrollment is going down due to many parents leaving the state in search of a job.

"One of the things I do is ask, 'will it affect student achievement or student learning?' If it does, then it's probably not a good thing to cut," said McLean.

Annemarie Conway, an Economics and Government teacher, as well as a parent, is optimistic about the bond the school system will be receiving.

"The bond was a huge plus because that gives us a lot more money towards big ticket items, such as buildings, buses, etc.," said Conway. "The bond opens up things the money can be spent on, which is really cool."

The Charlevoix School Foundation, Conway explained, has stepped in as well and is getting ready for a big capital campaign. "They've always been there, but they've expanded because they've seen our needs and helped work with the schools," she said.

"At least our situation isn't like Suttons Bay, who runs until they're out of money," said Conway. "Charlevoix has been anticipating the decline of the economy, so they've been cutting anywhere from $800,000 to one million dollars a year, and they've been doing so over the last six years."

Conway also explained that in the past, all the school system had to work with was the sinking fund, which is money delegated from the voters and set aside for certain building projects, and not books, school supplies or anything directly related to the learning environment.

"(Because of the budget tightening) we don't really get to go to too many conferences, also, they're cutting back on supplies and it's getting harder and harder to do field trips," Conway said. "If it wasn't for an anonymous donor, we wouldn't have been able to do an overnight field trip to Lansing over a year ago."

The schools have gotten a few donations from outside sources. Just last month, Glenn Catt and an anonymous donor combined to put up a total of $8,000 to offset the cost of an extracurricular activity fee the school board was going to implement.

The $40 extracurricular fee was going to be employed to pay for the costs of travel, food and any other additional expenses that might need to be paid for.

Janik explained that regardless of the cuts in the past, and the handful of retirements, the ever-growing deficit is catching up and there's just nowhere left to cut corners.

Several bond representatives were introduced at last week's school board meeting. The board was expected to vote on the issue at their July 14 meeting. Results were not available by press time.

Schneider for Sheriff
Tuesday August 5, 2008

My platform is simple, but expected by the community:
I will continue to maintain the professionalism of the Sheriff's Office, using a pro-active and innovative approach to protect and serve the citizens of Charlevoix County.
I will continue to be fiscally responsible ensuring the safety of our fellow citizens is first and foremost by continuing to seek all available resources to supplement the Sheriff's Office budget.

Professionalism- Sheriff George T. Lasater has instilled a solid foundation in his 32 years as Sheriff. I intend to expand on Sheriff Lasater's commitment to the citizens of this County by demanding the utmost courtesy, ethical and moral behavior of this department at every level. Every citizen, including those that break the law, deserves to be treated with respect.

Pro-active/Innovation- I have been instrumental in obtaining funding (through community donations and grants along with the Commissioners) so that the Sheriff's Office can have a deputy trained as a forensic computer analyst. This pro-active approach has significantly increased the speed in which cases can come to court, thus ensuring that the victims of sexual crimes and pornography crimes can see swift justice.

I have been instrumental in implementing "Project Lifesaver", a program used to locate adults suffering from Alzheimer's or dementia and autistic children who wander from home.

I have instituted the Prescription Drug Disposal Program so people can responsibly dispose of their prescription drugs so they will not end up on the street.

I have sought community donations so the Sheriff's Office can offer free DNA kits for parents. The children are swabbed for their DNA and the kits are given to the parents for safekeeping just in case such identification is needed in case there is an unfortunate incident. These are just a few examples of the many pro-active programs already in place and I intend to continue to implement any programs that ensure the safety of our citizens and seek swift justice for the victims of crimes.

Fiscally responsible- I will continue to seek all available resources to provide the best service for the citizens of Charlevoix County. I will continue the bike patrol as it is the most effective way to police large events such as the many parades and festivals in this county. Equipment for the bike patrol was donated by a community member. I will continue our water recovery team as the law mandates it. Currently, members use their own personal equipment, as well as equipment donated by the community. I will work with all other agencies, but will rely on the Sheriff's Office to ensure that the job is done right.

I will ensure that the Sheriff's Office is staffed appropriately so that the community is the safest possible. This staffing will be directly reflective of the needs of the community and the safety of our dedicated personnel.

Finishing touches on East Park this week

PARK

the Harbor Master's Building will be complete this week."

Elliot added that new curbs are being poured on Clinton Street and new sod continues to be laid.

The remainder of sod was scheduled for July 10.

But keep in mind, Carlson said, "They won't open up anything until it's 100 percent. We don't want to jeopardize the new sod; Sod's funny anyway: 99.9 percent of the time it takes, and once in a while it doesn't, but we have been fortunate that our watering system is working in areas where sod is laid and it seems to be doing pretty well."

He added, "Preliminary tests are showing it's already starting to take root."

Since much of Venetian entertainment is planned for the new East Park, organizers are eager to believe in the city's new timeline.

"There are potentials and prospects that could put us into scramble mode which we would be able to do, but fortunately we will not have to do so," said Charlevoix Venetian President Dan Barron "We feel very confident that Venetian will stage in East Park and will stage with chudspa."

Barron's 10th year as head of the festival's board of directors has him going to the dogs, the Ultimate Air Dogs, that is.

"One of the most important things is that Venetian is going to be the debut use of East Park, so we're really thrilled and excited .. being able to do that in style with national acts such as Jefferson Starship and Emerson Drive," he said. "Because of the larger open areas within East Park we are able to stage the Ultimate Air Dogs, which will occur late afternoon, early evening during concerts with jumping canines and a 14,000 gallon pool in the heart of East Park, and we'll have the Venetian Tiki Tent with beer and wine concessions right in the heart of East Park."

The Air Dogs and their aerial acrobatics will share the park with Starship and Emerson Drive as well as several other bands new to the festival's Rhythms of Venetian lineup and replace parting events such as the Superkicker Rodeo which was staged at Castle Farms for several previous festivals.

"Most of the changes that (festival goers) will see is going to be largely in part to the reconfiguration of East Park," Barron said, but added that events missing are due to financial constraints.

"Our numbers in revenue were down about 50 percent because of our staging at Lake Michigan (in 2007)," he said. "It was pretty significant. We're thrilled to be back in East Park. Last year it did cost the festival about $50,000 to stage outside of East Park."

He added, "We're not staging at Castle Farms because of the ultimate expense to both the festival and to Castle Farms. We look to focus our resources on downtown activities which are the traditional base of the festival."

The loss of the rodeo is tempered by the addition of the Ryan Shay Elite Competition Mile, a one-mile all-out foot race down U.S. 31/Bridge Street for cash prizes, and a concert featuring High School Musical's very own teen heartthrob Corbin Bleu which is scheduled for 7 p.m., July 27 at the Emmet County Fairgrounds. Bleu will be flanked by Mitchel Musso who plays Oliver on Disney Channel's Hannah Montana.

Festival organizers said the Emmet fairground was the only venue large enough to host a fee-based event and they hope the Corbin Bleu concert will act as a fundraising event for the Venetian Festival.

The Skerbeck Bros. carnival will return for yet another year and will open at 6 p.m., July 23 with rides and midway games.

Kids' Day, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., July 24, brings with it face painting, a petting zoo, crafts and treats as well as the return of armband day where all amusements can be enjoyed all day, 3 p.m. to 10 p.m., for $15.

The carnival is scheduled for 1 p.m. to close on July 25 and 11 a.m. to close on July 26.

In addition to rides, games and music this year's festival has its fair share

Venetian officials: festival better than ever

of royalty as seven young Charlevoix women are vying for the title "Miss Venetian 2008."

Candidates for this year's crown are Katherine Forrester, Shauna Spencley, Alyssa McCormack, Andrea Roloff, Katelyn Green-Cole, Alyssa Themm and Omega Hang.

The ladies, who each wrote a college-level essay to qualify for the running, will learn which among them is queen during ceremonies at approximately 7:30 p.m. on July 25 in the newly constructed East Park.

While the winner gets a scholarship, awards for congeniality and scholastic achievement will also be presented.

To financially support the queen's scholarship fund, call (231) 330-4675 or 547-9950.

"It's a fantastic lineup and I'm excited. I think it's going to be one of the finest Venetian festivals to date," Barron said. "We're going to have absolutely spectacular fireworks once again, and our master pyrotechnician manufactures his own fireworks, so we have not been affected by the shortage in the national fireworks supply."

Friday night fireworks will be launched from Lake Charlevoix. Saturday night fireworks will be launched from Round Lake Harbor following this year's lighted boat parade with the theme "Welcome back to East Park."

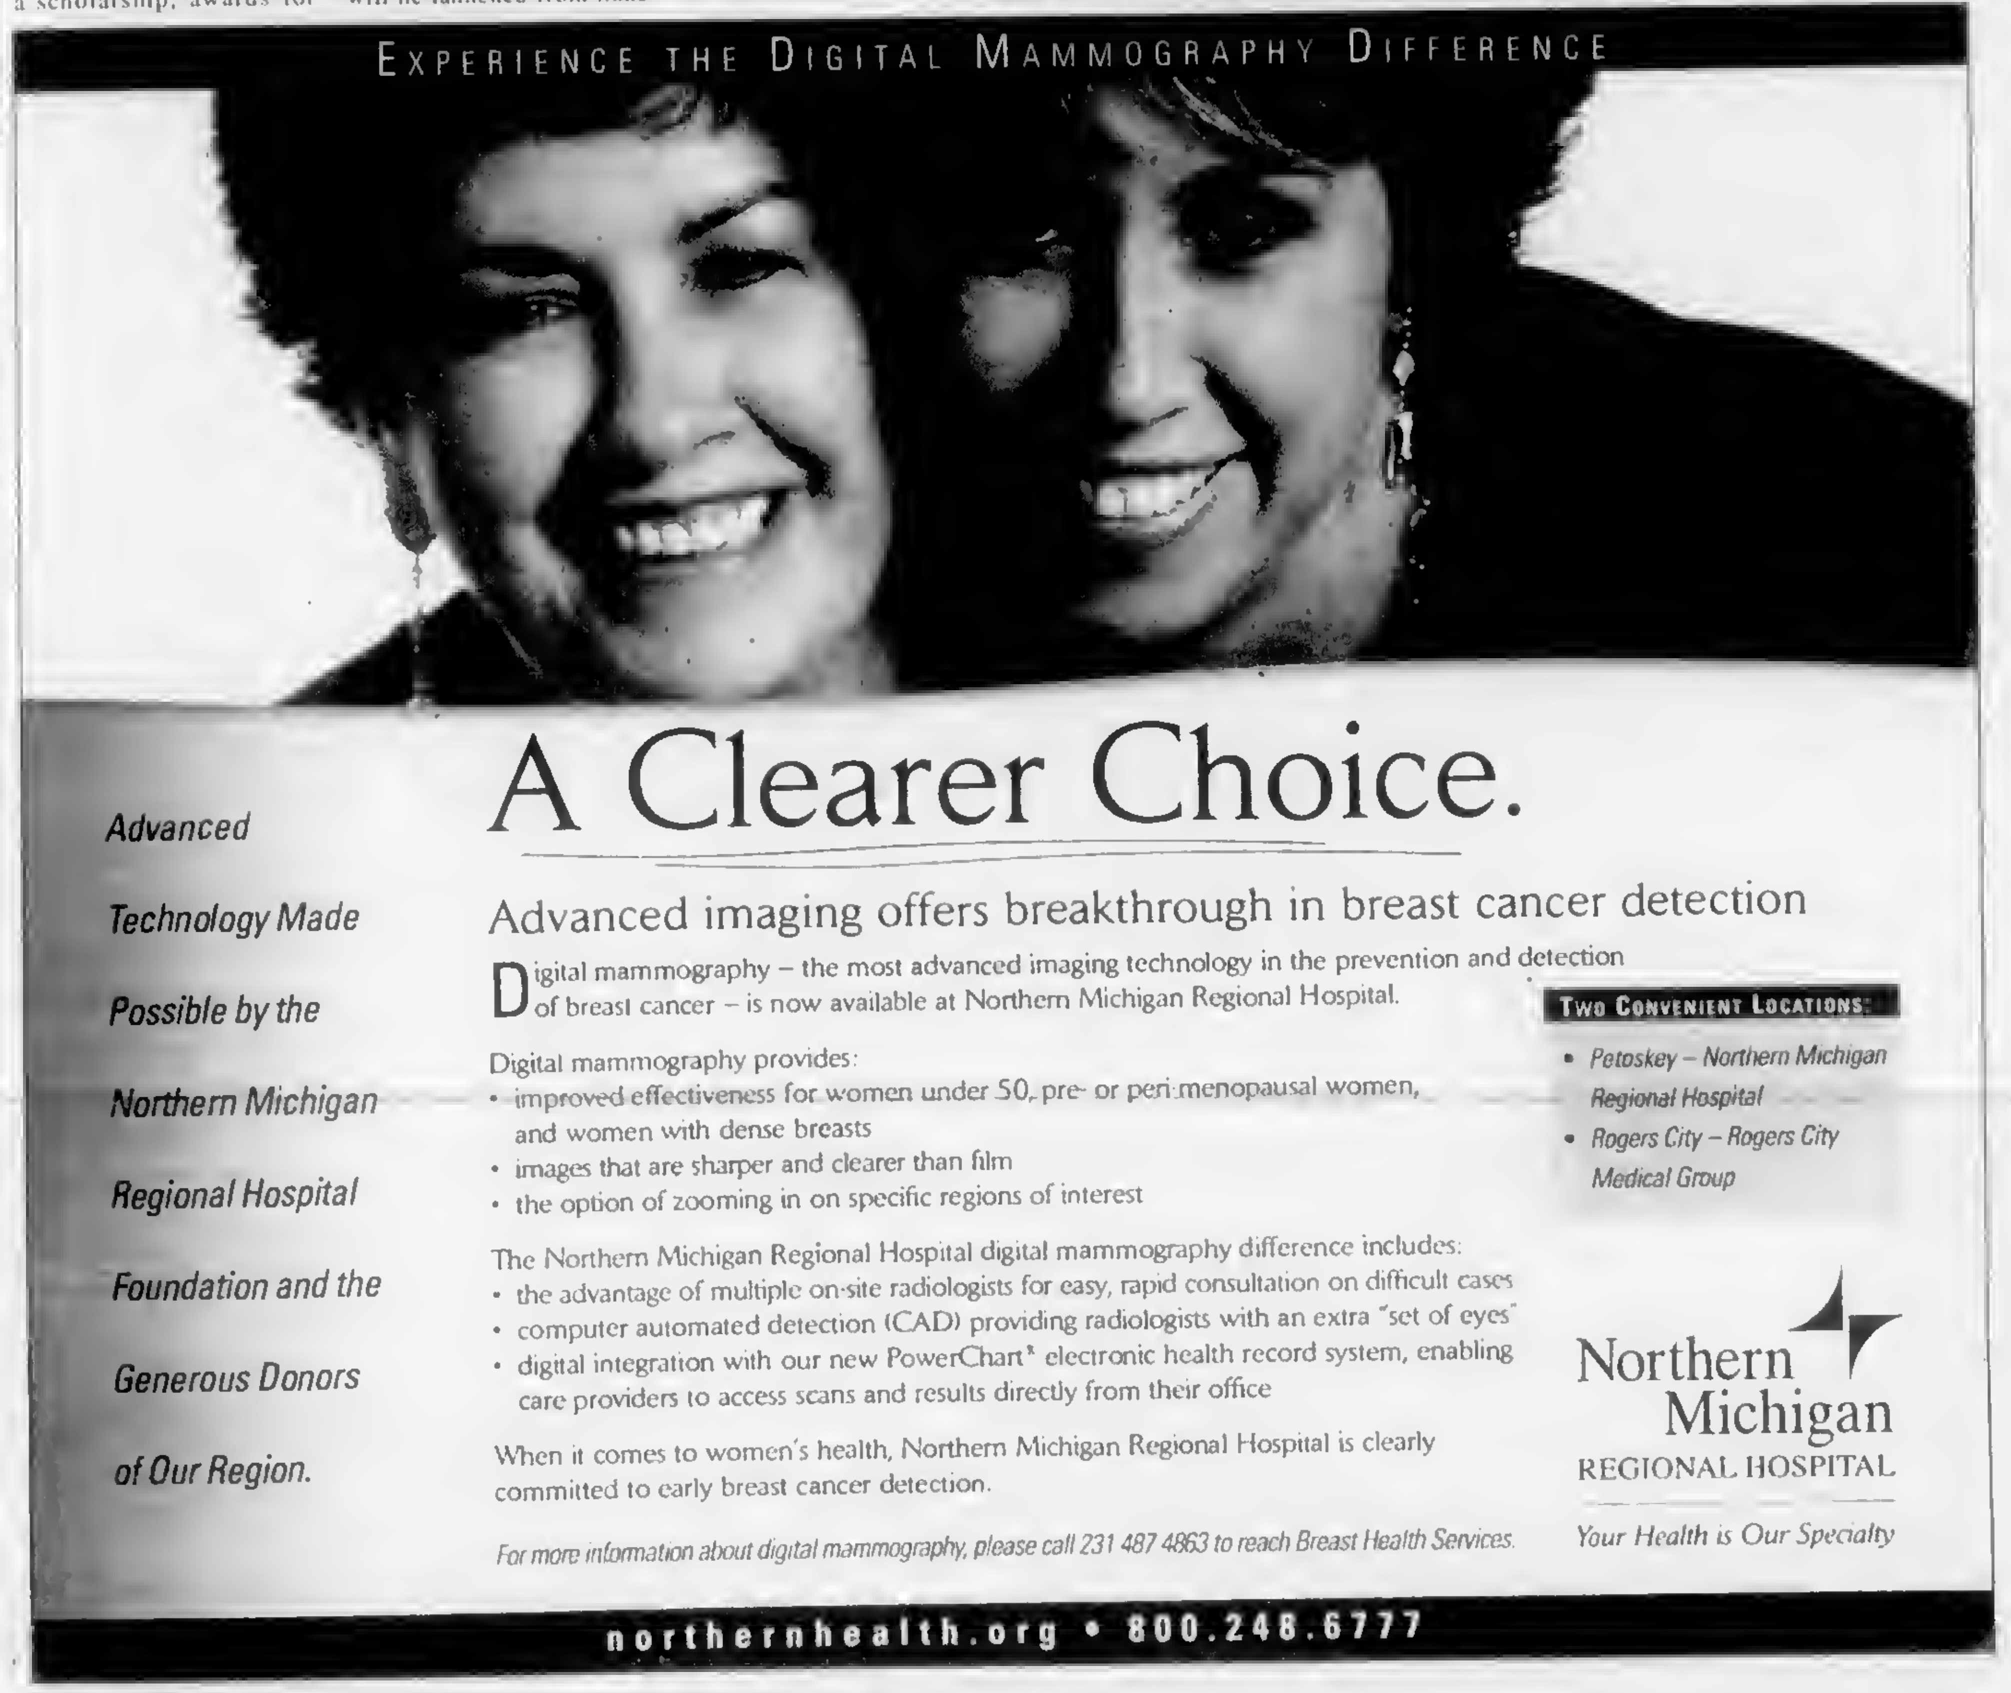
While the majority of East Park (above) could still be off limits for the next couple weeks, the state-of-the-art East Park Performance Pavilion will host its first concert on Sunday, July 20 when the Charlevoix Concert Series features the Petoskey Steel Drum Band and 80's retro band, Starfarm. The rest of the park will be open for Venetian events.



EXPERIENCE THE DIGITAL MAMMOGRAPHY DIFFERENCE

A Clearer Choice.

Advanced imaging offers breakthrough in breast cancer detection

Digital mammography – the most advanced imaging technology in the prevention and detection of breast cancer – is now available at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital.

Digital mammography provides:
- improved effectiveness for women under 50, pre- or peri-menopausal women, and women with dense breasts
- images that are sharper and clearer than film
- the option of zooming in on specific regions of interest

The Northern Michigan Regional Hospital digital mammography difference includes:
- the advantage of multiple on-site radiologists for easy, rapid consultation on difficult cases
- computer automated detection (CAD) providing radiologists with an extra "set of eyes"
- digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

When it comes to women's health, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is clearly committed to early breast cancer detection.

For more information about digital mammography, please call 231 487 4863 to reach Breast Health Services.

the Nazerene on Waller Road, Lineare on Ance Road and Charlevoix Manufacturing on Martin Road.

Their bond was set at $500,000 each and they are set to face preliminary examinations in the cases on Tuesday, July 28, in Charlevoix County and Wednesday, July 29, in Emmet County.

District court judge Richard W. May (no relation to defendant May) appointed attorney Hillary Briolat to represent Allred and attorney Bryan Klawuhn to represent May.

Emmet County chief assistant prosecutor Duane Beach said many more charges will likely be coming out of Emmet County.

According to court documents filed in the case, May admitted to involvement in 19 recent break-ins in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties.

Police said the break in the case came Wednesday when officers were able to obtain video images from an attempt to break into Petoskey Electric earlier in the day. Police used the video to identify the two men and later executed three search warrants simultaneously.

"It was old-fashioned police work," acting Charlevoix County undersheriff Det./Sgt. Chuck Vondra said. "June 23, one of our patrol officers was out at this house and developed some information about them being possible suspects, so we've been keeping our eye on these guys for a little while."

According to Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney John Jarema, a tire iron was used to pry doors open before the suspects allegedly entered and ransacked the churches and businesses in their search for money.

"We suspected they were connected because the tool marks were all similar and because of the time frame," he said. "We had a pretty good conclusion that they were related because of same manner in which they were broken into and the way places were trashed and the stuff that was taken."

Detectives took footprint impressions and impressions of the tool marks left on doors which had been broken into at each crime scene, but it was ultimately the video footage which led to search warrants being executed at a residence on Maple Street in Charlevoix and subsequent arrest and confessions.

"May was cooperative with law enforcement," Vondra said, adding that evidence from some of the Petoskey thefts was found in a vehicle at the Maple Street residence.

Police are also looking at possibly connecting the men to at least one more break-in that took place Tuesday July 8 at NorthPointe Motors south of Charlevoix.

The breaking and entering charges carry a penalty of up to 10 years in prison while the criminal enterprises carry a 20-year maximum. Both will likely also face higher maximum penalties on the charges thanks to habitual offender sentencing enhancements that will be attached. Some of the enhancements could increase the maximum penalty on some of the charges to up to life in prison.

May is on probation on three previous convictions for receiving and concealing stolen property and larceny, $200-$1,000 out of Cheboygan County and breaking and entering out of Emmet County -- all from 2006. Allred has two prior felony convictions out of Florida, Beach said.

According to court documents he was released from prison in Florida in February after serving 18 months.

Monday, July 21, 2008, 7:00 p.m.
Council Chambers, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI

The Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, July 21, 2008 at 7:00 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall to receive public input on a proposed ordinance to amend the City Code. The proposed amendments, if adopted, will amend Chapter 22A of Title II to amend impact area legal boundary descriptions to correct errors in the descriptions. The revisions correct legal descriptions of impact areas set up by ordinance in 1981 to address a then-discovered environmental issue which necessitated the development of water wells. The ordinance is needed to revise an error in the legal boundary description and is not associated with any recent contamination.

A complete copy of the proposed language is available at the City Clerk's Office.

Interested citizens can make comments at the public hearing or written comments may be sent to the City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Carol A. Ochs, City Clerk
07/10/08

The City of Charlevoix will provide necessary reasonable auxiliary aids and services, such as signers for the hearing impaired and audio tapes of printed materials being considered at the meeting, to individuals with disabilities at the meeting upon one week's notice to the City of Charlevoix. Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services should contact the City of Charlevoix Clerk's Office in writing or by calling the following. City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720 (231) 547-3250

A ship for Charlevoix?

Despite efforts from several of Charlevoix's local, state and federal representatives to retain ice-breaking capabilities in the area, Round Lake still has no cutter.

More than two years after the United States Coast Guard cutter Acacia was decommissioned from service, and nearly as long since a bill signed by President George W. Bush signed H.R. 889 which ordered that the coast guard maintain, at a minimum, its then current vessel capacity for ice-breaking in the Great Lakes, U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) is still fighting to make that a reality.

"It is important that a new coast guard cutter or similar asset be stationed in Charlevoix to replace the Acacia and continue the coast guard's long-standing presence in the northern Great Lakes," he stated in a July 17 press release. "While

No immediate plans for a cutter

CUTTER

the Mackinaw is now stationed in Cheboygan, ice-breaking capacity in the northern Great Lakes has been reduced from two cutters to one, threatening the coast guard's ability to meet its operational responsibilities on the Great Lakes. The Coast Guard fleet is down one hull, but the scope of its ice-breaking mission is still the same."

Stupak recently urged House Transportation and Infrastructure Subcommittee members on the Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation board, via written testimony, to enforce what he called "congressional intent" by demanding an asset be stationed in Charlevoix.

Stupak addressed the subcommittee in writing, hoping to sway the board chaired by Elijah Cummings.

"The ACACIA provided essential navigational and search and rescue services in the northern Great Lakes. She also tended nearly 200 buoys and lighthouses and kept channels open by breaking ice," Stupak wrote. "This work is important for safety as well as for businesses and individuals that rely on the Great Lakes. The community has felt great pride in being the home of the Acacia, and I have been proud that the cutter has been stationed in my district."

Stupak's main argument for replacing Acacia hinged on the Great Lake's reputation as a major shipping channel.

"The Great Lakes serve as a main through fare for iron ore to America's steel mills and other cargos to destinations in the United States, Canada, and overseas. During the winter months, 17 million tons of commerce moves through the Great Lakes. Without sufficient cutter presence, these goods will not reach their destination. Ice-breaking operations in the Great Lakes also play an important role for the local community. The residents of Beaver Island relied upon the coast guard's ice-breaking assets in Charlevoix to assure their safety and support their economy."

He added, "This year's cold winter showed the need for a cutter presence when Beaver Island again had to make an emergency call to the Coast Guard to break the ice to facilitate a fuel shipment. This is a common occurrence during cold winters."

Stupak also offered a late winter collision of vessels Cason J. Calloway and American Republic in the Mackinaw Straits as further evidence of the need for another ship.

The Cason J. Calloway hit the American Republic as it attempted to clear ice hindering American Republic on March 28.

"This incident caused about $1.5 million in damage to these two ships. When this occurred, the two 140-foot buoy tenders were breaking ice on the St. Mary's River as the Soo Locks has just been opened," Stupak's testimony continued. "The Mackinaw (ice cutter) was above the Soo Locks at the time and the third 140-foot buoy tender was not in operation. It was clear that the Coast Guard had their hands full with ice along the Michigan-Canadian border and did not have the ability to respond to the American Republic. With an additional vessel with ice breaking capabilities, this collision could easily have been avoided."

According to Stupak, the coast guard's workload is being taxed due to the decommissioning of two Canadian ice-breakers.

"It is important that a new Coast Guard cutter or similar asset be stationed in Charlevoix, Michigan to replace the ACACIA and continue the Coast Guard's long standing presence in the Northern Great Lakes," he stated. "In order to facilitate this, I worked closely with Chairman (James) Oberstar (D-Minnesota) to include language in the Coast Guard Authorization Act of 2006. The bill language states that: 'The Secretary shall take all necessary measures to ensure that the Coast Guard maintains, at a minimum, its current vessel capacity for carrying out ice breaking in the Arctic and Antarctic, Great Lakes, and New England regions, including the necessary funding for operation and maintenance of such vessels.'"

Although, as it has been reported in the past, the language does not specify which city on the Great Lakes from where an asset should be maintained.

Stupak has accused the coast guard of ignoring congressional intent.

"I have written the Coast Guard multiple times requesting that they follow Congressional intent. Unfortunately, the Commandant of the Coast Guard Admiral Thad Allen continues to insist that the coast guard will not follow the requirements within the Fiscal Year 2006 Coast Guard Authorization bill (HR 889), leaving northern Michigan without a replacement for the Acacia."

So far, a paid lobbyist, a mayor, Charlevoix citizens and state and federal representatives to name a few have toiled with no avail for a replacement of the cutter Acacia which was decommissioned on June 7, 2006 after more than 60 years of service.

Neither a coast guard spokesman or Stupak returned calls by press time.

Castle Farms 4th Annual Fiber Arts Festival

At 2 p.m the Fiber Arts Festival at Charlevoix's Castle Farms will celebrate it's fourth year of displaying fiber art made by Michigan artists representing a variety of fiber producing animals.

The Festival will begin Saturday July 25 and conclude the following Sunday.

At 2 p.m. each day, a fashion show, featuring several fiber artists and their inspired creations will be presented.

Organizers expect a colorful, upbeat musical experience.

Vendors will be offering their creations in clothing, yarn and some fanciful pieces.

EDITORIAL

The song says the most wonderful time of the year is Christmas; obviously they never watched Venetian fireworks from a beach in Charlevoix, spent an afternoon listening to nationally acclaimed musical acts in East Park or eaten an elephant ear while taking in the view of Round Lake.

What makes this year's Venetian Festival even more special is that East Park has been completely revamped and is now open for all to enjoy.

A few events we cannot wait for are the Ultimate Air Dogs, which will be showing off their aerial acrobatic skills both Wednesday, July 23 and Thursday, July 24 in East Park and Rhythms of Venetian with a long list of great bands including Starship Starring Mickey Thomas on Wednesday, Dutch Henry and Emerson Drive on Thursday, and the Kids From Wisconsin on Saturday.

Of course, no teenager, or hip parent for that matter, will miss the Corbin Bleu concert at 7 p.m. on Sunday, July 27.

Oh, and did we mention how cool the Detroit Pistons and Shock Basketball Clinic will be. It happens Friday July 25 for a mere $20 at the door.

Anyone who went to Charlevoix Public Schools is welcome at the Rayder all-school reunion on Saturday, July 26.

So get out there and eat some treats, shake your booty to some great tunes and beat the heat with a refreshment or two, because the 78th Annual Venetian Festival is all about community togetherness and good old-fashioned fun.

One last thing, if you love Venetian as much as we do, kick a few bucks up to the festival's coffers: $5, $10, $20, $100, whatever you can afford.

Now, if anyone needs us, we'll be in the Venetian Tiki Tent in the heart of East Park supporting the festival the best way we know how, with an ice-cold beverage.

For more information on how to help support Venetian financially, e-mail info@venetianfestival.com.

Nature nurtures

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I turned the TV on to an educational channel this morning, checking in with the man who routinely could button or zip a cardigan without mismatching the button holes or getting his zipper jammed.

I surprised myself by remembering the first line of his enduring song, "It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood" I begin to hum the rest, never one for memorizing an entire song.

I could hear the lilt of our daughter's voice as she swiftly made her way out the front door

It went something like, "Mom, please keep the TV off and read the twins a book, sing songs, take them for a walk and play outside."

Gosh, she likes to give orders.

Once mom was out of site the Today Show miraculously came on and much to my surprise the first topic was 'Nature Deficit Disorder.'

I thought I knew all of the disorders from my many years working as a counselor.

Could this really be such a term?

It's defined by its author, journalist Richard Louv, as the cumulative effect of withdrawing nature from a child's experience

It's not a clinical diagnosis but a name he feels may be used in the future to explain childhood obesity, lack of concentration and childhood stress

Back in the old days when I was growing up we spent the majority of our day outside only checking in with mom because our stomach spoke to us saying lunch or dinner time must be soon

'Hopscotch, hula hoops, hide and seek, jacks, jump ropes, building forts, and collecting new bugs for our vast collection was part of a typical summers day. It's very evident with the advent of technology that we have made it easier for children to spend less time outside.

Mr. Louv states that an eight year old can identify more 'Pokeman' characters than flowers, birds and insects combined. Studies he conducted suggest that daily doses of nature enhance the ability to focus.

He also made the declaration that time spent exploring the woods and playing in the out doors improves self esteem, nurtures independence, and creates adults who have a better appreciation for protecting the earth.

I listened intently to Mr. Louv, but felt the twins needed my attention their pulling down the living room curtains was my first clue

After remembering how to unfold a stroller large enough to carry a family of eight I found the eco friendly sun hats, SPF 50 sun screen and proceeded to secure the boys into their assigned seats.

We were headed for the great outdoors and prepared to take on nature and gain a little self esteem.

We took in the sites of beautiful neighborhood gardens as we headed towards a small beach nearby.

The boys and I passed chirping birds, brightly colored flowers, and fluttering butterflies.

I was careful to point them all out for the eyes of two eager eight month old boys.

When we arrived to our beach destination I was surprised at how few children were in the area

Actually I had walked two miles through neighborhoods and not one child was present.

Was Mr. Louv right? Were the young future Einstein's and Picasso's keeping their cool in an air conditioned home playing with their game boy? I felt fortunate in taking the opportunity to share nature with our grandsons and proud of a daughter that had left me those words of turning off the TV.

The hills in the neighborhood we walked through on the way home gave my calves a workout so this venture was proving worthwhile for grandma as well

By the time we had reached the steps leading up to the front door I realized I had been humming

The song we heard earlier this morning was echoing in my ears: "It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood" and it truly is.

VOTE 'YES' ON SENIOR MILLAGE

Editor:

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is asking for a renewal of the senior millage at its current rate of four-tenths of a mil on Aug. 5.

Our current budget is $1,438,934.

This consists of $765,481 millage monies, $114,075 are state/federal grants, $343,178 is from our fund balance.

The remaining balance of $216,200 are donations from individuals and programs income.

To be eligible for our programs, you need only be 60 years old.

We do not ask for financial eligibility or charge a fee, and no longer require your social security number.

Donations for services are encouraged but not required. Currently there are no waiting lists for services.

We have approximately 6,000 senior residents in Charlevoix County (60 and over) or 21 percent of total population.

There are 2,174 individuals, who are over 75,632 of those are over 85.

The growth of services has multiplied since 2,000 prior to the millage.

We have listened to the voices of our clients and caregivers to meet the growing needs of this population.

Our focus has been on improving the quality of services delivered with increased training and supervision of staff.

We pride ourselves in the quality services we provide and have expanded core services.

We have added many more programs to our service delivery.

With the expansion of programs our need for staff has increased 33 percent in just the past year, converting many positions from part time to full time positions.

We have qualified cook staff for Congregate senior meals and home delivery, Certified Nurses Aides for Personal Care, Respite and Adult Day Staff and Homemakers to provide in home cleaning for the elderly.

These include 5 staff on Beaver Island.

We have 4 registered nurses, an activity coordinator and senior center staffing including maintenance personnel.

We have 4.5 full time office and administrative staff including myself, an office manager, one database coordinator and receptionist.

With the aging of the baby boomer population, we are anticipating growth and plan to provide fitness programs, and activities to benefit the younger seniors while maintaining core services.

Our strategic plan includes development of additional volunteer programs, chore services, increased outreach and education services for health and wellness programs.

We are striving to be the best quality Commission on Aging for our Northern Michigan residents and will need your continued support on Aug. 5. Please Vote "yes" for renewing the current senior millage.

DO YOUR PART

Editor:

Calling all Venetian lovers and participants: We need your help.

If Venetian is to remain as it is today, we need to broaden our base of those that pay for it. This is not a city event, although we could not do it without their help. This is not a chamber (of commerce) event.

It is a group of volunteers putting in countless hours and basically going to the same people year after year to donate the money for something we all enjoy.

I see families in the park night after night that can afford to donate and don't. If each of those families gave $100, we wouldn't be begging others for 10 and 20 times that.

Some people can't afford $100, and that is fine. Everyone is welcome.

Most everyone, however, can afford the price of a movie and a box of popcorn and if everyone in East Park did that, we would be able to fund Venetian forever.

I will never understand how people that participate, and can afford to contribute, feel good about having others finance their entertainment.

The differences between the Cherry Festival (Traverse City) and Venetian are many: They have year-round paid staff and offices; Venetian is all volunteer including donated office space and secretarial support; They (Cherry Festival) have a $2 million budge; ours is $200,000; They have fenced in the open space charging to enter events; ours is all free.

Please see the ad "What's Missing at Venetian" in this paper. Giving back to the community is a whole lot more rewarding than taking.

Please help.

SCHNEIDER: KIND, FAIR

Editor:

Although not currently a resident of Charlevoix County, until I retired four years ago, I was an employee of the County of Charlevoix for the previous 25 years and can honestly say that during those years, one of the most competent employees ever to come to work for the County was Don Schneider. Don is not only qualified for the job of Charlevoix County Sheriff, but is also a very fair, honestand& kind man who cares for the citizens of Charlevoix County.

Don was always ready, willing and able to handle whatever came his way and upon my observation, performed competently under whatever pressure was put before him. To have him ready, willing and extremely able to take over as Sheriff Lasater leaves this position is extremely fortunate for the citizens of Charlevoix County.

A vote for Schneider is certainly a vote for continuity of the quality of service the citizens deserve in Charlevoix County.

OBITUARIES

Brandon Eugene Powers: Sept. 6, 1981 - July 12, 2008

Brandon Eugene Powers, 26, of New Lothrop, and formerly of Petoskey, died Saturday, July 12, 2008.

Funeral was Thursday, July 17, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church, Chaplain Dominic Moes officiated.

Burial at the Norwood Township Cemetery.

Brandon was born Sept. 6, 1981, in Petoskey.

He graduated from Petoskey High School in 1999, with honors in Band and Marching Band, then attended Central Michigan University on a music scholarship.

Brandon has been an Emergency Medical Technician for over five years.

He earned Firefighter I and II certifications, and was specifically trained in Haz-Mat response.

He worked for Hazelton and Albee Townships Fire Department and Twin Township Ambulance Services, and was a member of the Genessee County Haz-Mat Response Team.

Brandon recently completed his paramedic training and was to have taken the National Registry Exam in August.

He had also worked for Boyne City EMS, East Jordan EMS, and MMR in Saginaw.

Brandon truly loved Emergency Medical Services.

He also had a love of music, and was a talented trombonist.

Brandon is survived by his mother, Tina (Black) Powers of Bay City, father, Ed H. Visitation was at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

James G. Lewis: Sept. 22, 1935 - July 12, 2008

James G. Lewis, 72, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, July 12, 2008, at his home.

An open house to honor Jim's life was held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, July 19, in Ransom Hall at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Jim was born Sept. 22, 1935, in Charlevoix, to Oral and Lola (Hinshaw) Lewis.

He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1953, then earned a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from Michigan Technological University.

Following college, Jim married Karen Smith in Charlevoix on June 22, 1957.

They moved to Palm Beach County, Florida, where Jim was employed by Pratt & Whitney Rocket Division.

Jim and Karen returned to Michigan where he was employed by Big Rock Nuclear Plant in Charlevoix.

He then took classes at University of Michigan and trained to become a nuclear engineer.

Jim worked at the Palisades Nuclear Plant in South Haven, where he retired as plant manager in 1990.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the Charlevoix Historical Society.

He is survived by his wife, Karen of Charlevoix; sons, Terry Lewis of Charlevoix, Michael (Pat) Lewis of Palm Bay, Fla., James G. Lewis of Stevensville, Andrew (Kerry) Lewis of East Lansing; grandchildren, Gordon (Afton) Lewis, Gavin Lewis, Elizabeth Lewis, Iain Lewis, Pam (Peter) LaBoda; great-grandchildren, Ethan LaBoda, Aydrah Lewis; sisters, Maxine Bergmann and Lorna Lewis of Charlevoix, Beth (Tony) Mulac of Traverse City; sister-in-law, Lois Lewis of Charlevoix.

His brother, Russell Lewis preceded him in death.

Interment will take place at a later date in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Historical Society and the Senior Center.

Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Herbert Lloyd Cummings: April 22, 1924 - July 15, 2008

Herbert Lloyd Cummings Sr., 84, of Charlevoix, passed away Tuesday, July 15, 2008, at Charlevoix Area Hospital with his family by his side. Lloyd was born April 22, 1924, in Charlevoix to Glenn and Mable (Gregory) Cummings on the farm where he continued to reside. Before completing high school, Lloyd joined the US Army in 1943. He married the love of his life, Sara Ann Martin on August 21, 1943. After the war he returned to Charlevoix where he worked at Charlevoix Co-op, drove bus for Charlevoix Schools, and retired from American Mold in 1991. After retiring, Lloyd earned his high school diploma, graduating with two of his granddaughters in 1993. He also coached the Barnard Braves Softball Teams for ten years, was a member of the American Legion, Barnard Grange, and First Baptist Church of Charlevoix. Lloyd is survived by his wife Sara; children, Herb (Ginny) Cummings, Mary Ann (Ron) Cox all of Charlevoix, Jerry (Becky) Cummings of Fairbanks, Alaska, Marilyn (John) Cook of Lexington, Ky; grandchildren, Jodi Russell, Heather (Scott Ford) Cummings, Lori (Tim) Turkowski, Dan (Nickole) Cox, Melissa (Darryl) McInroy, Jessica (Ryan) Schultz, Jon Cummings, Andrea (Jonathan) Hatch, James and Thomas Cook; great-grandchildren, Andrew (Stephanie Fels) Russell, Nathan, Gavin and Adam Russell, Michael, Ashley and Abbey Turkowski, Whitney, Hunter and Jacob Cox, Gradyn and Paige McInroy; great-great-grandson, Brayden Russell, multiple nieces and nephews. Lloyd's sister Clara Martin, and brothers Gordon and Robert preceded him in death. Visitation was 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, July 18, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Funeral was 11 am, Saturday at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix, the Reverend Gene Stringer officiating. Burial will be in Barnard Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Senior Center or the Charlevoix County Adult Care Center.

Sheriff George Lasater and Undersheriff Donald Schneider the Charlevoix Sheriffs Office has the philosophy that no one that comes to our doors asking for help is told there is nothing we can do for you. In the Charlevoix Sheriff Office you never get in trouble for doing too much for someone in need, you only get in trouble if you don't do enough to help someone.

Sheriff Lasater and Undersheriff Schneider believe that if someone comes to the Sheriffs Office in need of help, even if it is not a criminal matter, this office will do all that they can to help the person. This is a concept I personally have always believed in.

During my career at the Sheriffs Office I have been encouraged and supported by Sheriff Lasater and Undersheriff Schneider in many unique and major investigations, some of which came to the Charlevoix Sheriffs Office when the victims were turned away by other police agencies.

As most citizens of Charlevoix County know by now, Don Schneider is running for the office of Sheriff. He has named Chuck Vondra, who is presently serving as Detective Sergeant at the Sheriffs Office as his choice for Undersheriff if he, (Don Schneider) is elected

I have known and worked closely with Don Schneider since he was hired into the Sheriffs Office in 1981. I have known and worked closely with Chuck Vondra since 1995. Having served Charlevoix County working with both of these men I know that serving the needs of our citizens and their willingness to give 110% toward helping those with "their back against the wall" is very much a priority in their own careers.

The Charlevoix County Sheriffs Office is presently faced with a unique situation. We have over the past few years retired a large percentage of our Deputy Sheriffs. We now have a large group of very well qualified young deputies shaping their own careers at the Sheriffs Office. I feel that it is imperative that the citizens put Don Schneider and Chuck Vondra into the leadership roles at the Sheriffs Office to encourage in these young officers a good balance of professionalism, great work ethics and superior moral attributes. The officers need an understanding of the importance of serving the citizens of this county and everyone in need in any way that they can.

Having spent thousands of man hours working along side of Undersheriff Don Schneider and Det/Sgt Chuck Vondra at the Charlevoix Sheriffs Office, I know that they are both men whose word is good and they are both men who can be trusted. I know they are dedicated in their own careers to serving others.

I strongly recommend and endorse William Donald Schneider as Sheriff of Charlevoix County in order to maintain the service to the citizens of Charlevoix County that they should expect, and in fact do deserve from the Sheriffs Office.

YIPPY SKIPPY

Editor,

When I grew up in Grand Rapids, and was a lot younger, when something worked out just wonderfully my mother always told me I had to say "yippy skippy, two times."

So I think it only appropriate that the sacred words are used to celebrate our outstanding new marina and downtown east park. I have to be frank I've never seen anything so beautiful - design, stone work, fountain, clock, the harbor master facility, the band shell, the grass, beautiful flowers, and tress it's a work that can only be described as a miracle. There's not a city in America that has anything like it.

This is another example of our leadership in this community getting it right, better than getting it right.

I said this last year and I feel the need to say it again we owe a tremendous amount of thanks and gratitude to John Winn for getting our community the money for this project for without him it would've never happened.

So let me give this wonderful new East Park the recognition it needs: Yippy skippy, yippy skippy.

SCHNEIDER FOR SHERIFF

Editor:

We are proud to support Don Schneider for Sheriff. His professionalism, honesty and integrity are qualities you can count on. He is approachable, willing to listen to all sides, and makes judgments based on facts that show he is fair and level-headed. In past years he has been a great liaison officer with our schools, coming into the classroom to help educate our youth in law enforcement and drug abuse. Having lived and worked for 26 years in Charlevoix and for the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department, he has a great understanding of our county and communities, and their wants and needs. Besides his 26 years in the Sheriff's Department with 11 years as Under Sheriff, he also brings 20 years of experience from the Coast Guard as a special agent and three-plus years in military intelligence. He received numerous awards and was honorably discharged.

Don takes his job very seriously. He is always looking to improve his own skills and knowledge, as well as his co-workers. He has instituted Detective Sergeant Chuck Vondra's program for prescription drug disposal, and has been instrumental in implementing "Project Lifesaver", a program used to locate Alzheimer's patients and autistic children who wander away.

The Sheriffs' from Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim, and Grand Traverse County have endorsed Don. This shows how well respected he is and how well he works with other law enforcement departments in Northwest Michigan. Don Schneider's qualifications and professionalism truly make him the best candidate for Sheriff of Charlevoix County. Please join us by voting for William Donald Schneider, Tuesday, August 5, 2008.

TRUST MIELKE FOR TRUSTEE

Editor:

I am writing this letter as a candidate for the office of Trustee in Norwood Township.

When my current term on the planning commission expires at the end of this year, I will have served our township for six years. These six years of service to our community have helped me understand the importance of the people elected to the township board. This is why am running for trustee.

To give you an idea how I will make decisions, let me start by saying I am not running because of one issue. I am not doing a phone campaign promoting a "slate of candidates". I am not running to try and change any past township decisions. I believe all members of our community have equal rights under the law and those rights must be protected.

One of the most important jobs the township board has is the appointment of members to the planning commission and zoning board of appeals. At a recent public hearing a member of our community addressed the planning commission with the statement "if there is a gray area in our zoning ordinance, you must find in favor of the community". This is a statement I couldn't disagree with more. Absent a zoning ordinance a property owner has almost no restrictions on what they can do with their property. A zoning ordinance removes some of those rights for the good of the community. If our ordinance has a "gray" area, then we must protect the rights of the individual. I believe that good zoning is important. I also believe that individual property rights are very important. On another occasion, in objection to a special use permit before the planning commission, a resident's attorney suggested that the commission should "claim jurisdiction" on some items that were not in any of our ordinances. I believe that our decisions must be strictly guided by our enabling laws and we should never reach beyond those laws as a basis for any decision by our township.

I have lived in Norwood Township since I was 9 years old. My wife Martha and I chose to raise our three daughters here. Our township has evolved into what it is without over regulation. I will work to protect the rights of the individual while helping to protect what has made our community special. Barring a write-in candidate in the November election, the Woman travels ocean of time to honor fallen fiancee

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

They met 61 years ago, when she was only 20 years old. It was the summer of 1942. He was a sailor and she was a singer.

Bette Jane Radke was enjoying a picnic with her family in Como Park in St. Paul, Minn. when she saw two young men riding a tandem bicycle in the park. One of them was Brian Thomas Smith.

"Brian had red hair and green eyes. I thought he was very handsome," said Radke. "My father invited him over to join us for lunch, and that's how I met him."

Radke said she was attracted to the boy from Wichita Falls, Texas, by his red hair and good humor.

"He also had this Southern drawl, and my Dad just loved him too," she said.

He was originally from the Minnesota area himself, and that's how the two came to meet. Before Smith left Minnesota to head out to sea during World War II, he gave Radke an engagement ring, which she still wears to this day.

"It isn't much, I know," she said, "but I wear it all the time. It's just this tiny little ring."

In September of 1944, Radke received a telegram from Smith's mother. The young sailor had apparently gone missing in action while serving on the USS Escolar, to which there is a memorial dedicated in Charlevoix's East Park.

Radke said it was suspected that a mine sunk the submarine somewhere in the Yellow Sea. All attempts to contact Escolar failed and it was reported on Nov. 27, 1944 as presumed lost, but Radke said military officials believed the submarine was lost in mid-October that year.

The submariners of Charlevoix invited Radke and her family out for the official dedication of the USS Escolar on July 19 at the flagpole in East Park. They swore her in as an honorary member of the Submarine League and gave her a plaque.

Smith

At 81 years old, with the assistance of either a wheelchair or the help of her granddaughters, Radke was seen choking up and trying to keep herself from crying. "I'm so glad I'm here," she said.

Though they only knew each other a short time, Radke remembers performing for the young sailor.

"When I first met him, I was too nervous to sing for him," she said. "But, eventually, I was able to sing for him and a group of fellow sailors in a small club. That was the first time he actually heard me sing. The name of the song was 'Red Sails In Sunset.'"

Though its been 61 years, Radke still remembers Smith vividly.

"Right before he left, I sang to him. The song was called, 'I'll Walk Alone,'" she said. Like many popular songs during the 1940s, this one was about the forced separation many couples endured during wartime. "I'll Walk Alone," specifically, was about a woman who watches her lover go off to war as she promises to wait for him.

Despite Radke's loss, she has been happily married to her husband Frank Knoll for 53 years. She met Frank at a nightclub he used to own, called the Depot.

"I came to the Depot to sing. I didn't like Frank at first, but he had green eyes, just like Brian and he was a pretty nice guy," she said. "We got married a year later."

Today, they own a house in Rosemount, Minn. and have about 50 grandchildren. They had six boys and two girls.

"I'll never forget this guy, though, and I've told Frank that," she said. "Frank says he understands and that's OK."

Radke said the submariners went out of their way to accommodate her and her family during their stay in Charlevoix after a 13 hour drive from Minnesota.

"They've been very nice to us. This is something I will never forget," she said.

RECYCLE ROLOFF

Editor:

To Whom it May Concern:

On behalf of the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee, please print the following letter of support for Charlevoix County Commissioner Shirley Roloff.

The Charlevoix County Recycling Committee encourages the support of incumbent Commissioner, Shirley Roloff. Commissioner Roloff was instrumental in the creation of and continues to be a strong advocate for, what's become a very successful Charlevoix County Recycling Program.

As you visit the polls on August 5th, please remember to support the Charlevoix County Recycling Millage and Shirley Roloff as County Commissioner.

Editor:

I have gotten to know Don Schneider well during the past ten years. I sponsored Don to become a member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, and he became an active member. I also know Don as an active member and officer of the Charlevoix Street Legends.

However, I am writing this letter of endorsement of Don's candidacy for Sheriff of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department because of his professional qualifications to be the top ranking law enforcement administrator in Charlevoix County. My undergraduate degree was in police administration and in my professional career with the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice Programs and the Michigan Department of Corrections, I have worked with very well qualified police administrators, and Don ranks with best of them. In addition, in the thirteen years I reviewed and managed federal grants, never once did I, or as I recall, did anyone else in the Office ever become suspicious of a violation of the Hatch Act.

Blue Bellaire takes best host car

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

On Saturday July 19, the 16th Annual Street Legends Car Show took place in Downtown Charlevoix

Over the past 15 years, the Street Legends Car Show has given over $78,750 to 18 local charities or causes.

"All the money we're collecting is going to local charities," said Karen Pierce, one of the go-to organizers of the event. "That's the main reason we're doing it."

Registration for patrons showing off their cars was at 9 a.m. and the actual show started at 10 a.m. Live music from The Fabulous Oldies But Goodies Band took place between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

There were 33 classes awarded with first, second and third place honors. Twb special awards were also given for best host car, and people's choice. There were 90 participants and 20 host cars. The host cars consisted of members of the Street Legends Car Club.

The Street Legends featured car, owned by Tom Louiselle of Charlevoix, was a 1955 Chevy Bellaire. It was won one of the top honors of Favorite Host Car.

Ron Watson of Lake City won the Best of Show, Best Engineered, and People's Choice with his 1941 Willy's Coupe.

Best Paint went to Joel Shooks of Traverse City with his 1969 Mach One Ford.

Best Interior was awarded to Carl Hoops of Baldwin with his 1932 Ford.

All of the awards except for the People's Choice, were judged by the Committee of the Street Legends Car Club.

This year, Pierce was in charge of activities to keep the kids occupied while their parents enjoyed themselves looking at the cars. There was a variety of activities, including face painting, games, contests and a craft

With an oldies rock 'n' roll theme, the Classic Car Club of Charlevoix offered a number of fun activities throughout the day, including a hoola hoop contest, a

Sheriff candidates speak out

NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

On July 15, both Don Schneider and Don Sproul underlined fiscal responsibility as a cornerstone of their campaigns for the sheriff's office.

Speaking before the Charlevoix County Republican Women, the two lawmen painted slightly different pictures of the department's finances.

"Sheriff Lasater scrutinizes our budget continuously," said Schneider. "We have successfully and repeatedly brought more funds into the county."

Schneider offered a detailed outline of the sheriff's budget, as well as his role with a number of safety organizations. He said that his familiarity with the sheriff's office and a trio of emergency service organizations made him best suited for the job.

However, Sproul said that he planned to save the county between 5 and 10 percent of its annual budget by coordinating better with the city police departments within the county.

"I want to reestablish a better rapport with the police chiefs in different cities," said Sproul, who currently works part time with the Boyne City Police Department. "Right now there's a duplication of services."

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema asked for details about how money could be carved out of the budget.

"Does that mean cutting services or deputies?" asked Jarema wearing a T shirt in support of Schneider.

Sproul was not present at the forum when this question was asked, but Schneider was adamant that services would not be cut, and added that the budget is in a constant state of flux.

"It's a day-to-day issue. It's fluid and we try to adjust as we go along," he said.

When called later about Jarema's question, Sproul declined to give specific details behind his plan. He explained that he did not plan to scale back any of the deputies on the force.

"I've reviewed their budgets over the last few years and have seen where they are spending money, and I believe I can save them some money," he said.

Street Legends raise $2,500 for charity bubble gum contest, a limbo contest, 50/50 drawings and door prizes.

"We hope to have things that appeal to a wide group of people," Pierce said.

At 30 p.m., there was an auction to benefit Camp Quality. Camp Quality is an organization that hosts camping and other special events for kids with cancer throughout the year. "This year, we raised $2,500 for Camp Quality," said Joan Balch, Treasurer of Street Legends.

"Its one of our substantial fundraisers for the year," said Eleanor West, Executive Director for Camp Quality. West said they have gotten a good deal of financial support from both the Classic Car Club itself and many individuals associated with it in the past.

"They've done just a grand job with helping us out in any way we needed in the past," West said. "They've given the kids rides and stuff, it's a pretty nice event."

West explained that during her 21 years of service to the nonprofit, she gets anywhere from 50 to 60 kids at a time, with about 20 teens and during family events, they'll attract around 200 people.

The kids, West said, range between the ages of seven to 18. "Some of them do very well and others have a hard time. A couple of them may not have cancer, but may have a secondary problem that is the result of cancer," West said. "Even though they may be in remission, they might have adult diseases at a much earlier age, like diabetes or heart problems."

The show included makes and models of cars from the '30s through the '90s. Cars were lined up and down Bridge Street, as well as half of Mason Street and the entire free public parking lot.

The Car Show concluded with an awards ceremony where a $500 grand prize drawing took place amongst registered participants.

Latest on Hatch Act

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Behind the current Hatch Act investigation into Don Schneider's candidacy, is $67,101 the sheriff's department received last year in federal aid. He will face Don Sproul in the Aug. 5 primary election for a chance to win the office of Charlevoix County Sheriff

Behind the current Hatch Act investigation into Don Schneider's candidacy, is $67,101 the sheriff's department received last year in federal aid.

That money made up just over four percent of the department's entire budget, and was predominantly spent on the marine division. A much smaller portion supplemented the department's inclusion with Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement.

According to Sheriff George Lasater, the department's 2007 budget was $1,634,923 and although he needs the federal money, he added that it represents a small portion of his overall funding.

Lasater

"It's significant and helpful. Now we have an adequate marine division," he said. "But in the whole scheme of things, the amount is minimal."

However, according to the Office of Special Counsel, the amount of federal money an office receives is not the most paramount fact when investigating whether or not a public employee can participate in a partisan election. According to Jim Mitchell, the director of communications for the Washington D.C. office, the key factor is how closely a person is tied to those funds.

"It's about what the individual duties are to those funds. What their work is and how it connects," he said.

Mitchell continued that the Hatch Act is designed to combat even a the appearance of corruption.

"A person should not be campaigning in their uniform or using (a publicly owned) vehicle," he said. "That's using official authority and you can't do that in a campaign."

Schneider maintains that until he hears otherwise, he has not violated the Hatch Act.

"I brought this to their attention and they cleared me at first," he said. "Then someone muddied the waters."

When asked whether or not he was connected to Schneider's investigation, his opponent Don Sproul declined to comment.

"It would be inappropriate to comment on an open investigation," he said.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q: Was removing all of the cement kiln dust from East Park considered?

A: Removing the material was one of five options evaluated in the proposed final remedies for East Park. Ultimately it was not recommended based on environmental, safety and practical concerns. Removal of the material would result in approximately 1,000 gallons of water a minute mixing with cement kiln dust during the excavation process and picking up the associated contaminates from the dust. The water would have to be discharged directly to the lake because it is not physically possible to ship that volume of water off-site for disposal. This option would result in a dramatic increase in the amount of contaminates in the lake. Additionally, an estimated 75 - 80 trucks a day for a year would be required to remove the material, adding associated trucking pollutants to the environment and increasing transportation safety risks to the community.

Q: Is there a big problem with mercury in the water coming out of East Park and the Bay Harbor development?

A: While there is a trace amount of mercury in the water coming from the piles, the system installed by CMS Land is collecting 135,000 gallons a day, treating it, and disposing of it off-site. The mercury levels in that water are more than 10 times less than what the government considers safe for drinking water. During its short-term work, CMS Land has installed three parts of a proposed five-part final remedy at East Park. Before that work, the amount of mercury going into the lake annually would equal about three paper clips. That's been reduced to about one paper clip a year. It will be reduced even more when the other two parts of the long-term remedy are in place

Q: When will East Park reopen?

A: CMS Land recently reached agreements with Resort Township and the EPA which allows CMS Land to complete the two remaining remedies in East Park this year. Resort Township plans to begin park improvements this fall, such as paving and installing benches and other amenities, with the goal of East Park reopening in 2009.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Health alert

• The Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) recently announced that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has lifted the consumer advisory for certain fresh tomatoes; however, the warning remains in effect for raw jalapeño and serrano peppers. "Consumers may resume enjoying any type of fresh tomato, including raw red plum, raw red Roma, and raw red round tomatoes," said Katherine Fedder, MDA's Food & Dairy Division Oirector. "It's always recommended to huy locally grown products whenever possible and now is a great time to purchase Michigan-grown tomatoes."

Check out www.fda.gov/oc/opacom/hottopics/tomatoes.html for more information.

• Two hats, one from Antrim County and the other from Charlevoix County, were confirmed to have been infected with rabies, public health officials announced today. They remind residents and visitors to reduce their exposure to rabies. Rabies vaccine prevents rabies from developing in people who have been exposed to an infected animal. Once rabies symptoms begin, there is no treatment and it is always fatal. Exposure to rabies is not an emergency, but decisions must not he delayed. If you are bitten or clawed by an animal, you should wash the area thoroughly and contact your health care provider immediately if treatment is needed. Next, call your local Health Department office to determine the need for rabies vaccination.

The most common sources of rabies exposure in the area are hats, dogs, rats and ferrets. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control (COC) and Prevention defines an exposure to rabies as an animal hite penetrating skin, contact with an animal's saliva or nervous system tissue, or contamination of open wounds, scrapes, and mucous membranes such as mouth or eyes.

The CDC recommends the following steps to avoid exposure to animals infected with rabies:

-Vaccinate all pet dogs, cats, ferrets, and other animals that have frequent contact with humans. Consider vaccinating horses and other livestock.

-Do not let pets roam free.

-Spay or neuter pets to reduce dog and cat overpopulation.

-Don't feed or water pets outside—even empty howls attract wild animals.

-Keep garhage securely covered.

-Do not keep wild animals as pets.

-Never handle unfamiliar or wild animals, even if they appear friendly.

-If you see a wild animal acting strangely, report it to animal control officials.

-Bat proof your home in the fall and winter.

Ellair open

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
NEWS-REVIEW
CONVERGANCE EOITOR

A hig city girl has returned to her roots with the hope of revitalizing the small town she grew up in.

After spending 15 years in Chicago, Ill. immersed in the art community as a freelance artist, on June 6. Edith Pair, 34, opened Ellair Gallery, an art gallery at 106 Pine River Lane in Charlevoix, below the Weathervane Restaurant.

"Chicago taught me everything. Now, I really want to he part of the revitalization of Charlevoix's retail industry," she said. "It's (the gallery) a small, intimate space. You come in and feel comfortable and at ease."

Pair, a 1992 graduate of Charlevoix High School earned her bachelor of fine arts degree in 1997 from the Art Institute of Chicago. Her main artistic interest has heen fashion design. She's carried the thread into her gallery with a number of original clothing designs and also fills custom orders and requests.

Her love of art extends beyond clothing into furniture or what she refers to as "functional art." She welcomes those with a piece of furniture needing a facelift to bring it in. Thus far her customizable breakfast trays have heen a hit with customers.

"Everything I do I want to be used for art and life," she said.

Rounding out Pair's offerings in the gallery are sculpture of local favorite Todd Warner, photography from Tony Dunaske of Petoskey, glass work by Phyllis Gardner of Florida and acrylic on canvass creations from Shelly Wilkerson of California.

While the gallery features big names and high quality works Pair said owning its art isn't out of reach.

"Anyone who walks in here can huy something," she said.

Aside from the art available for purchase, Pair also offers custom order calligraphy.

Her future plans include opening a second gallery in Chicago, Ill.

Pair is currently participating in a promotional effort with Weathervane Restaurant servers, offering patrons a free gift inside the gallery when they present a dinner receipt.

A grand opening celebration for Ellair Gallery will take place from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Aug. 8, the evening before Charlevoix's famed Waterfront Art Fair, at the gallery. Warner, Dunaske and Pair will all be on-site for the event.

The gallery is open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday and by appointment on Monday.

For more information, contact Edith Pair at Ellair Gallery by calling 547-4655.

Memorial Service:

George E. Baldwin

SPORTS reviewing the action

Footrace in honor of fallen athlete

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

"Anyone who knew about track or racing also knew who Ryan Shay was," said Matt Peterson, who was a track and field coach for 16 years at East Jordan High School.

Shay went to Central Lake High School, in East Jordan and graduated in 1997. Though Peterson never met Shay, he had seen him race several times while coaching against him.

"I remember having a high school invitational at East Jordan, and he (Shay) was only in eighth grade at the time and he beat all of the high schoolers," said Peterson, who no longer coaches but still teaches at East Jordan. "Everyone I coached in high school was in awe of him."

Shay died at the Olympic Trials Marathon in New York on Nov. 3, 2007. He was 28 years old.

He was a Notre Dame graduate where he won the 10,000 meter NCAA national outdoor track championship in 2001.

Professionally, Shay won five national championships including the 2003 USA Track and Field marathon. In high school, he won 11 state championships in cross country and track.

Peterson is one of the organizers for the first annual Ryan Shay Mile in Charlevoix.

The event, scheduled for 10 a.m., July 26, is a one-mile road race which starts from the corner of M-66 and US-31 and heads North ending a few yards before the bridge.

"He was certainly the best in Northern Michigan in high school," said Peterson. "If he wasn't the best, he was close to it. The kids that I coached always said he was real nice and a very hardworking young man."

Bergmann Marine donated $4,000 as the prize money for the race. "We wanted to get this thing started and somebody had to donate the prize money, so I thought it would be a great honor to do so," said Doug Bergmann, owner of Bergmann Marine.

Bergmann said it was a small amount of money compared to the amount of leg work they had to do to get the word out to the elite running community.

"We really wanted to make the first year respectable... all of the runners are at least collegiate All-Americans," Bergmann said. "We're kind of off the beat and path in the track world, but it really helps to have Ryan's name attached to it."

Bergmann used to coach track in Charlevoix for a brief period of time, and though he also didn't know Shay personally, he knew of his reputation.

"What he was most known for is that he was really talented and an extremely hard worker," Bergmann said. "Even when he got to that level (in college and as a professional) he was still seen as a hard worker who was very mentally tough."

"There was no question he was the best guy on the field," Bergmann said. "If he went down, he went down swinging. Also, if you planned on beating him, you were going to have to beat him because he wasn't going to beat himself or let himself lose."

Doug Drenth, another organizer of this year's foot races, said that he met Shay once at a Nationals competition for cross-country about two years ago. "Their whole family were runners, and I was talking to their father Joe who was there to support his younger son, Stephan, and Ryan also happened to be there supporting his brother," said Drenth. "I only got to meet Ryan briefly, but growing up in Northern Michigan, he was just an inspiration. This is to honor him and his family."

"Their father, Joe, is a great guy," Drenth said. "Joe would coach anybody. He loves running and has a very strong knowledge of the sport and its reflected in Ryan and Stephan and all of the Shays."

All three organizers of the event, Peterson, Bergmann and Drenth stressed the fact they are doing this to try to get people out to the parade a little earlier. "It's also meant to allow them the opportunity to see Olympic-caliber athletes at a venue that they normally wouldn't see them," Bergmann said.

were stolen or vandalized, John Haggard, county Republican Chair, Bill Lovett, County Democratic Chair, and John Jarema, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney warned that, not only is it illegal to tamper with political signs, but it is against the spirit of American electoral tradition. Anyone caught stealing signs will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, according to Jarema. Charlevoix Sheriff George Lasater has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of anyone tampering with private political signs.

Law enforcement

• At approximately 5:57 p.m. on July 6, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was dispatched to a single vehicle accident involving a moped with injuries to the driver on Kings Highway, South of East Side Drive on Beaver Island. The Sheriff's Office was informed that the driver was refusing EMS and was brought to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center by a passer-by. The driver, Gregg Evans, 49, of Beaver Island, stated he was trying to avoid a vehicle parked on the side of the road and turned too sharply causing him to lose control of the moped. Evans was treated at the Health Center for severe lacerations to the face, some requiring stitches. Evans was then transported to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey due to the fear of internal injuries, and remains there in the ICU. Evans was not wearing a helmet at the time of the crash. The incident is still under investigation.

• Sheriff George T. Lasater advised that there is a telephone scam going around where someone poses as an employee of the local court.

The caller says the victim failed to report for jury duty and that a warrant has been issued for the victim's arrest. The victim will often rightly claim they never received notification of jury duty. The scammer then asks the victim for confidential information for verification purposes. Victims are asked for their social security number, birth date and sometimes even credit card numbers – everything the scammer needs to steal their identity.

Sheriff Lasater would like to remind citizens to never give out any personal information over the phone.

Warming hut to log cabin

Mike Kssueke puts log siding up on the recently re-located warming hut. The hut used to be a shack which was spray-painted last year by Bo Boss and is being prepped for the upcoming winter season. The log siding, which was donated by the Pine River Company, will provide better insulation and give the hut a more authentic log cabin look, according to Pine River's owner Mike Way.

Dear Charlevoix
County Residents:

It has been an honor and a privilege to serve you as your Sheriff for the last 32 years. I want to thank each and every one of you for you continued support and commitment to Charlevoix County.

I have always been committed to the safety and security of all the citizens of this county. I am proud of instituting a sub-station in Boyne Falls and having a full-time deputy on Beaver Island, a school liaison officer, a drug dog, a bike patrol, marine division and snowmobile patrol.

My office has been pro-active in implementing programs for the elderly and children of this community. It is a community I am proud of and a community one can feel safe in.

To ensure this office continues to be pro-active and has a proven leader to guide the staff, I am endorsing William Donald Schneider for Sheriff. He is a proven leader, is ethical, moral and the only qualified man for the job. Don Schneider cares about Charlevoix County and its residents. He is the man to lead this office. Please join me in voting for William Donald Schneider on August 5, 2008.

Sincerely,

Sheriff George T. Lasater

Integrity is back

BY KAILIN VANDEVELDE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

With the friendly spirit of a family business Randy Maurer will open Integrity Car Care.

Once the owner of Integrity Auto Repair, Maurer is back in business with a new name and a new location on 06807 Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

Maurer began his education at Lansing Community College before transferring to General Motors Trade School to become a mechanic.

"I always got a sense of accomplishment when I fixed something," Maurer said.

He went on to work at a variety of dealerships before opening his own auto shop (Integrity Auto Repair) on U.S. 131. After 13 years, circumstances closed the shop causing Maurer to refocus and plan to open the new shop, Integrity Car Care.

Maurer will focus his business on providing quality work and competitive prices while maintaining a personal relationship with his customers.

"You are only a stranger once when you come to my shop," Maurer said.

As a board member for the Family of Faith church he accredits both God and his supportive family for the inspiration to begin his new business. His church is also where he found his right-hand girl, and single employee Peggy Rolls.

Maurer, with his wife Robin, has two daughters — Melissa, who with her two children still resides in Charlevoix, and Heather who lives in Colorado.

Integrity Car Care is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. To contact Integrity Car Care call 547-5004.

New dentist, new name

ALICE PERRAULT NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER
AND BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Cosmetic and Reconstructive Dentistry of Northern Michigan is now Beacon Dental Center.

Dr. John Merrill sold his 25-year practice to Dr. Michael Sullivan.

"The old name was kind of a mouthful," Sullivan said. "We wanted something more simple, that reflected the area."

Beacon Dental Center offers ordinary dental procedures, but they are also licensed to use intravenous sedation for patient comfort as well as cosmetic and implant operations.

"I've had specific training in the field of dental implants and can provide both simple and complex implant therapy to patients missing anywhere from one to all of their natural teeth," he said.

An open house is scheduled from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., July 30 at the Weathervane restaurant.

Sullivan is a member of the American Association of Implant Dentistry, the American Academy of Dental Anesthesiology, the American Dental Association and the Michigan Dental Association.

Among Sullivan's accomplishments is a text book he wrote entitled "The Illustrated Guide to Clinical Dentistry." Sullivan said the Beacon Dental Center team, "focuses on making our patients as comfortable as possible."

It is his personal mission to be a positive influence and to help as many people as he can, he said.

Originally from Ohio, Sullivan moved his family to Northern Michigan so he could take over Merrill's practice.

"We came up here because we wanted to offer people the chance to have everything they need at this office," Sullivan said.

Merrill, who began working in the field of dentistry 25 years ago, has no plans of slowing down following the sale of his practice.

"We're moving to Charlotte (N.C.); less winter and a bigger town," he said. "I feel very thankful and blessed to have worked for such great people over the decades, but I'm a big city kid and, after 25 years, I'm not ready to coast off into the sunset."

Merrill completed his undergraduate work at Western Michigan University and attended dental school at University of Michigan before opening his northern Michigan practice in 1983.

Merrill said he knows his former patients will be well taken care of by Sullivan.

"It has been a privilege to serve them and I'm handing the reigns over to as capable a young dentist as I've ever known," he said.

Alice Perrault can be reached by e-mail at aperrault@petoskeynews.com.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

JOHN J. McQUILLAN P.L.C. IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by George Wallace and Carol Wallace, his wife, Troy S. Wallace, a single man, Jill M. Bell, a married woman, of 10505 Metz Road, Ellsworth, Michigan 49729, as mortgagors, to Thumb National Bank & Trust Co., a national banking corporation of 7254 Michigan Avenue, P.O. Box 560, Pigeon, Michigan 48755-0560, as mortgagee, dated October 26, 2004, and recorded in the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds on November 8, 2004, in Liber 648 at Pages 897-909 of Charlevoix County Records. The balance owing on the mortgage at the time of this notice is One Million One Hundred Eighty-six Thousand One Hundred Sixty and 94/100 ($1,186,160.94) Dollars. The mortgage contains a power of sale, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, August 8, 2008, at 11:00 a.m., at the first floor lobby of the Charlevoix County Courthouse (that being the building where the Charlevoix County Circuit Court is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest at the rate of 8.75% per annum and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law or contract, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

No suicide note found

COLLINS

trying to order child pornography also this spring.

A search warrant to look for a suicide note was executed, but it is unknown at this time what caused the accident.

"He was found dead early this morning. He ran his car into a tree," she said. "The cases were extremely strong (due) to the amount of evidence against him."

Fanara said even more disturbing was that Collins was allegedly growing the drugs and downloading the porn including images of erotica, animation and pictures of minors engaged in sexual activity, within a school zone.

Collins was found in his vehicle on old U.S. 31 near the corner at Greensky Hill just off Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Suspicion of child pornography originally led authorities to the man's home, but they found much more.

"On Jan. 10, Collins requested he be sent a catalog of videos related to 'pre-teen girls' and 'young teen girls (ages 13 to 16).' Collins was sent a catalog of child pornography videos which listed videos for sale with specific descriptions for each video, including the ages of the minors involved in the sexually explicit acts and a description of the sexually explicit acts these minors engaged in," stated Charlevoix City Police Deputy-Chief Scott Hankins in his affidavit of probable cause. "On Feb. 13, Collins requested to purchase two child pornography DVDs."

The catalogue was provided to Collins by the U.S. Post Office during a sting operation.

"On Feb. 29, U.S. Postal Inspector from Cleveland Domicile of the Pittsburgh Division of the USPIS, contacted U.S. Postal Inspector Ryan Colley from the Detroit Division, informing him that ... Collins participated in an offer to purchase videos of minors engaging in sexually explicit conduct," Hankins stated. "

Nearly 10 weeks later, Collins consented to a U.S. Postal Inspector's request to search Collins' West Antrim Street residence.

Inspectors found a marijuana grow operations, cocaine and psilocyhin mushrooms.

Forensics results on July 2 showed an undisclosed number of child porn web sites had been visited by someone using Collins' computer, and that "hundreds of images of child erotica, nudity and animated images of children engaging in sexual activity."

The forensics analysis showed someone attempted to delete the images, however, they were still on the hard drive.

During the consent search of Collins residence, a marijuana growing operation was discovered, as well as cocaine and mushrooms (psilocyhin).

Collins faced at least a half dozen charges including three counts of possession of child sexually abusive material which is up to a four-year and/or 10,000 fine; and three counts of using a computer to commit a crime which is a seven-year and/or $5,000 fine

Collins had also been charged with four drug-related counts including possession of drugs within a school zone; delivery/manufacture of marijuana; possession of marijuana within a school zone; and maintaining a drug house.

Fanara said now that Collins is dead, both cases are closed.

Charlevoix City business

The following actions were taken by the City of Charlevoix City Council during their July 21 meeting.

Item: Discussion on Journeyman-Lineman pay raise

In brief: Though it was decided to give the journeyman-lineman a $1 pay raise, there was confusion as when it would be. They would either raise the pay level now, for all of them or wait until a new person is hired.

Board action: The Council decided to wait until a new person was hired.

Item: Request by the Charlevoix Yacht Club for free launch

In brief: A resolution to waive the launch/parking fees for the races and special or public events.

Item: Consideration to Approve an Ordinance Amending Chapter 22A

In brief: An ordinance to amend section 2.71(3) of chapter 22A: City water service-exclusive water source of title II of the code of the City of Charlevoix by revising the legal description of the impact area contained in section 2.71(3)

Board action: Passed.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN'S ONLY 4D BREAST MRI

Introducing a Powerful New Tool in the Fight Against Breast Cancer

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital takes the lead in women's health with new Breast MRI imaging

Breast MRI is an extremely powerful tool that compliments your physician's resources in diagnosing and fighting breast cancer.

The benefits of Breast MRI are many:

- This advanced diagnostic system may detect breast cancer missed by mammography for women who are high-risk due to a family history of breast cancer
- New research suggests MRI scans may detect precursors to breast cancer, allowing early intervention to prevent cancer growth among high-risk women before it even starts
- Performing this test may also reduce the number of breast biopsies done to evaluate a suspicious breast mass seen with mammography

Breast MRI at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital provides:

- Leading expertise in reading and analysis of Breast MRIs through a partnership with one of the nation's leading Breast MRI institutes
- Digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, in our continued commitment to women's health, is proud to be the first and only Breast MRI provider in all of northern Michigan.

WHAT'S MISSING AT VENETIAN?

Have you ever noticed what is missing at the Venetian Festival?

It isn't live entertainment. Throughout Venetian Week, bands in East Park will be jumping with a wide variety of music.

It isn't kids' activities. The Venetian Games include kids and teens in soccer, basketball, running, sailing, golf and tennis tournaments. Teens are provided their own music venue at the "Battle of the Bands." Kid's Day at Lake Michigan Beach also provides a slew of low and no cost children's entertainment.

It isn't spectator opportunities. The street parade and the boat parade have entertained spectators for decades, and the Ultimate Air Dogs will dazzle Festival goers with their canine leaping prowess.

It certainly won't be fireworks that are missing, considering the festival features two nights of world class fireworks displays.

What's missing is admission prices. All of the big events and entertainment offered at the Venetian Festival are absolutely free to the public.

But, it still costs the Venetian Festival upwards of $200,000 (only 1/10 of the National Cherry Festival budget), to put on its premier festival, which is why the nonprofit volunteer organization needs your help. If you've ever enjoyed a concert in the park, Kid's Day, the Venetian Games, the street parade, the Venetian boat parade or the spectacular fireworks displays, please contribute, so that we can continue to bring you quality entertainment and activities in the future.

Frankly speaking, 2008 is a pivotal year for Festival finances, considering the revenue loss and increased expenses which the Festival was forced to incur in staging outside of East Park in 2007, which totaled over $50,000.00. In the event the Festival does not receive increased and new contributions, the Venetian Board may be left with no alternative but to dramatically reduce the two costliest (and nonrevenue generating) events, concerts and fireworks.

Please do not look away when it is time to contribute. By donating to the Festival, you can become a noted member of the Venetian Burgee Club. Anyone who donates $100 or more becomes a member of the Club and receives a burgee pennant. The pennants are emblazoned with the Venetian logo, the current year and the level of sponsorship.

Levels are: Admiral level, $3,000 minimum donation with a blue burgee; Captain level, $1,000 minimum donation with a red burgee; First Mate level, $500 minimum donation with a gold burgee; and Crew level, $100 minimum donation with a white burgee.

Please send donations to: Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., PO Box 120, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 or visit the Venetian Festival Merchandise Stand in East Park, during the festival.

Road report

COMMISSION SOLVENT DESPITE ROCKY FISCAL ROAD

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Despite Michigan still losing money by the truckload through road funding inequity, the Charlevoix County Road Commission continues to remain solvent.

Keith Ogden of the Charlevoix County Road Commission Board gave a synopsis of the report during a recent Charlevoix County Board of Commissioner's meeting.

"Our fund balance is where it should be ... and we still rank near the top of Michigan's best managed road commissions for safety and risk management," he said.

The road commission's coffers saw a 17 percent increase, $317,317, from 2007's beginning fund balance compared to 2006's fund balance increase of $37,320.

Ogden

The audit, performed each year to ensure the road commission's financial statements are an accurate representation of their actual fiscal situation, was completed by Gardner, Provenzano, Schauman & Thomas.

The road commission's 2007 fund balance was $2,179,557, with net assets of $21,933,156.

The main issue auditors discovered during their 2006 report was a lack of individual oversight at the road commission, something Ogden said, has been rectified.

"What that meant was, we didn't have enough people looking over everybody else's work to satisfy our auditor that we weren't going to mishandle funds," he said. "Through a combination of hiring a

Following are contested seats only:

• Charlevoix County Clerk

Cheryl Potter Browe, 57, Republican

Past political experience: She has worked in the clerk's office for 20 years.

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"One of the greatest issues facing the county clerk's office is service to the public. With the cost of fuel going up, which in turn has an effect on most everything a person needs to live, not everyone has the resources available to physically come into the office when they need something or just want to do some research. I intend to put as much information as possible on our Web site so research can be done at home without a wasted trip to the Clerk's office just to find that we don't have what they are looking for."

Jim Eisley, 55, Republican

Past political experience: None

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"I think one of the most important issues coming up is economics and at this point in time I'm not saying I'm for or against a county administrator but if the fiscal responsibility is left in the clerks' office I think this needs to be someone with a business background and not someone that's just worked in the office for 20 years. I think with a business background there are times decisions need to be made and these decisions need to be made on business facts, not arbitrarily."

• Norwood Township Supervisor

Frank E. Hamilton, 70, Republican

Past political experience: Walled Lake City Council for 13 years, two years as a city/village manager in walled lake and Wolverine.

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"There are two things we want to do: Make the township user-friendly. We want don't want to be confrontational at meetings when we deal with people and ... we'd like to put so much information out there that a FOIA request wouldn't be required."

Denny Way, 52, Republican

Past political experience: Norwood trustee for four years and three years on the Norwood Planning Commission.

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"The most important issue is towers in general: Wind energy systems and cell towers in particular. I think we need to address both these issues with a tremendous amount of public input and then finding and developing the proper areas in which they be used. Norwood Township is really critical for cell phone use with so many residents down along the lake shore. It's a must that we provide them with some cell phone service. As far as wind energy, Norwood Township's geography is such that we are a prime area for wind and we have a lot of companies courting the public, property owners. Do it so most feasible and pleasing to the eye."

• Norwood Township Trustee

Thomas Mielke, 46, Republican

Past political experience: Norwood Planning Commission member for nearly six years.

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"One of the most important issues facing the township is the rewrite of the zoning ordinance to comply with the new master plan. The makeup of the planning commission is very important when that zoning ordinance is rewritten. I think we need people on the planning commission that are sympathetic to property rights while understanding the need to preserve the character of the township. And, I think it's important that people know I don't support the group (Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety) that has filed several lawsuits against he township."

David Ridenour, 57, Republican

Past political experience: None

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"The biggest issue, I think, is (the need) to be fair and ethical and try to abide by the current zoning ordinance; what the majority of the people want and not just what a few people want.

Douglas Warner, 58, Republican

Past political experience: None

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"Putting the township back in order and looking at roads, parks and other infrastructure needs. Hopefully, by working as a unit, we can get some committees put together and get different ideas and proposals so we can move forward."

• James Township Clerk

Pamela O'Brien, 61, Republican

Past political experience: None

EDITORIAL

With so much talk these days about immigration, border security and the cost of illegal aliens on the American pocketbook, it's good to stop and take a look at what is actually involved in all this hubbub: the potential loss of our humanity.

Enter Andrea Miller, an emigrant of Jamaica who has worked in the United States for many years, but recently attained the status of American citizen and now lives in Charlevoix. (see next week's Courier.)

Andrea is a mother and wife who wanted nothing more than to live, work and raise a family in a place, even with our economic woes, that is replete with opportunity.

We applaud Miller for doing the right thing according to the law and obtaining citizenship while so many choose to live and work in America under the figurative radar of U.S. immigration rules and regulations.

But, what of those hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of souls, some good, some bad, who live here illegally? Are they any less human? Are they any less deserving of the basic human rights and helping hand we would extend our geographically legal brethren?

We understand the government wants its taxes, and the xenophobes feel the need to control the flow of who is and is not welcome on our shores, but we have to wonder why the policing body is so adamantly opposed to that honorary four-letter word "amnesty," as if merely changing the status of those already here would somehow ignite catastrophe.

Nonetheless, this seems to be one of those issues which gives argumentative types a reason to get out of bed in the morning.

So, until there is a time when people can learn to treat each other better, we'll continue to applaud those who follow the rules and wish those who do not the best of luck in their travels.

Bully for basswood

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Basswood trees get no respect.

Literature is filled with mighty or noble oaks, with stately elms and graceful willows.

But I can find no complimentary adjective that has been applied to basswood trees.

It may be that no one can figure out what they are.

They have carried more common names than most trees.

In Europe, they are usually Linden trees; in England they are lime trees; in America they were called whitewood or beetrees.

All the names are reasonable in some way, but they do cause confusion.

Here with a defense of basswoods, starting with why they carry that name in our country. It has nothing to do with fish.

The bark of young twigs contains long, sturdy fibers.

It is possible to make a short piece of cord from any basswood twig in just a few minutes; something that I am sure the original inhabitants of this part of the world must have done often.

Such fibers are properly called bast, from a very old English word for fiber. If you say Bastwood five times rapidly you will note that the "t" tends to disappear and leave you saying "basswood."

Besides its fibers, our local basswoods carry other virtues.

A very pleasant tea can be made from the dried flowers, which are loaded with sweet nectar.

The flowers, which have just finished blooming on our local streetside basswoods, help to explain the name "beetree."

Although watching some of our neighborhood basswoods a few weeks ago in full bloom, it was disappointing to note that very few bees were visiting them. Populations of bees are much reduced in the past couple of years, making basswood honey into a rarity.

The wood of basswoods is white, relatively soft and without strong grain, making it the first choice of many woodcarvers, which explains the name "whitewood."

The hand-carved wooden chains and balls in cages you see now and then in folk museums are almost always carved from basswood.

I have been unable to find out why they are called limes in England, and if anyone knows I hope they will tell me.

As a botanist, the whole pattern of growth of these trees is of greatest interest to me.

Our native basswoods produce trunks that grow fast, decay quickly and often become hollow, making them a great place for the wild bees to live right next to an outstanding source of nectar for honey-making.

Fast-growing trunks do not live long, and a 50-year old basswood trunk would be uncommon.

The root makes new spouts that quickly grow into new trunks, and a moderately old basswood out in the forest is likely to have a half-dozen trunks of varying sizes all attached to the same root.

The basswoods or lindens along our Charlevoix street are a European variety that normally has only one trunk and can make a fine yard tree.

The native basswoods would be a poor choice for your yard, unless you make accummodation for the occasionally falling old trunk and enjoy the many sprouts at the base.

A really old basswood in the forest may have a root aged 500 years and a dozen large trunks making a room-sized space surrounded by the most recent trunks; a remarkable sight.

Say something encouraging about basswoods if you get the chance.

They deserve some respect.

One more tree note. If you have a Norway maple in your yard, expect it to show an impressing infestation of those large, black tar-like leafspots by the end of summer.

The leaves are already infected, and show small whitish spots in the places that will turn black by September.

It is a good year for the fungus that causes the spots, and aside from looking a bit unsightly, the tree will not be harmed.

TOO NICE TO HIDE

Editor:

The new East Park is even more beautiful than anticipated.

Charlevoix has created a new northern Michigan destination.

The interactive fountain, the music pavilion, the marina and facilities at the harbormaster building are wonderful

The Earl Young stonework creates a happy place throughout the park.

All this just enhances the "Oh my God" view, looking out over Round Lake and the boats, from Bridge Street.

Why do we hide that view with a shantytown along the Bridge Street edge of the beautiful Park?

Anyone driving, bicycling or walking along Bridge Street, during an event like Venetian Week, has to look between makeshift shanties in order to see our most beautiful view and new Park?

And, these shacks hide the view of our lovely, quaint downtown viewed from the boats in the marina.

Move the corn dogs, hot dogs, T-shirts and nuts to the sides of the park and the side streets.

Charlevoix has too beautiful a view, and new Park, to hide behind temporary, Cuney island shanties.

RENEW THE MILLAGE

Editor:

The services provided to Charlevoix County area senior are too numerous to mention.

Our senior centers are the most visible and they truly are a home away from home for many of us, the meals, not only the meals available at our centers daily but the thousands of meals delivered every year to many homebound seniors), the socializing, the physical activity, the educational aspects on various topics, the health care provided by a professional staff, in-home care with a variety of assistance in many areas.

The commission on aging is now offering adult day services for families with members dealing with Alzheimer's.

It is overwhelming what is available for us to take advantage of.

All of this comes to us at a cost and we feel fortunate that the renewal request is just that, a renewal, no more no less.

Vote "yes" on the renewal on Aug. 5.

MORE THAN A SUSPECT

Editor:

Your character attack on T.C., Tom Collins, is a most disappointing story. T.C. was a mildmannered congenial person and a loyal friend. He has not been convicted of any crime and now he is not alive to defend himself. Your story is an unfair blemish on his memory.

BOYKO'S THE BEST

Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to express my endorsement of Tim Boyko for county commissioner. Tim is a most experienced man demonstrating his energy, positive approval and intuition in the four positions where he has already ably served.

I encourage you to vote for him on Aug. 5.

SAVE THE SENIORS

Editor:

The Charlevoix County Senior Millage is vital to all seniors in our county and needs your support and vote to renew it. The millage helps to pay for important programs such as Meals on Wheels, in-home services and health clinics to name just a few. These programs fill a void for many seniors who otherwise cannot afford them and helps to improve many seniors quality of life and even allows many to still live at home instead of a long tenn care facility, it even helps lift some of the burden off of family members.

With the economy the way it is, the Social Security benefits that our area seniors receive keep most below the national poverty level. This millage helps defray some, if not all, the cost of a lot of senior programs to help improve the quality of life for all..

Those of us who run and operate the four area senior centers can attest to the need for many of these services, especially the lunches we serve (and MOW that we deliver) by the increase in the number of seniors that we are feeding. These meals provide a valuable source of nutrition for our seniors who otherwise would not eat properly and the Charlevoix County Senior Millage helps to pay for all the costs attributed to the meals and many other services.

So, please, if you only vote for one thing this year, let it be "yes" for the Charlevoix County Senior Millage on Aug. 5 so that we can continue to provide these services to our seniors.

Earl Muma, Charlevoix Senior Center Inc. director

SUPPORT SPROUL

Editor:

One of the important races to be decided in the Aug. 5 primary is that of Charlevoix County Sheriff. We, in Charlevoix County, are very fortunate to have had the exemplary leadership of Sheriff George Lasater over the past 31 years.

I believe that his length of service has been a large factor in the development of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department into the fine organization that it presently is.

Sheriff Lasater, age 71, has decided to retire and should be thanked for his many years of outstanding service.

We are also fortunate to have two well-qualified, decent and deserving gentlemen vying for the post of Sheriff: Don Schneider, age 65, and Don Sproul, age 57.

If, as Sheriff Lasater was quoted as saying both men are capable of doing their job, then how do you decide whom to support?

My perspective on the issue is that due to the present and, most likely future economic situation, Charlevoix County will need a multi-term Sheriff to lead it through the hard times that may be with us for the next decade.

In the near future not only Law Enforcement, but every department of city, township, county and state government will need to be doing more with less.

I believe that Don Sproul is the man that can provide the on-going leadership to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to enable it to meet the needs of its citizens over the next ten years. Therefore I am supporting Don Sproul in his bid to be elected Charlevoix County Sheriff and will be voting for him on Aug. 5. I hope that you will consider voting for him as well.

Murray Kilgour
Charlevoix

SCHNEIDER IS TOPS

Editor:

I have lived in Charlevoix for the past 26 years having served my final six years in the U.S. Coast Guard here and then choosing to retire here. I know Don Schneider as a friend and a fellow Coast Guardsman. Once you become a 3rd class Petty Officer in the U.S. Coast Guard, you become a federal law enforcement officer. Don Schneider has been in law enforcement for more than 35 years. This includes serving the citizens of Charlevoix County for the past 26 years. The last three years of his service in the Coast Guard was in CGI or Coast Guard Intelligence. He must have shown a high aptitude for law enforcement to be assigned to this job. I have the highest regard for Don Schneider and feel that this county is not only very fortunate to have someone with his skills but also very blessed to have him run for the position of Sheriff.

Lonnie Jones USCG Retired
Charlevoix

POSSIBLE PROPAGANDA?

Editor:

Charlevoix County residents beware. Don Sproul is slinging the propaganda in this election and that propaganda is not true. Sproul claims that he reviewed the budget and will cut $57,000.00 requested for dive equipment. The problem is that the money was requested but not allocated. How can one cut money that was not in the budget? It is misleading. Sproul states that he will save 5-10% in the 2009 budged. That equates to $120,000.00 to $240,000.00 on a 2.4 million dollar budget as Sproul claims. The 2009 budget has not even been submitted yet. How can you save money when you don't know what will be requested or approved? If he is going to save that money, he will have to cut officers. Charlevoix only has one car on each side of the County at night. Does he plan to leave the East side of the County high and dry at night or the West side? Sheriff Lasater has done a great job in making sure our residents are safe with the most effective enforcement that the budget will allow. Don Schneider will build on this legacy, with county-wide coverage we all expect. Vote for William Don Schneider on Aug. 5.

50 years of waterfront art

BY ANNE KELLY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

This year, on Aug. 9, The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is marking a very special occasion. Celebrating 50 years of excellence in bringing the best of fine art and fine artists to the community, this year's show promises to be better than ever before. MaryBeth McGraw, Director of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair Committee, reports that "we are anticipating an outstanding turn out of both exhibitors and patrons and are ready to celebrate those 50 years in grand style in the newly rejuvenated and beautiful East Park venue." Special attractions this year will be a reception for participating artists at the Weathervane Restaurant on Friday evening, Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair T shirts and a beautiful publication which features both historical information and current exhibitors

In 1959, Charlevoix became the second community in the state of Michigan to hold an art fair. (The Kalamazoo Institute of Arts held the first in 1952) It was quite an accomplishment for a community up north to pull off such a feat. And for 50 years running, the show that is now known as The Waterfront Art Fair has evolved from its grass roots attempt to bring cultural events to northern Michigan by a handful of determined art enthusiasts, into a prestigious gathering of fine artists and craftsmen. Today, among summer art festivals, The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair ranks first in the state as a one day exhibition, and ranks second only to the three day affair in Ann Arbor. The evolution has not been without growing pains, but its dedication to a tradition of excellence has never been compromised over the years.

The history of the early "Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen" includes an interesting component. Beginning in 1961, fine art masterpieces were presented for viewing as special exhibits in the park. Most of these exhibits were provided on loan from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings of Chicago, Palm Beach and Charlevoix. Cummings had acquired a lucrative enterprise in the multi-million-dollar Sara Lee conglomerate and was a philanthropist and art lover. As he became more affluent he collected art, an activity he characterized as a source of tremendous satisfaction. He enjoyed lending his works of art for exhibition because he said, "anyone who has the good fortune to own lovely things is only a trustee for humanity." The Cummings collection loaned the Charlevoix Art Fait numerous paintings by masters like Henri Matisse, Edgar Degas and Pablo Picasso.

Long time residents Edith and Julius Gilbert were also an influential part of the early art fair: Edith working on the committee and Julius exhibiting as a sculptor. Partly through their connections with the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Gilberts were instrumental in arranging for the institute to bring its Artmobile to Charlevoix. The Artmobile was featured during at least three shows. The special exhibits ceased after the first 20 years and from that point on, the presenters and the patrons have carried on maintaining the standards set in the early years. In an article written in 1970 by Ms. Gilbert, she stated that, "These are the prerequisites for a successful art fair: good organization, excellent talent and a knowledgeable public." Her words form the foundation of the fair's philosophy today. At first, exhibitors were free to apply and to be admitted into the show, the only regulation being "exclusion at the discretion of the art fair committee," a small group of founders and arts enthusiasts that changed only gradually over the years due to resignations, deaths or the introduction of new members. In early years it was not uncommon to find over 200 exhibitors setting up in East Park and spilling over to adjacent areas along the waterfront. Today the participants are juried into the show and most years acceptance is limited to approximately 150 artists selected from over 600 ap-

Todd Warner's work (Warner and art above) has been called whimsical and humorous. He returns to Charlevoix after 20 years in Boca Raton, Fla. Warner showed at the Waterfront Art Fair in the late 1960s, was at the 25th anniversary of the fair, and plans to be at this year's 50th celebration.

OBITUARIES

Mireille "Marti" Chester: July 26, 1954 - July 22, 2008

Mireille "Marti" Chester, age 53 of Indian River and formerly Marti Bohn of Charlevoix, passed away on July 22, 2008 at her home after a courageous three-year battle with breast cancer.

Marti was born on July 26, 1954 in Detroit, the daughter of Roland and Lillian (Hanner) Martin and was raised in the Detroit area, graduating from Redford High School and later attended Wayne State University and a satellite campus of Texas A&M

She worked part time as a Liberian at the Charlevoix Public Library and as a Mail Carrier, but her real passion was interior decorating. In 2004, she opened and operated her own interior design company, A Beautiful View and specialized in window coverings.

On Jan. 4, 2003, she married Dennis Chester in Bay View.

Marti attended the Trinity Missionary Church, volunteered at the Charlevoix Public Library and the Charlevoix Area Hospital and loved the outdoors, berry and mushroom picking, fishing, and hunting with her husband.

She is survived by her husband, Dennis; 3 children, Elizabeth (Benjamin) Dyska of San Francisco, Calif., Jannette (Oscar) Rodriguez of San Antonio, Texas, and Michael Bohn of Charlevoix; her mother, Lillian Martin of Farmington Hills; a sister, Therese Martin of Farmington Hills; a brother, David (Donna) Martin of South Lyon, and their son Benjamin; and by 3 step-children, Julie (Christopher) Belt of Gaylord and their 2 children, Lauren and Jenna, Rebecca (Troy) Lawrence of Jerome, and their 3 children, Abbigail, Alex, and Maggie, and by Kevin Chester of Gaylord.

She was preceded in death by her father, Roland; a sister, Jeanne Martin, and by a brother, Paul Martin.

A memorial service celebrating Marti's life was held at 1 p.m. Saturday, July 26 at the Trinity Missionary Church in Petoskey with Rev. Stephen Beigle officiating.

Memorial donations may be directed to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

Max Hosmer: Died April 29, 2008

Max Hosmer, 84, of Charlevoix, and Spring Hill, Fla., died Tuesday, April 29, 2008.

He was born in Charlotte, the son of Don and Effie (Edmonds) Hosmer.

Max is survived by his wife Joyce, their son Mark (Doris) Hosmer of Lansing, and daughter Peggy (Darryl) Windle of Breckenridge, Colo.; grandsons, Matthew Hosmer of Potsdam, NY, James Hosmer of Lansing, Mich., Steven (Gretchen) Hosmer of Kingwood, Texas.

His parents, and sister, Dorothy Hosmer York preceded him in death.

Max joined the air force in 1943, after graduating with a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Upon discharge from the service, he did post graduate at University of Michigan.

In 1957, he purchased Wood Brothers Hardware in Charlevoix. He simultaneously served as president of the newly formed Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, and was instrumental in organizing the first Waterfront Art Fair under the auspices of the Chamber in 1958.

After the sale of Harbor Hardware, he joined Freedman Artcraft and later became General Manager when Harbor Industries took over. He was a charter member and past commodore of the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

A memorial service will be held 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 12, at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

His remains will be interned at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of West Hernando-Pasco Inc. 12260 Cortez, Brooksville, FL 34613; Charlevoix Public Library, 220 West Clinton St., Charlevoix, MI 49720; or the charity of your choice.

Frances L. McCann: Sept. 11, 1917 - July 3, 2008

Frances L. McCann of Flint, formerly of Charlevoix, age 90, died July 3, 2008 at Fenton Health Care in Fenton.

A private family service was held on July 5 at Swartz Funeral Home with Pastor Wardlow of Twin Cities Baptist Church in Grand Blanc officiating. Burial was in Great Lakes National Cemetery.

Frances was born in Charlevoix on Sept. 11, 1917, the daughter of Frank and Nellie (Hull) Chvatil. Frances married Dale McCann on July 4, 1942 in El Paso, Texas and they were married for 66 years. Frances graduated from Charlevoix High School, class of 1935. After coming to Flint, she worked for A.C. Spark Plug division of General Motors and for Smith Bridgemans and the Vogue in downtown Flint.

Frances was a Girl Scout leader and past president of her sorority Epsilon Sigma Alpha. She was also a member of the VFW #3087 Ladies Auxiliary.

She was very devoted to her family and a loving wife, mom and grandma. She had a wonderful laugh and positive outlook on life. She will be missed by everyone who knew her.

Surviving are husband, Dale, daughter Lynda (Dennis) Church of Grand Blanc, sister-in-law Shirley (Jerry) Greene of Charlevoix, several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her brother Frank Jr., sisters Margaret Ager and Doris Teague.

Hilda May (VanZant) Perron:
May 13, 1920 - July 21, 2008

Hilda May (Vanzant) Perron, 88, of Charlevoix, passed away Monday, July 21, 2008, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix She was born May 13, 1920 in Charlevoix to Earl C. and Marie E. (Clift) Vanzant. Hilda was a wonderful stay at home mom who raised 10 children: Hokey Pokey, how'd she do that?

She only drove a car once, hit a fence and never drove again. Hilda had a heart of gold, and is survived by her children, Eva (James) DeJonge of Mancelona, Sr Jr. (Linda) of Belding, Leon (Celeste), David (Sandy), Sherri (Wayne) Harthorn, and John (Paula), all of Charlevoix; and preceding her in death, her husband of over seventy years, Simeon, and their beloved children, Anna Marie, Shirley, Edward, and Judy Ann Kujawski. She is also survived by her grandchildren, Louie DeJonge, Lynette Heintzelman, Angela Kent, Nichelle Ciestelczyk, Simeon III, Renee Plumm, Nichol, Nathan, Noah, and Neahl; great-grandchildren, Louie DeJonge III, Sarah Beth, Harley, Amber, Daniel Lee III, and Josephine; sister, Lyone (Jim) Wert, brothers, Bud (Helen) Vanzant, Leon (Ann) Vanzant. Visitation was from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the funeral was at 11 a.m., Wednesday. Pastor Michael Arp of the Family of Faith Ministries in Charlevoix officiated, and interment took place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Renewable energy meeting

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Concerned about energy? On Saturday, Aug. 2, there will be a meeting discussing renewable energy, specifically, wind energy.

There is no cost to attend the meeting, which will be held at Charlevoix Public High School from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Charlevoix has good wind potential and transmission capability," said Jeremy Wittrock, Wind Program Director for the GLREA. "Furthermore, wind development can serve as an economic development and redevelopment tool. Also, wind is a great way to stimulate open space/farm land preservation."

The Great Lakes Renewable Energy Association will be hosting the meeting which will include a panel of experts from all over Michigan.

"Our group's main expertise is in wind and solar," Wittrock said. "However, we do work on biomass, biofuels and energy efficiency. With the potential passage of a Renewable Portfolio Standard (RPS) in Michigan, wind will be the main contributor to meeting this goal."

The meeting is intended to inform individuals with a desire to learn more about the different aspects of wind energy. There will be discussion about the economic, social and environmental benefits.

Experts will also be addressing concerns as well as planning/zoning challenges.

The GLREA has hosted many such meetings across the state, including ones in Manistee County, Wyandotte, and Marquette.

Wittrock will talk about the County Wind Planning Process conducted in Manistee County.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Wittrock, is to provide a fair and balanced assessment of issues around citing, planning and zoning for wind energy.

"The meetings have all been successful. GLREA does not advocate for specific projects. We are focused on providing information so that informed decisions can be made," Wittrock said. "In Wyandotte though, they are in the final phase of initial studies to erect four to six 1.5 Mw turbines."

Wittrock said that some of the reoccurring concerns amongst citizens include initial cost, aesthetics concerns, and fear of change and the unknown. "Some other issues are bird kills and sound issues," he said.

Ben Calnin from the Michigan State University Land Policy Institute, will demonstrate the Wind Prospecting Tool, an interactive Geographic Information System (GIS) map tool for use by both developers and residents.

David Konkle, former Energy Coordinator for the City of Ann Arbor, will give a keynote address about the big picture issue of energy.

After the panel's presentations, audience members are invited to ask questions in an open forum. There will be one hour allotted for attendees to ask questions and have their concerns addressed.

GLREA will also host another Public Wind Town Meeting in October or November.

Free pap, mammograms available now

To be eligible for a free mammogram and Pap test, women must be 40 to 64 years of age, reside in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, or Otsego counties, have no health insurance or no coverage for mammograms and Pap tests, and meet certain income requirements.

Financial eligibility for the Breast & Cervical Cancer Control Program is based on family income. For example, women in a family of four may have an annual income of $53,000 and qualify for a free mammogram and Pap test, if they meet other eligibility requirements.

Screening tests like mammograms and Pap tests can detect cancers early, Sington said, providing better opportunities for women to get effective treatment with fewer side effects.

Patients whose cancers are found early and treated in a timely manner are more likely to survive these cancers than are those whose cancers are not found until symptoms appear.

Openings for free mammogram and Pap test appointments at Health Department office in Mancelona, Petoskey/Harbor Springs, and Gaylord are booking now for fall.

For additional information, to confirm income eligibility, and to schedule an appointment at any Health Department office, call (800) 432-4121.

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties.

Sheriff. I worked with Don for 18 years in his capacity as a deputy sheriff and sergeant for Charlevoix County. During this time frame I found Don to be honorable, dependable, trustworthy and an excellent over all Officer. I feel the citizens of Charlevoix County would be hard pressed to find a better Candidate for the Sheriff's position. I wholeheartedly support Don Sproul for the sheriff's job.

D.B. Harrington
Petoskey

SCHNEIDER MOST QUALIFIED

Editor:

All things considered, Don Schneider is the most qualified and best prepared candidate to become our next Charlevoix County Sheriff. He has answered our questions regarding the budget, explaining many grants that the department currently receives. He has been open and honest with the federal government regarding the Hatch Act: remember, he is the one who initiated contact with them in February and he has not been found in violation. He has shared his choice for undersheriff. He has worked diligently for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for 26 years and continues to do so. He has been a dedicated and competent undersheriff for 11 years. He truly cares for the people of Charlevoix County. Please join us in voting for William Donald Schneider for Sheriff on Aug. 5.

SPROUL EQUALS LEADERSHIP

Editor

Sheriff George Lasater has served admirably and deserves commendation for his many years. Now, as he retires, it is time for a change in leadership.

Both Don Sproul and Don Schneider have a fine history of public and community service. This is not to disparage any public servant.

Sproul has the energy and fresh outlook that is needed in the department. He is not afraid to question procedures and look for new and better ways of managing our County resources.

If you are looking for innovative as well as dedicated leadership, consider a vote for Don Sproul on Aug. 5.

VOTE FOR PROPERTY RIGHTS

Editor:

"A right to property is founded in our natural wants, in the means with which we are endowed to satisfy these wants, and the right to what we acquire by those means without violating the similar rights of other sensible beings?" Thomas Jefferson to Pierre Samuel Dupont de Nemours, 1816.

I believe the last time I checked we are still somewhat a republic, and a republic is ruled or should say, controlled by the people, not by the chosen few, or those who believe that they're unquestionable our betters. That isn't how the country is supposed to be, and definitely not the way a township is supposed to be operated. I did my part as a citizen to serve this country for over 20 years, now I just want to do my thing, to be left alone, to play with the horses and try to be a good steward of the property. There looms out on the horizon a foreshadowing of impeding disasters, mostly the doings of our so-called betters.

Operating by way of fear, and litigation is the way this crowd seems to want it; to use the sheriff department as sort of a Gestapo, protecting their particular interest, and agenda, but not the rights of the majority, who vote, but don't care or are intimidated. I would have to rank myself with the latter, but have grown tired of seeing money that is paid in taxes go for protectionism of special private projects, and to special meetings. I am also dismayed by the way a few of the meetings have been conducted. The sheriff had to get involved, basically for nothing, but we seem to have to toe the line with our hat in hand and say "no sir" or "yes sir." It is time for a change, a word that seems to get a lot of play this election year, but for Norwood Township a very important word

Change is what is really needed, the tag of special interest needs to go away, and the term statesmanship to replace it. I understand that the chances for a Populist Utopia is impossible but it wouldn't hurt to work towards it, especially in this very rural environment. That is why I believe it important to vote in some new blood, so to speak, and why I think we should vote for Frank Hamilton on Aug. 5. He is a proven statesman and more than capable of pulling this township back together, without outside county help.

THANKS, BLOOD DONORS

Editor,

Please allow me to thank the 135 devoted blood donors in Charlevoix who responded to the recent emergency appeal for blood by the American Red Cross.

The Red Cross held a blood drive at the Community Reformed Church on July 17 and at Bethany Lutheran Church on July 24.

The Red Cross was able to collect 106 pints of blood. Each pint could potentially help 3 people. The Belvedere Club in Charlevoix made the commitment to host the blood drive at the Reformed Church. The many Belvedere residents who volunteered were wonderful and did a great job. Mr. Don Denison and his Belvedere team attended to every detail. Edith Dale coordinated the excellent drive with her volunteers at Bethany Lutheran on July 24.

Thank-you. I am grateful to the churches, to the Charlevoix Water and Electric Department for making the banners visible, to all of the volunteers, donors and the Red Cross Staff. The next community blood drive is Sept. 25 at the Reformed Church. Please remember to donate blood. It is so important to our hospital patients. The need for blood is ongoing.

EMMET SHERIFF ENDORSES SCHNEIDER

Editor,

I have had the privilege of working with Don Schneider, a candidate for Charlevoix County Sheriff, for more than 20 years. Don Schneider has held the positions of Deputy, Undersheriff, and is currently the Liaison Officer for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

The experience Don Schneider has attained during his employment would make him the natural choice for Sheriff of Charlevoix County. As Undersheriff, Don was responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Sheriff's Office. His duties included preparing budgets, equipment purchasing, personnel issues, working with the county commissioners, being responsible for the road patrol, corrections, marine and snowmobile patrol. And it should be noted, that in the absence of Sheriff Lasater, Don Schneider was the acting Sheriff.

Don Schneider has experience, commitment, and integrity – all qualities that make him the best choice for Charlevoix County Sheriff. His years of commitment have already proven that he can do an outstanding job for the citizens of Charlevoix County.

Please join me in supporting Don Schneider for Charlevoix County Sheriff on Aug. 5.

CONGRATULATIONS, SON

Editor:

It was a beautiful afternoon on June 1, as I watched the class of Harbor High march down the old Ottawa Stadium steps. I stood off to the side with mixed emotion as my oldest son came into view. I held my youngest son in my arms swaying him while the lump in my throat made it hard to breathe. When others were receiving awards, I wanted to make a speech fit for a king to honor him, but knowing how modest and quiet he was I kept still. I wanted to applaud his teachers and friends for all of their support through the year but stayed standing and watched with anticipation for his moment to walk up and receive his Diploma. Not more than just a few months before I was lying in a hospital bed not knowing how I would have ever survived, other than God's blessings to me of having sons and this one now in particular who completed the work to earn his Diploma.

On the eve of Dec. 29, 2007 I went to bed and awoke with complications related to antibiotics I was just given for pneumonia that I had come down with on Christmas Day. My oldest son calmly warmed up our truck as the snow whipped around it at 3:30 a.m. I grabbed my bag for the hospital in case I was in labor for my fifth son who was due in another week. We got out on the road and my son stayed in the two-tracks as we made our way one road at a time, first Levering, and then the turns on Larks Lake and finally the hills of Pleasantview. At one point I felt like we were back in time and recalled the story of our distant cousin Lewis Sweet who weathered and survived the Schoals ice fishing incident and walked on ice flows in a blizzard to the shore. We came almost to a dead stop as waves of snow drifted over the hood of the truck, somehow my son kept the gas pedal gently going as we floated through the sea of white. When we finally arrived at the E.R. in the Charlevoix Area Hospital, I was so far progressed in labor that complications arose and the Doctors knew my unborn son and I would not have survived had it not been for the courage and bravery my son showed that night driving us in that snowstorm and hearing his mother murmuring in pain.

I will never know what must have went through his mind or how he stayed on track, but if a mother could present her child with an award, I would give him The Purple Heart, for he truly saved not just my life but also the life of his little brother. Thank you my son Christopher, not just for completing your goal to graduate but for having gone above and beyond your duty to our family. God Bless you and keep you safe as you go to achieve your next goals.

Help Kali find a cure for paralysis

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation, Inc. will kick off its fundraising efforts on Saturday, Aug. 2 with a golf outing at the Dunmaglas Golf Course in Charlevoix.

Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation, Inc. is a non-profit organization founded by Kali Pung of Alma.

Pung suffered a diving accident in 2006, resulting in injuries that have left her paralyzed from the neck down.

"After everything I've been through and everyone I've meet over the past two years, I've come to realize that I must do whatever I can to help other individuals like myself better their lives," she said.

She felt compelled to start the foundation after spending time in various rehabilitation facilities across the country, meeting others like her with similar situations.

"While Kali's Cure will help aid in funding research to find a cure for paralysis, it will also support programs and facilities that work to improve the quality of life for paralysis patients now, such as rehab programs," Pung said.

Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation is devoted to raise and distribute money to spinal cord hospitals, rehabilitation facilities and researchers specializing in spinal cord injury.

Pung says she typically keeps positive but she also has her moments.

"If I wasn't upbeat, I probably wouldn't have made the advancements that I have and I also wouldn't have realized the need for this foundation," Pung said.

She added, "Fortunately, I have never suffered from any sort of depression since the accident. Of course, I realize what I've lost and am sometimes sad for those things but by no means depressed."

According to Pung, her doctors tell her a positive attitude is crucial to recovery.

"Doctors say attitude is everything and I wouldn't have made it through the initial couple days if I didn't have the will to make it," she said.

The foundation will be hosting Kali's Cure Kickoff Golf Outing as the foundation's first official fundraising event.

The outing will take place on Saturday Aug. 2, as a way to announce the newly formed foundation and raise money for the advancement of a cure for paralysis.

The golf outing is sponsored by Aerotek and Dunmaglas.

A dinner and an auction will immediately follow the event.

Dunmaglas is donating all golf and dinner registration fees to Kali's Cure.

For more information on Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation or to register for the event, please visit the foundation's Web site at www.kaliscure.org.

City council business

The following actions were taken by the City of Charlevoix City Council during their July 21 meeting.

Item: Discussion on Journeyman-Lineman pay raise

In brief: Though it was decided to give the journeyman-lineman a $4 pay raise, there was confusion as when it would be. They would either raise the pay level now, for all of them or wait until a new person is hired.

Board action: The Council decided to wait until a new person was hired.

Item: Request by the Charlevoix Yacht Club for free launch

In brief: A resolution to waive the launch/parking fees for the races and special or public events.

Board action: Passed

Item: Request for liquor license transfer

In brief: A resolution for the license transfer, which is from T.H.P.P Enterprises, LTD (Charley's) to Edgewater Bistro.

Board action: Passed.

Item: Revisions to Chapter 22 of the City Code

In brief: An ordinance to change the reference from the Michigan Department of Public Health to the MDEQ.

Board action: Passed

Item: Consideration to Approve an Ordinance Amending Chapter 22A

In brief: An ordinance to amend section 2.71(3) of chapter 22A: City water service exclusive water source of title II of the code of the City of Charlevoix by revising the legal description of the impact area contained in section 2.71(3).

Board action: Passed

NORTHERN MICHIGAN'S ONLY 4D BREAST MRI

Introducing a Powerful New Tool in the Fight Against Breast Cancer

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital takes the lead in women's health with new Breast MRI imaging

Breast MRI is an extremely powerful tool that compliments your physician's resources in diagnosing and fighting breast cancer.

The benefits of Breast MRI are many:

- This advanced diagnostic system may detect breast cancer missed by mammography for women who are high-risk due to a family history of breast cancer
- New research suggests MRI scans may detect precursors to breast cancer, allowing early intervention to prevent cancer growth among high-risk women before it even starts
- Performing this test may also reduce the number of breast biopsies done to evaluate a suspicious breast mass seen with mammography

Breast MRI at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital provides:

- Leading expertise in reading and analysis of Breast MRIs through a partnership with one of the nation's leading Breast MRI institutes
- Digital integration with our new PowerChart™ electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, in our continued commitment to women's health, is proud to be the first and only Breast MRI provider in all of northern Michigan.

To learn more about this life-saving resource, call Breast Health Services at 231.487.4863.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Ordinance No. 731 of 2008

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY REVISING SECTION 2.65 OF CHAPTER 22 OF TITLE II TO MAKE REFERENCE TO REGULATIONS OF THE MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY, CHANGE THE REFERENCE FROM THE MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH TO THE MDEQ, TO ADD A NEW SECTION 2.65(4) AND TO RENUMBER THE REMAINING SECTIONS

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Revision of Section 2.65(1)

Section 2.65(1) of Chapter 22 is revised so that it shall read as follows:

2.65. Cross Connections.

(1)The City adopts by reference the Water Supply Cross Connection rules of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, being R325.11401 through R325.11407.

SECTION 2. Revision of Section 2.65(2)

Section 2.65(2) of Chapter 22 is revised so that the reference to the Michigan Department of Public Health is changed to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

SECTION 3. Repeal of existing Sections 2.65(4) – (7) and the creation of Sections 2.65(4) through 2.65(8).

Existing Sections 2.65(4) – (7) are repealed and Sections 2.65(4) through (8) are created and shall now read as follows:

(4)For all water services connected to the City Water Supply, all testable backflow prevention assemblies shall be tested upon installation to be sure that the device is working properly. Subsequent testing of assemblies shall be conducted on an annual basis as required by the City and in accordance with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality requirements. Only individuals that are certified in Cross Connection Control by the State of Michigan shall be qualified to perform such testing.

(5)The Charlevoix Water Utility is hereby authorized and directed to discontinue water service after reasonable notice to any property wherein any connection in violation of this section exists, and to take such precautionary measures deemed necessary to eliminate any danger of contamination of the public water supply system. Water service to such property shall not be restored until the cross connection(s) has been eliminated in compliance with the provisions of this section.

(6)The potable water supply made available on the properties served by the public water supply shall be protected from possible contamination as specified by this section and by the State and Charlevoix County Plumbing Code. Any water outlet which could be used for potable or domestic purposes and which is not supplied by the potable system must be labeled in a conspicuous manner as:

Water Unsafe for Drinking

(7)This section does not supersede the State Plumbing Code.

(8)Any person violating the provisions of this Section or the written order of the City of Charlevoix Water Department in pursuance of this Section is responsible for a municipal civil infraction.

SECTION 4. Severability.

No other portion, paragraph or phase of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan shall be affected by this Ordinance except as to the above sections, and in the event any portion, section or subsection of this Ordinance shall be held in valid for any reason, such invalidation shall not be construed to affect the validity of any other part of portion of this ordinance or of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan.

SECTION 5. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.

ENACTED this 21st day of July, 2008.

Ordinance No. 731-2008 was adopted on the 21st day of July 2008, by the Charlevoix City Council as follows:

Timothy J. McDonough, 51, Republican

Past political experience: 27 years as a St. James Township Trustee

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"Just to keep up with infrastructure needs and to keep people coming here even in tough economic times. And to just keep working with the board on what we've been doing."

Bob Tidmore, 68, Republican

Past political experience: Served two terms as city alderman in Menominee, served twice on Menominee school board served one year as president. Tidmore also spent a short term on the Flushing Planning Committee.

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"We need a road grader on the island to help all of the island, not just St. James Township. And, I'd like to see more transparency in government through easier access of agendas, publication of minutes and records of expenditures (via Web site). If elected, basically I'll work with the other townships, the county commissioners and the road commission to get a road grader on the island."

When phoned, Richard L. Speck refused to comment.

• Peaine Township Treasurer

Nancy Saxton, 67, Republican

Past political experience: None

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"I don't like to see too many relatives on one board and that seems to be the case here sometimes and with me there won't be any relatives on the board."

Jean Kingsley, 60, Republican

Past political experience: None

What do you see as the most important issues facing your township/district/county etc. and how do you plan to address those?

"Taxes. A good portion of our population are second home (owners) here and they pay through the nose with the nonresidential/non-homestead tax, and we're really having a difficult time drawing people in because of the economy in general and it's prohibiting people from buying second homes because the taxes are so high. I'm not a crusader, so to speak, but I will be very vocal about my feelings."

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q. Was removing all of the cement kiln dust from East Park considered?

A: Removing the material was one of five options evaluated in the proposed final remedies for East Park. Ultimately it was not recommended based on environmental, safety and practical concerns. Removal of the material would result in approximately 1,000 gallons of water a minute mixing with cement kiln dust during the excavation process and picking up the associated contaminates from the dust. The water would have to be discharged directly to the lake because it is not physically possible to ship that volume of water off-site for disposal. This option would result in a dramatic increase in the amount of contaminates in the lake. Additionally, an estimated 75 - 80 trucks a day for a year would be required to remove the material, adding associated trucking pollutants to the environment and increasing transportation safety risks to the community.

Q: Is there a big problem with mercury in the water coming out of East Park and the Bay Harbor development?

A: While there is a trace amount of mercury in the water coming from the piles, the system installed by CMS Land is collecting 135,000 gallons a day, treating it, and disposing of it off-site. The mercury levels in that water are more than 10 times less than what the government considers safe for drinking water. During its short-term work, CMS Land has installed three parts of a proposed five-part final remedy at East Park. Before that work, the amount of mercury going into the lake annually would equal about three paper clips. That's been reduced to about one paper clip a year. It will be reduced even more when the other two parts of the long-term remedy are in place.

Q. When will East Park reopen?

A: CMS Land recently reached agreements with Resort Township and the EPA which allows CMS Land to complete the two remaining remedies in East Park this year. Resort Township plans to begin park improvements this fall, such as paving and installing benches and other amenities, with the goal of East Park reopening in 2009.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

plicants, with special attention paid to providing quality work and a variety of media. The Art Fair Committee is comprised of a small number of volunteers who put in endless hours adhering to the format and specifications set down in the by-laws of the organization. The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, as it has been designated since 1990 and the Charlevoix Council for the Arts work as tandem organizations, both dedicated to the mission of providing exposure to the arts for Charlevoix and surrounding northern Michigan communities. The Charlevoix Council for the Arts is a non- profit organization that donates funds for art scholarships to aspiring young artists, brings performances and presentations to the schools and supports local art and music endeavors. It is dedicated to providing stimulus for the arts in the schools and the community throughout the year, and is funded primarily through entry fees paid by artists who show in the art fair. The annual Waterfront Art Fair is held the second Saturday in August each year. It continues and expands upon the tradition of excellence it promotes. Exhibitors, buyers, collectors and art lovers can count on it.

A complete timeline tracking the highlights of the first 50 years of the Waterfront Art Fair can be seen online at the Charlevoix Courier Web site: www.charlevoixcourier.com.

WHAT'S MISSING AT VENETIAN?

Have you ever noticed what is missing at the Venetian Festival?

It isn't live entertainment. Throughout Venetian Week, bands in East Park will be jumping with a wide variety of music.

It isn't kids' activities. The Venetian Games include kids and teens in soccer, basketball, running, sailing, golf and tennis tournaments. Teens are provided their own music venue at the "Battle of the Bands." Kid's Day at Lake Michigan Beach also provides a slew of low and no cost children's entertainment.

It isn't spectator opportunities. The street parade and the boat parade have entertained spectators for decades, and the Ultimate Air Dogs will dazzle Festival goers with their canine leaping prowess.

It certainly won't be fireworks that are missing, considering the festival features two nights of world class fireworks displays.

What's missing is admission prices. All of the big events and entertainment offered at the Venetian Festival are absolutely free to the public.

But, it still costs the Venetian Festival upwards of $200,000 (only 1/10 of the National Cherry Festival budget), to put on its premier festival, which is why the nonprofit volunteer organization needs your help. If you've ever enjoyed a concert in the park, Kid's Day, the Venetian Games, the street parade, the Venetian boat parade or the spectacular fireworks displays, please contribute, so that we can continue to bring you quality entertainment and activities in the future.

Frankly speaking, 2008 is a pivotal year for Festival finances, considering the revenue loss and increased expenses which the Festival was forced to incur in staging outside of East Park in 2007, which totaled over $50,000.00. In the event the Festival does not receive increased and new contributions, the Venetian Board may be left with no alternative but to dramatically reduce the two costliest (and nonrevenue generating) events, concerts and fireworks.

Please do not look away when it is time to contribute. By donating to the Festival, you can become a noted member of the Venetian Burgee Club. Anyone who donates $100 or more becomes a member of the Club and receives a burgee pennant. The pennants are emblazoned with the Venetian logo, the current year and the level of sponsorship.

Levels are: Admiral level, $3,000 minimum donation with a blue burgee; Captain level, $1,000 minimum donation with a red burgee; First Mate level, $500 minimum donation with a gold burgee, and Crew level, $100 minimum donation with a white burgee.

Please send donations to: Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., PO Box 120, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 or visit the Venetian Festival Merchandise Stand in East Park, during the festival.

An Olympic-sized mess

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

...AND IN THIS CORNER

A.J. Hoffman

China is a mess and it's supposed to be the home of this year's Olympic Games.

Dissecting the 2008 Summer Olympic Games, there are not just a few small problems, but several big ones. They range from safety, to tourism, to health issues.

Unfortunately, this year's Olympics have gotten a lot of attention due to China's own politics. Protesters, while carrying out the message for a free Tibet, have been actively trying to interrupt the proceedings as much as they possibly can.

Though I admit, it's hard to research and digest information about Tibet (this is an educated way of saying I don't know as much as I'd like to about the subject or atrocities), my biggest fear is that protesters will develop a "by any means necessary" mentality.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not afraid, nor do I disapprove of the Students for a Free Tibet activist group. Now, it's unlikely, but violence is not an impossibility during a protest, especially if one were to take place in a freedom-stricken country such as China. I'm sure there will be plenty of demonstrators in the streets during the games, which is pretty much the entire month of August.

In April, protesters in San Francisco went so far as to climb the cables of the Golden Gate Bridge to unfurl banners that read "Free Tibet '08" and "One World, One Dream, Free Tibet Now."

In June, more protesters staged a "die-in" to represent the lives being lost in Tibet, while others held large banners that read "Open Tibet To Media" and "IOC No Torch in Tibet," and shouting slogans such as "IOC uphold China's promise." IOC is the acronym for the International Olympic Committee. They're a nonprofit organization which holds all the rights to the logo, anthem, motto, etc. They also decide where the games are going to be held every four years.

So what's the big deal? There's genocide all over the world, right? True, but here's the problem, folks: China consistently makes promises they don't plan on keeping. One of them included a vow that they would give civil rights to the people of Tibet if the IOC gave them the summer games in 2008.

Another promise was that Western news networks such as CNN and the BBC would be given free reign to cover whatever they wished during the time of the Olympics until October of 2008. This includes interviewing whoever is willing to talk and taking footage of any protests that might be occurring at that time.

If you're an American (or any foreigner) wanting to see the Olympic games live, you

Another reason not to shop in China

OLYMPICS

should probably just forget about it. Wait another four years until the games goes somewhere a bit less problematic, or better yet, wait two years for the winter games.

According to The Times Online, a foreign tourist needs four different documents to get into Tibet: The Chinese Visa, the Tibet Permit, the Travel Permit for those planning to travel to closed areos of Tibet, and the Military Permit, which needs to be obtained by those traveling to military sensitive areas.

On a completely nonpolitical note, Beijing's pollution is so bad that the best distance runner in the world (Haile Gebrselassie, of Ethiopia) has decided not to participate in the marathon.

In fact, the IOC's President, Jacques Rogge said that he's considering postponing outdoor endurance events lasting more than an hour if the air quality is still as poor as it is.

Many athletes are actually training away from Beijing to avoid any damage to their lungs; the air is that bad.

China, however, has taken steps toward improving the air conditions. They've implemented a driving regulation, where half of the cars on the road will be removed from the street. Cars will be restricted on alternating days based on their license plate numbers ending in odd or even numerals.

One of the things China was counting on by hosting the Olympics was a boom of tourism. So much for that. Summer tourism in Beijing is way down due to people just not wanting to travel to China. The Chinese government seems to be more concerned over keeping foreigners out.

Instead, they should be inviting them in for the sake of their own businesses, rather than hosting a paranoid attitude about what the world thinks of them. Since the Olympics are coming to town, China also felt the need to make visa restrictions even tighter than they already are.

Let's say, hypothetically, that you do get into China. Unless you plan on sleeping on the streets, a hotel room in Beijing is going to cost you anywhere from $500 to $2,000. The world economy is slumping, so, how many people can really afford that unless they are in fact a die-hard Olympics fan who also happens to be a sadist.

As if all of this weren't enough, tickets for the games are scarce enough.

So, if you don't mind blowing gobs of money on a sporting event this summer, in China no less, plus dealing with an assortment of governmental restrictions, running into protesters, breathing in some of the world's most polluted air, and fighting through busy streets, then have fun and good luck at the summer games!

SPORTS reviewing the action

First Ryan Shay Mile a success

ELITE RUNNERS CAPTURE FIRST SHAY MEMORIAL

BY STEPHEN BELL
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

That Ryan Shay would be honored by a mile race must seem fitting to some area track fans, who recall his high school battle with Charlevoix's John Bush in the Bockmaster 1600-meter run at Petoskey's Curtis Field in the mid 1990s.

That was one of the rare races Shay didn't win, as he was a four time cross country state champion and six-time track state champion at Central Lake, and a nine-time All-American at Notre Dame.

Shay, then 28, died last November from a heart attack during the Olympic marathon trial in New York City. A select field — 10 runners in the men's race, 11 in the women's — gathered for the first Ryan Shay Mile, to compete in the sport its namesake gave his life to, Saturday in downtown Charlevoix.

Grant Robison of East Lansing won the men's road race in 4 minutes 3.2 seconds, while Dot McMahan of Rochester Hills was first in the women's race with a time of 4:35.

"In 2005, I was a teammate of Ryan's on the half marathon national team," McMahan said. "I remember what an intense competitor he was. This is a great way to honor him. It was a fun race."

McMahan, an 800-meter runner at Wisconsin-Milwaukee who now does distance for elite Detroit-area running club Hanson-Brooks, took home $1,000 for winning the race, plus $250 for leading at the halfway point.

"I haven't been running middle distance, but I got off to a nice start, then the last quarter mile was downhill," McMahan said. "In a mile race, you just do what you can."

Former Grand Valley State star Mandi Zemba was second in the women's race in [illegible].55, followed by former [illegible]ona State runner Desi DaVilla, 4:42.31, former Michigan State runner Lisa Senakiewicz of Davison, 4:47.30, and Andrea Parker of Livonia who ran at the University of Michigan, 4:49.15.

Second in the men's race was Jeremy Doherty of Missouri, 4:04.21, followed by Ben Rosario of Missouri, 4:06.98; Derek Scott of Indiana, 4:07.77, and Clint Verran of Hanson-Brooks, 4:08.96. Rondell Ruff was the half-mile leader.

"Rondell took it out pretty fast, and then by the three-quarters mark there was a group of three of us up front," said Robison, a 2004 Olympian and 1,500-meter NCAA champion at Stanford. "Then I just started sprinting with all I had."

Robison had competed almost solely on the track during the spring, so a road race took a little adjusting.

"The biggest difference is on the track, you always know where you are," Robison said. "In a road race, even though there were quarter mile markers, you don't have as accurate a pace. And, there are no spikes."

Also on Saturday, Stephan Shay, Ryan's younger brother, who runs for BYU, won the Jeff Drenth Memorial 10K in 31:23. Justin Zanotti was second, 32:22, and Tyler Nohle third, 35:18. Andrea Osika was the women's winner, in 42:19.

Stephen Fuelling of Milford won the Drenth 5K, in 16:30. Ben Wynsma was second, 16:38, and Tecumseh Adams of Harbor Springs third, 17:02. Ashley Casevant was first among women, 18:15.

Nature walks on new trails

Discover new trails from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9 at the Susan Creek Nature Preserve and Talmi Hoag Nature Preserve located along US 31 northwest of Charlevoix and southeast of Petoskey across from the Big Rock Restoration Site there will be guided tours.

Little Traverse Conservancy and Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians will be hosting a joint event, "Discover the Trails of the Susan Creek and Talmi Hoag Preserves."

Come and enjoy:

- Guided trail walks by knowledgeable naturalists leaving every hour
- An opportunity to explore the well marked trails on your own
- Free snacks and drinks
- A chance to meet the staff of LTC and LTBB

LTC's Susan Creek Nature Preserve and LTBB's Talmi Hoag Nature Preserve lie adjacent to each other on US 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey in Hayes Township (near the former site of the Big Rock nuclear plant). Together, the preserves encompass 278 acres and more than 1.5 miles of scenic US 31 frontage.

The Preserves include more than a mile of Susan Creek (a major tributary to Little Traverse Bay), dense evergreen and hardwood forests, meadows, ferny ravines cut by surface drainageways through old post-glacial lake terraces, and stream side bluffs.

This high-quality habitat attracts abundant wildlife. There are some interesting cultural features to note as well, including ponds excavated by a former owner and what appears to be an old railroad grade and stream crossing trestle (now collapsed).

All of this is accessed by a gentle 2.1 mile long trail system that was just completed last summer.

"In spite of the close proximity to Petoskey and Charlevoix and the attractive features, these Preserves seemingly remain 'off the radar' for many area outdoor enthusiasts" said LTBB Environmental Services Director, Rachel Schwarz. "We're co-hosting this event in an effort to change that by showcasing the Preserves and their trails."

The event is free to the public and no reservations are necessary. Please call either the Conservancy office at 347-0991 or the LTBB office at (231) 242-1670 for directions or more information.

Since 1972, the Little Traverse Conservancy has been working as the oldest regional, non-profit land trust in Michigan. With the support of more than 4,200 members, the Little Traverse Conservancy works with private landowners and units of local government to permanently protect ecologically significant and scenic lands from development.

Since it was founded, more than 35,930 acres and 98 miles of shoreline along our region's lakes, rivers, and streams have been set aside to remain in their natural state within Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Mackinac and Chippewa counties.

Each year, thousands of school aged children participate in an environmental education class offered at no charge through the Conservancy.

For more information about the Little Traverse Conservancy, please contact their office at 347-0991 or visit www.landtrust.org.

Birders enjoy a walk along the trails of the Susan Creek Preserve. More than two miles of trails are available between the Susan Creek and Talmi Hoag Nature Preserves located just northwest of Charlevoix.

25th year of wheelin' and dealin'

Pat McKeown of Pat McKeown Ford Inc. was recently presented a plaque, honoring his 25th anniversary with Ford Motor Company. The honor was presented by James Farley, Group Vice President for Marketing and Communications for Ford Motor Company at the Grand Traverse Resort. Pat came to Charlevoix in November of 1981 and purchased the dealership from the Erber family the year later. Pat and his wife Barbara of 43 years and children Pat Jr., Kerry Zahner and Rory thank the city of Charlevoix for their kindness and help in growing the business over the past 25 years.

Food and art merge

In the heart of downtown Charlevoix, overlooking East Park and beautiful Round Lake Harbor, Sadie and Jake's Gallery and Café recently held their grand opening.

The cafe and gallery opened during the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

It's family owned and operated. Sadie and Jake are sister and brother.

They've spent their summers in Charlevoix for years.

At 327 Bridge St., the café will feature gourmet coffee from Zingerman's of Ann Arbor.

They'll also have espresso, chi tea, iced coffee drinks, and fresh fruit smoothies. The menu includes a variety of grilled panini, and fresh, "Sailing Salads," an array of greens and cheese trays for those on the go. The café serves and offers sandwiches, bagels, fresh fruits, daily soups, kosher Coney dogs, a children's menu and deserts. Sweets include Zingerman's famous Magic Brownies and Cream Cheese Coffee Cake, pastries, Sander's Ice-cream puffs, cheese cake and a selection of fresh baked pies and cookies.

Guests enjoy views of the harbor in the outdoor seating and they will be providing evening entertainment. The cafe is also Wi-fi ready.

The gallery includes works from local and regional artists. Paintings, paper art, fiber art, ceramics, jewelry, and an array of mixed media will be on display for purchase.

Sadie and Jake's is open from [illegible] a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Sunday. Call 547-2097 for more information.

Charlevoix County Citizens,

My name is Jim Eisley and I am running for Charlevoix County Clerk. I am running to provide the citizens of charlevoix County a professional office they can be proud of, an office that will give the citizens service with respect and accuracy; an office that will treat people in a professional, courteous manner and will handle their concerns efficiently and correctly.

As your County Clerk, I will make sure your calls are answered personally, people will be treated with respect and any information given will be correct. My personal experience as a businessman will allow me to operate your clerk's office professionally, giving you the accurate and courteous service you expect.

As it is now, we are facing some weak economic times; this is something that has to be addressed not only at the Federal and State level, but especially at the local level. I have the business background that can make tough decisions, also keep in mind the need of our citizens. In the coming years we are going to need someone who has been in the trenches, and not just working in an office for a long time. I have this experience as I was self employed for 18 years, in a business that I started in 1977 and sold in 1995. This business is still running strong today because of the foundation that it was built upon years ago.

In my opinion, Charlevoix County is made of great people and we live in the most beautiful county in the State of Michigan. With your vote we can give the citizens of Charlevoix County the kind of Clerk's office they deserve.

• The Belvedere Club provided 18 volunteers and all the baked goods for the Red Cross Community Blood drive held on Thursday, July 17 at the Community Reformed Church. A total of 85 blood units were processed from Charlevoix participants and sent on for distribution. Over 100 persons presented themselves as potential donors. The blood collected could affect up to 255 patients. Members of the Belvedere Club Community Relations Committee and their families handled the volunteer tasks of registration, donor aides and serving refreshments from the canteen. Belvedere members also provided all the baked goods for the donors, volunteers and Red Cross staff. The Belvedere Club encourages teenage participation in community projects. A crew made up of Rogers Mueller, plus Cody Autterson and his two friends from Colorado, Tyler Jackson and Jake Stroud very efficiently handled the Red Cross truck unloading/re-loading and equipment set-up/take-down tasks. Support for the blood drive is part of Belvedere's "hands on" help commitment for the community of Charlevoix. Helping Charlevoix maintain their excellent reputation as generous blood donors has been a priority task for the past three summers.

Law enforcement

• At around 11:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 19, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputies, Allied EMS and Petoskey Department of Public Safety Officers were called to respond to the area of Townline Rd. and Charlevoix Rd. in Hayes township for an unknown injury accident involving a male and a riding lawn mower.

Officers and EMS personnel were able to make contact with Jerold Earhart, a 29 year old male from the Bay Shore area who was passed out alongside Townline Rd. near Charlevoix Rd. Earhart appeared to be intoxicated and to have suffered minor injuries from a fall he sustained while operating a riding lawn mower in the roadway. Witnesses say that Earhart appeared to be slumped over the wheel of the riding lawn mower that was going in circles in the intersection of Townline Road and Charlevoix Road in Hayes Township. Witnesses stated that Earhart appeared to regain control of the riding mower when he again passed out behind the wheel, at which time Earhart was thrown from the riding lawn mower. The riding mower continues on until it struck a tree and a yard ornament where it continned to run until a witness turned the mower off. Earhart was questioned at the scene and could not recall operating the riding lawn mower, however witnesses could place Earhart on the riding mower. Earhart was given a Preliminary Breath Test, which resulted in a blood alcohol content of .441%, more than five times the legal limit. Earhart was placed under arrest for the offenses of Operating While Intoxicated 3rd offense, and Driving While License Suspended 1st offense. Earhart was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was seen by a physician, released to Deputies, and lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail. Earhart was released on a $5,000 bond and was expected to appear in court on Tuesday, July 29.

• Sheriff George T. Lasater and Acting Undersheriff Chuck Vondra are presenting the Sheriff's Office Life Saving Award to Margeaux Leakas and Lacy Flanigan. The awards will be presented at 11:30 a.m. on Monday July 21. These two young ladies are employees of the Belvedere Club. The incident they are being recognized for is as follows: At approximately 3:24 p.m. on Saturday, June 21st Robert Leitz, 64 of Sister Bay, Wisconsin was operating his vessel in Round Lake when a speed adjustment caused him to fall from the vessel. His safety lanyard and life vest were not being worn which caused the vessel to continue to run and eventually turn and strike Mr. Leitz, who was already exhausted from swimming after his vessel. Mr. Leitz was rescued from the water by the two young ladies and brought to shore where he was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital for lacerations to the upper right side of his body

JOHN J. McQUILLAN P.L.C. IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

The mortgage described below is in default.

Mortgage made by George Wallace and Carol Wallace, his wife, Troy S. Wallace, a single man, Jill M. Bell, a married woman of 10505 Metz Road, Ellsworth, Michigan 49729, as mortgagors, to Thumb National Bank & Trust Co., a national banking corporation of 7254 Michigan Avenue, P.O. Box 560, Pigeon, Michigan 48755-0560, as mortgagee, dated October 26, 2004, and recorded in the office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds on November 8, 2004, in Liber 648 at Pages 897-909 of Charlevoix County Records. The balance owing on the mortgage at the time of this notice is One Million One Hundred Eighty-six Thousand One Hundred Sixty and 94/100 ($1,186,160.94) Dollars. The mortgage contains a power of sale, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, August 8, 2008, at 11:00 a.m., at the first floor lobby of the Charlevoix County Courthouse (that being the building where the Charlevoix County Circuit Court is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest at the rate of 8.75% per annum and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law or contract, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

The property to be sold at foreclosure is described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situated in the Township of Eveline, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit:

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

JOHN J. McQUILLAN P.L.C. IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

The mortgage described below is in default.

Mortgage made by Wallace Holdings, L.L.C., a Michigan limited liability company of 10505 Metz Road, Ellsworth, Michigan 49729, as mortgagor, to Thumb National Bank & Trust Co., a national banking corporation of 7254 Michigan Avenue, P.O. Box 560, Pigeon, Michigan 48755-0560, as mortgagee, dated October 26, 2004 and recorded in the office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds on November 8, 2004 in Liber 648 at Pages 884-896 of Charlevoix County Records. The balance owing on the mortgage at the time of this notice is One Million One Hundred Eighty-six Thousand One Hundred Sixty and 94/100 ($1,186,160.94) Dollars. The mortgage contains a power of sale, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Friday, August 8, 2008, at 11:00 a.m., at the first floor lobby of the Charlevoix County Courthouse (that being the building where the Charlevoix County Circuit Court is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest at the rate of 8.75% per annum and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law or contract, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

The property to be sold at foreclosure is described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situated in the Township of South Arm, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit:

State and federal funding remain down part-time office girl and some changes in how we segregated some duties, we got rid of that."

He added, "The only criticism our auditor had this year for us was that $63,000 of December 2007 state routine maintenance money that we received in 2008 was not recorded as 2007, it was recorded as 2008. I don't think it's a big issue, but that's why we have an auditor."

The road commission received total revenue of $6,259,944 from the following sources last year:

- Federal - $336,015
- State transportation - $3,122,184
- State economic development - $125,294
- Township contributions - $2,110,249
- Trunkline - $451,945
- other revenue - $114,257

Expenditures in 2007 totaled $5,942,627 on the following items.

- Preservation of structural improvements - $2,334,775
- Maintenance - $3,247,525
- Trunkline maintenance - $ 431,333
- Administrative costs - $437,817
- Equipment expenses (net) - $51,007
- Capital outlay (net) - $457,816

While the road commission was able to maintain roads, Ogden said continued decreases in federal and state revenue prevent the county from undertaking any new road projects.

Additionally, gas tax revenue for Charlevoix County is lower than it was 10 years ago.

"None of our elected representatives in Lansing are willing to address the funding issue. In fact the state legislature still continues to take road fund money to support non road agencies," Ogden said.

Michigan continues to be what Ogden called a "donor state" because it receives nearly 92 cents of what Michiganders pay in road taxes.

"That goes back to the Eisenhower administration back in the '50s. You had small populated states like Alaska and Wyoming that had large land areas. They made a case that they couldn't fund it (road projects) themselves, they needed help," he said.

Nearly all road improvement projects in 2007 were funded by local townships.

"Had it not been for them we would not have had a road commission construction program of our own," Ogden said.

Federal funds paid for eight-tenths of Thumb Lake Road.

Some of the main township-funded road improvement projects of 2007 include work done on .67 of a mile of Fineout Road, 4.44 miles of Ferry Road to Peninsula Road, 450 feet of Springvale Road and 1.31 miles of South Shore Drive.

To help balance funding, the road commission is not replacing employees who retire.

"We've lost three employees at our Ironton garage and the fourth employee is going to be retiring this fall/early winter," Ogden said. "We've been able to avoid layoffs, but just barely.

Other cost cutting measures include trimming the township cost sharing program, "by reducing free trucking when a township wanted to do a gravel project. But, we are still supplying the engineering work and some limited match money for seal coat and asphalt work."

Despite tough financial times, Ogden said, "The road commission's in as good a shape as possible for the cards we're being dealt.

EXPERIENCE THE DIGITAL MAMMOGRAPHY DIFFERENCE

Advanced Technology Made Possible by the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Foundation and the Generous Donors of Our Region.

A Clearer Choice.

Advanced imaging offers breakthrough in breast cancer detection

Digital mammography – the most advanced imaging technology in the prevention and detection of breast cancer – is now available at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital.

Digital mammography provides:

- improved effectiveness for women under 50, pre- or peri-menopausal women, and women with dense breasts
- images that are sharper and clearer than film
- the option of zooming in on specific regions of interest

The Northern Michigan Regional Hospital digital mammography difference includes:

- the advantage of multiple on-site radiologists for easy, rapid consultation on difficult cases
- computer automated detection (CAD) providing radiologists with an extra "set of eyes"
- digital integration with our new PowerChart® electronic health record system, enabling care providers to access scans and results directly from their office

When it comes to women's health, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is clearly committed to early breast cancer detection.

For more information about digital mammography, please call 231.487.4863 to reach Breast Health Services.

Pontiac men busted with cocaine, heroin

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
COURIER EDITOR

Thousands of dollars in cash, cocaine and heroin were discovered during a traffic stop near the corner of U.S. 31 and Carpenter Street in Charlevoix.

The bust was a culmination of investigations by Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix Police and Cheboygan County Sheriff's Department.

"We were contacted by Cheboygan County yesterday morning (Wednesday, July 30) I contacted (Charlevoix Deputy-Chief of Police Scott) Hankins and throughout the day we worked on the case to resolve a few investigative issues and about 3:30 p.m. ... the end result was three search warrants," said acting Charlevoix County Undersheriff Chuck Vondra. "We had information ... that that vehicle would be going between Traverse City and Petoskey and that there would be controlled substances inside," Vondra said.

He added, "That led us to having the drug dog at the scene."

Hankins, who was on road patrol at the time, spotted the Monte Carlo driven by the suspects and stopped them for having tinted windows and a vision obstruction.

"The dog indicated on the vehicle; he smelled drugs and that was the probable cause to get the search warrants," said Charlevoix County Chief-Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara.

The two search warrants were executed on both suspects Brandon Anthony Quinn, 22, and Kristopher Winston Anderson, 31, both of Pontiac. A third warrant was attained to search a storage locker at an undisclosed mall in Traverse City. While the contents were important to the investigation, Vondra said, they were "nothing sinister."

Hankins said Quinn was observed during the stop try-

Oh deer!

Dr. Robert Blau was boating two miles north of East Jordan on Lake Charlevoix when he saw this white tall deer a quarter-mile from shore. Concerned the deer was a hazard to boaters, Blau guided it to shore using his boat and horn. Blau is a member of the United States Power Squadrons where he teaches marine electronics and weather courses for the Birmingham squadron where he is currently Commander. Small steps equal big savings

It is no secret that prices of food, gas and services continue to rise, while Michigan's economy continues to suffer a series of economic strokes.

The following tips from local experts will help you get the most out of your family budget.

The car

"Keep the oil changed, it helps the car last longer," said Randy Maurer of Integrity Automotive. "Also, keep up with its maintenance in general. Things like keeping the tires rotated and keeping the tires up to the maximum pressure, which you can usually find on the side of the tire, are all things that will help your car run smoother."

Maurer also suggested keeping your fuel level above empty.

"In the summer time, a lack of fuel in your tank can cause the electric fuel pump to overheat," he said. "In the winter time, it's good to keep it filled because the moisture can cause problems as well and freeze something."

Maurer also suggested experimenting with different fuels.

Business booms in Charlevoix

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

If you take a walk down Bridge Street, you'll notice that just about every storefront is taken.

Business in downtown Charlevoix has been in an upward swing according to local owners. Many of them have been feeling the benefit of summer tourism.

"Location is prime," said Rob Straebel, City Manager. "Not only do we have a picturesque backdrop, but we also have a major highway going through the town."

Straebel said that Charlevoix has a great deal to offer visitors, especially during the summer. He said that people may be deterred to going out of state for vacation because gas prices are still relatively high and Charlevoix has a number of amenities to offer tourists.

As for every storefront being filled on Bridge Street, Straebel said that's definitely a positive. "That's a great thing. There's great momentum and vitality in the downtown business district," he said.

People all over the state of Michigan come up North because Charlevoix has the most picturesque waterfront in Northern Michigan, according to Straebel.

"We had a strong commitment from the DDA on the East Park project," Straebel said. "That's a great barometer that our local business owners have confidence in Charlevoix."

Even Dave Cole, the new owner of Car Quest, said he had no reservations about owning a business in Charlevoix. "I've lived here my whole life. I've been selling parts for 20 years," said Cole. "Even with the economy the way it is, you just have to understand that its going to bounce back."

Cole said that even with the day to day challenges of customer satisfaction and finding new customers in general, he doesn't see anything wrong with Charlevoix.

"One of my biggest challenges is competing with the

Save money on groceries; earn money with sales

SAVINGS

"I'd suggest filling up your car with a tank of Shell fuel one week and then try Marathon the next, and then try Mobil or something different," he said. "See which brand of fuel gives you the most miles."

Some additional automotive money saving tips:

- Slow down — For every five mph you drive over 60, you lose 30 cents per gallon
- Lighten up — Every extra hundred pounds in your vehicle costs you two percent off your miles per gallon
- Stay tuned — You could save $100 a year by routinely changing plugs, wires, filters, oil and keeping your tires shipshape
- Avoid idling — There is an abundance of idling in Charlevoix due to the bridge; Turn your engine off any time you will be stopped for more than a minute and remember the bridge opens on every hour and every half-hour
- Don't get burned — Find a mechanic you can trust. An unnecessary repair, whether intentional or not, is an unnecessary financial burden you should not have to pay
- Use cruise — Cruise control and overdrive gear improve fuel economy by maintaining a steady speed and decreasing the amount of power needed to travel at higher speeds respectively

The bills

"In our current economy, which hasn't been so great and everything is down, we recommend that people take a little bit of it and put it in a savings account," said Rick Malamed of Citizen's Bank. "A checking account typically has a very small interest rate. So, that's why we suggest putting a little bit away into your savings because you're going to earn more."

Malamed also said Citizens offers a variety of Certificates of Deposit, or CDs.

"They're a great way of getting money quickly. There's usually a $1,000 minimum, but our bank offers CDs for periods of time from as low as seven days all the way to five years," Malamed said. "The longer the term you choose, the better the interest rate. Also, the bigger the amount you deposit, the better the interest rate as well."

Malamed also recommends taking advantage of such free services a bank might offer, such as online banking and their bill pay service.

"Online banking is a 24/7 service. You can get on the computer any time you want and transfer funds or figure out the balance on your checking account," he said. "With bill pay, we pay your bills on your behalf and guarantee it will arrive when it's supposed to. We pay the postage and everything. There's also the benefit of electronic statements, too."

Bill paying tips:

- Choose a free checking account which does not require a minimum balance
- Beware of ATM fees, some banks charge nearly $4 per transaction
- Cut unnecessary late fees and interest by paying bills a week in advance
- Ask your bank if they charge penalties for excessive ATM withdrawals or writing checks
- Shift credit card balances to a card with a lower interest rate

The groceries

"Shop the ads ahead of time," said Bob Borths, Store Manager at Oleson's supermarket. "That's what the ads are there for. There's usually a lot of buy one, get one free deals in there."

He added, "Use the coupons, that'll definitely save you money. Also, check the dates on the ads, make sure it's for the right week."

Spending 20 minutes looking through the weekend newspaper's coupons and sales circulars could save you big money.

Be sure to check the prices on larger quantity items as you will not always save money by buying in bulk. Some vendors charge more for the larger containers.

Join a food co-op where members save money by buying groceries in bulk.

Angel Food Ministries of Charlevoix is similar to a food co-op, but no membership or contracts are required. Anyone can buy as many units of name-brand groceries as they like for pennies on the dollar.

Angel Food Ministry officials in Georgia use the buying power of thousands of people across the United States.

Each month's menu is different, but following is a sample menu of what consumers could expect for $30: Four pounds of chicken leg quarters, four ounces of ribs, one pound of ground beef, two pounds of chicken tenders, 1.5 pounds of pork chops, one pound of ground turkey, 10 ounces of stuffed manicotti, 12 ounces of smoked sausage, one package of seasoned potatoes, seven ounce cheeseburger dinner, one pound of green beans, one pound of baby carrots, two pounds of onions, one pound of pinto beans, one pound of rice, seven ounces of blueberry muffin mix, package of 10 waffles and a dessert.

Angel Food will be taking orders from 10 a.m. to noon, Aug. 9 at Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

The delivery date is 10 a.m. on Aug. 23.

Fast Cash:

Following are a few ways to come up with money in a hurry:

- Have a garage sale — the unused household items you may consider throwing away could add up to real revenue with a simple yard sale
- Sell plasma — While some organizations only accept donations, there are others which will pay for your blood
- Classifieds — Your local newspaper is the perfect place to sell collectibles, furniture, cars, boats and just about anything else
- eBay — Auction sites such as eBay are a great place to sell smaller items like DVDs, CDs, collectible cards and action figures
- Consignment — Sell anything from a wedding dress to a classic guitar at Consign Design in Charlevoix, call 237-9773 for more information

Save money in the long run by getting a home energy audit. You may be losing hundreds of dollars a year due to poorly functioning water heater, lack of insulation, leaky windows and doors and outdated appliances.

In the end, simply keeping track of all income and expenditures in a notebook will help you better understand where your money goes.

Benches, bins good for Park

EDITORIAL

We applaud Keith Carey and the city's effort to add recycling/waste receptacles and more seating to East Park.

Carey and his team have been working to win a Waterfront Redevelopment Grant offered by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ). These monies are awarded to municipalities in an effort to revitalize their waterfront properties and require a 25 percent local match.

While the city was not given the full $73,831.50 toward their original $98,000 plan for which they asked, they were alerted earlier this month that they will receive $25,321.

To avoid creating a heavy financial burden in light of the lesser award, Carey was astute enough to alter his original plan to fit the grant monies available.

Carey's new plan features fewer benches and bins than he earlier wanted, but by scaling the project back to 10 benches, six waste receptacles and 12 recycling receptacles from the original 21, 14, 26 and two dog waste stations respectively, he saved the city more than $60,000.

The city's marina fund kicked in $3,400 and the DDA plunked down $5,355 toward costs and installation.

Carey must now work out the fine details with the MDEQ and East Park's new accouterments are likely to be ordered at the end of this summer and installed next spring.

Not only will the bins help keep the park gleaming and trash-free, but there will be dozens more spots for people to sit back, relax and enjoy Charlevoix's most interactive work of art.

'Look at Life' looks at Odds, ends in the news

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

All is well with the world in Charlevoix. We made it through another successful festival feasting on food, listening to the sounds of great music, viewing a family focused parade and taking in the site of fireworks that all except a few dogs could enjoy.

It's delightful to walk in our new East Park listening and observing children of all ages frolicking in the fountain while parents and grandparents secretly wish they were in on some of the action. When dusk permeates the air and the evening sky looks like black velvet, vibrant colors glisten in the streams of water dancing to the music. This awesome site is a veritable liquid fireworks display.

It was mentioned to me by someone viewing the park from their nearby apartment that when the town was lit up our fair city took on the appearance of a small Monte Carlo.

Congratulations to everyone involved with the festival and the new park on a job well done.

I was surfing the channels this morning and for the first time in months things were pretty calm elsewhere too.

The biggest noise on the Today Show was a guest telling Kathy Lee Gifford to be quiet for at least a minute.

Good for him; Her chatter distracts from the show.

Since Kathy Lee and life have quieted down, I thought "What better time than now to educate our readers with tidbits in the news?"

It's time for me to share the wealth of little known facts that bring about a healthier you.

Did you know that white American middle age men could increase their life span by eating more fish?

Japanese men who diet on fish daily have less plaque buildup in their arteries.

I checked in with my Asian friends living in the United States and some have atherosclerosis because they are not getting their omega3 fatty acids.

So it's not always genetics when it comes to health.

Did you know that inhaling scented candles for two or more hours is a health risk?

You can recognize the difference in the toxic candles because they emit black soot.

Go with unscented or soy instead.

Live plants in your home increases creativity and reduces your blood pressure just by seeing something fresh and green.

Non green thumbs beware, silk ones don't have quite the same value.

To fight off colds, this winter, grow a pot of English ivy in the house. It releases more moisture than most plants.

There is also the peace lily which is very good at creating natural moisture and thus reducing dry throats.

When you watch TV while eating, you are apt to eat more, so eventually your weight will increase; That truly is a couch potato.

I wonder if the same thing happens if you are watching TV in a restaurant?

Did you know the worst bathroom stall in a public restroom is the one dead center? It collects the most bacteria.

If you are prone to air sickness you should not sit in the rear of the plane due to the see-saw effect.

Toothbrushes should be kept in a drawer or cupboard. Leaving them on a sink poses a health risk since there is a spread of bacteria from a flushed toilet nearby. Now that's gross.

After working in the garden or lawn you should keep your shoes in an entry way and not in your bedroom closet. Allergens and contamination remain on your shoes for weeks.

Let those hot dishes like lasagna and casseroles cool for an hour on the counter before putting them in the refrigerator. Uneven cooling results in bacteria growth.

Coffee beans and ground coffee should be kept in an air tight container in the cupboard, not the fridge or freezer. Moisture from the cool temperatures will affect the taste.

I am sounding a bit like Heloise and her famous hints, but reminders do jog our memory. Now that I got all that off my chest, it's time to travel on down to Cross Fisheries to get my dose of omega3.

I'll be certain the TV is off during dinner, and tonight the toothbrush will get tucked away in a drawer and nowhere near my gardening shoes which have been contentedly contaminated most of the day.

LETTERS to the editor

A WINN-ING ATTITUDE

Editor:

It has become a fun, family tradition to vacation in Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival.

This was our third year taking part in the activities, riding carnival rides with our children and enjoying wonderful musical performances and fireworks. The newly renovated East Park is truly a wonderful asset to the entire community.

Our children enjoyed the newly created splash park down near the marina.

As we were reading the Charlevoix (Courier, July 23 edition) newspaper on Wednesday, we were surprised by the tone of the letter to the editor written by one of the Venetian Fundraiser Committee members (John Winn).

His letter went on and on regarding the lack of donations given by those visiting the events.

He went on to say that Venetian Festival is not financially sponsored by the city, and unlike Cherry Festival's huge budget, Venetian Festival's is minimal.

He should not assume that everyone who comes to visit realizes that this is a volunteer association and that funds are so terribly hard to come by.

When you advertise so many of your events as free, you can't turn around and criticize people for not paying more for the event.

He couldn't believe that people didn't feel guilty about letting others pay for their entertainment. As a tourist, I was very offended by this. We spend a great deal of money in your city when we vacation there.

He stated that it was obvious that there were people enjoying events who could afford to give more money.

Unless he is asking people about their financial status, then this is an assumption he should not make. Does he ask visitors if they have given money? Does it affect how he treats people?

If this letter had been written by a general member of the city, it would have been easier to read.

However, as a committee member, it showed a lack of respect for the visitors and quite honestly was unprofessional.

Inform the public, politely, about the financial needs, or charge a small admission fee for premium concert seats.

But, please don't harass us or insult us because you think we should give more money, especially if we were never asked in the first place.

Our hometown is somewhat similar to Charlevoix: a tourist town along the shores of Lake Michigan. We know what that means: Tourists. And more importantly: economics.

Tourism is a very important part of our economy: Please treat it that way.

HOORAY FOR CIRCLE OF ARTS

Editor:

The natural light, the space, the action, the location.

What a wonderful use of the old Public Library at 109 Clinton St.: a Charlevoix Circle of Arts center.

It is a compliment to the inspiring beauty of Charlevoix itself.

As a life-long summer resident, I have waited over 40 years to have such a hub to enjoy. I can remember vainly trying to listen to a concert broadcast from Interlochen and because the station was from "so far away" the radio reception included static and volume facing away and out.

I went into the old Public Library over 40 years ago, to check out Art books of other "far off" museum collections to share with my children.

The spirit of the old Library must be so pleased to harbor a new educational and cultural gathering place, a Circle of Arts Center. Its flexible open areas, natural sunlight window wall are assets to be used for exhibitions, performances, classes.

As I attended the Grand Opening Reception on Friday, June 27, it was evident that the freshly formed Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts recently organized in March, is a highly energized, sincere and bright group bringing a wide range of career skills with them. The fine area artists exhibited were displayed in a highly professional setting arranged by Heidi Dietrich. The jazz provided by a trio of Jerry Cameron, Steve Little and Mike Hunter was a perfect background compliment to the party mood. With generously donated edibles and wines, welcoming Board member hosts Todd Warner, Kathryn Lobenherz and Rebecca Glotfelty and impressed partygoers all had a great time.

I encourage both sides of the bridge, native full year and summer residents of all ages, to stroll a half block from Bridge Street on Clinton to the old Public Library to view the new Charlevoix Circle of Arts for yourselves.

I have volunteered as a docent, my only connection to this new group.

Program honors giving golfer

File photo

Steve Breun (left) seen here with Deen Devenport on the Cherlevoix Municipel Golf Course is being honored for his yeers of work for young golfers with e new scholership program celled "Steve's Kids."

Steve Braun is retiring from being the Belvedere Club's Pro at the end of this summer.

According to Dean Davenport, Braun has had a tremendous influence on the growth and success of the Charlevoix Junior Golf program.

Club member Bob Klein representing Steve's friends and admirers contacted golf program director Davenport and they planned to honor Braun's years of service and dedication to junior golfers with the "Steve's Kids" program.

Junior golfers recommended by the program will be provided with free passes to the Municipal Golf Course.

"Steve has given so much to the program and helped so many youngsters learn the game that it is fitting he be recognized in this manner," Davenport said.

According to Klein, the initial program begins immediately and coincides with the conclusion of this summer's program.

Thirty-one youngsters with a passion for the game were identified and awarded season passes for select young golfers for the remainder of this year's season.

Plans are that future top devoted junior golfers from Charlevoix's program will be selected as "Steve's Kids."

"Braun helped launch the summer program for juniors 14 years ago, sharing his earlier year's experience with the successful Flint, Michigan junior golf program," Davenport said. "He and others saw the program immediately fill a need with often over 200 area youngsters enrolling during the start-up years."

Braun, along with several other local teaching professionals, provided the instructional phase of the program. As the program gained popularity, there became a need to expand program offerings.

He volunteered to start a fundraiser which became his famous "100 holes in a day" where pledges were made and he played a marathon of golf: 100 holes in a single day.

Through the years this has enabled nearly 100 juniors to attend the prestigious week long golf camp at Ferris State University.

Recently additional scholarship awards were also awarded to youngsters to attend the Boyne Golf Academy

Braun will embark on his final "100 holes in a day" fundraiser on Aug. 18.

Supporters are encouraged to pledge by calling Braun at the Belvedere Club, 547-2661, or by calling Davenport at 547-6433.

Davenport said he is excited about junior golfers being able to continue to play now that the program is over.

"Looking toward next year there may be others that have similar feelings about golf and kids," he said. "Those wishing to support "Steve's Kids" in 2009 should contact me so the program can continue and grow."

Pass the Muni(cipal) Course any time of the day and you most likely will see some of "Steve's Kids" playing and enjoying the great game of golf

OBITUARIES

Luella Georgine Craig: March 20, 1921 - July 26, 2008

Age 87, died Saturday, July 26, 2008 at Chelsea Retirement Community.

She was born March 20, 1921 in Buffalo, New York, the daughter of George and Luella (Kelly) Dean.

Georgine graduated from Kenmore, N.Y. High School in 1939, and attended New York State Teachers College from 1939 to 1943.

She was employed as a lab technician at Linde Air Products in Tonawanda, NY from 1943 to 1945.

Georgine moved to Ann Arbor in 1975. She was active in the AAUW (American Association of University Women) and their work to encourage women of all ages in their studies in higher education. Georgine received her Masters from U of M in gerontology.

On Sept. 29, 1945, she married Robert G. Craig of Charlevoix, and he preceded her in death on April 24, 2003.

She is survived by three daughters, Susan Craig of Santa Monica, Calif., Barbara (Jack Burgess) Craig of Tigard, Ore., Katherine Craig of Sacramento, Calif.; two grandchildren, Andrew and Allyssa Burgess; a nephew, Peter Lilga; a grand-niece, Dawn Lilga, and a grand-nephew, Aaron Lilga.

She was preceded in death by a sister, Vivian Lilga.

She spent the last five years of her life at Chelsea Retirement Community where she received wonderful care from the entire staff.

Funeral services were held at 10:30 a.m., Friday, Aug. 1, at Chelsea Retirement Community Towsley Village Chapel, with Rev. Beth Foster officiating.

Burial followed at Washtenong Memorial Park, Ann Arbor.

Donations are welcome for Chelsea Retirement Community (Towsley Village) or the Scholarship fund of the Ann Arbor Chapter of the AAUW.

Walgreens open by fall

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Construction workers continue work on the new Walgreens store Monday on the corner of M66 and U.S. 31 in Charlevoix.

Corporate officials say Charlevoix's newest pharmacy, variety store, should be open by Thanksgiving.

According to Carol Hively a Walgreens Corporate spokesman, factors including a large elderly population and aging baby boomers prompted Walgreens to build in an area which already supports at least three pharmacies.

"What we're seeing is demand for prescription drugs increasing dramatically," Hively said. "We're opening a new store every 18 hours, that's more than a store a day."

She added, "We're expanding all over the country."

The building, located at the corner of U.S. 31 and M66, is 13,650 square feet and should employ nearly 25 people and will offer a drive-through pharmacy window.

There are currently 198 Walgreens stores in Michigan with 550 stores expected to open nationwide this year.

Though it appears work has slowed on the job site, Hively said there does not appear to be any delay in construction which began earlier this spring.

Walgreens officials hope to open more than 7,000 by 2010.

The 107-year-old company fills an estimated 583,000,000 prescriptions a year, employs 226,000, and offers nearly 20,000 items from CD players and toys to exercise equipment, groceries and contact lenses.

"In addition to drive-thru service, the new Walgreens will offer extensive pharmacy services, including a variety of options to refill medications. Touch-tone service allows a patient to enter their prescription number and request a time for a refill by touch-tone without having to speak directly to pharmacy staff," Hively said. "Patients may also arrange for automated refills and receive e-mail reminders of refill status, or to have their labels printed in any of 14 languages."

She added, "The store will offer one-hour photo processing, passport photos and digital photo services. Customers can share photos with family and friends across the country when they upload digital pictures from their home computer for pick-up at any Walgreens nationwide."

The cosmetics department will feature full-time beauty advisors trained to help customers select cosmetics that are right for them.

Rummage sale proceeds to benefit mission trip

Volunteers (above) worked on this trailer house during the 2007 Frakes mission trip. Proceeds from the rummage sale on Aug. 16 will fund this year's trip.

Ever wish you could help the needy by simply going shopping? Now you can.

Members of the United Methodist Church and the Community Church of God will soon raise funds for their upcoming mission trip to Frakes, Ky., with a rummage sale.

"This is the fourth year we've done this. There's a 50 mile radius around the Henderson Settlement," said Maryanne Borths, a representative for the church. "One year we actually worked on a home in Tennessee."

Helping the Henderson Settlement is a mission which has been supported by the Methodist Church for several years.

According to Borths, the area in Frakes is severely economically depressed.

She said their economy has always been based on the coal industry and now with many of the mines either closing down or becoming automated, the unemployment rate is now over 50 percent.

The settlement provides childcare, elder care, hot meals, after school tutoring for children, the only gym in the area for recreation, home repair and transportation.

There is also a host of other services provided for the people of southeastern Kentucky and northern Tennessee.

"The communities are very small there because of their geography. People don't have vehicles, so transportation (from place to place) is very long," said Borths. "In this situation, we're saying, 'we know you need a little help, we've needed help before, so here we are.'"

In the past, the Charlevoix workers have added trailer skirting to a 93-year-old woman's home, put new doors and windows in for a single father, worked with other groups to put an addition onto a young family's home and put wiring and insulation into a small home built for an elderly man who had been living in a tent.

"We don't know what our project is going to be until we get there," Borths said. "When we do get there, though, we purchase all of the supplies in that area so that it helps their economy."

Fellow trip and fundraiser organizer Jan Gibbs said she has simply fallen in love with the area.

"They're just good, god-loving people," she said.

Gibbs explained that the communities have very little as far as economic growth, infrastructure and business.

"They have schools and churches, but they don't have any movie theaters or anything," she said. "It's a very beautiful area, with hills and mountains, but there's just nothing else there."

Gibbs said the group decided to go to Frakes through the recommendation of a friend of hers who lives in the area.

"It's an area that really needs our help, and that's why we continue to go there," Gibbs said.

Borths said they purchase all of the things they need with the money they raise through fundraisers.

This year's rummage sale features a variety of donations from people all around Charlevoix including household items and furniture.

"Besides meeting a real need, we have a chance to meet and form relationships with people far from our own homes," Borths said. "These relationships are just as important or more so than the monetary value of what we do."

The rummage sale fundraiser is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday Aug. 16 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church at 104 State St. in Charlevoix.

The group will depart for the Henderson Settlement on Sept. 7 and will return on Sept. 13.

• Arbor Day Foundation offers 10 free Colorado Blue Spruce Trees

Everyone who joins the Arbor Day Foundation during August 2008 will receive 10 free Colorado blue spruce trees.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign, a program dedicated to environmental stewardship through the planting of trees.

"Colorado blue spruce trees were selected for this campaign because of their many uses in home landscapes," said John Rosenow, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "They lend beauty to their surroundings with their silver blue-green color and compact conical shape. They can be used as individual ornamentals, an energy-saving windbreak, a privacy screen, or as living Christmas trees."

The trees will be shipped postpaid between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10, at the right time for planting. The six to 12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members of the Arbor Day Foundation will also receive The Tree Book, which includes information about tree planting and care.

To receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Blue Spruces, Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Aug. 31, or join online at www.arborday.org.

• Get your measles shots

Public health officials recommend northern Michigan residents get the measles vaccine. More measles cases have been reported in the U.S. this year than at any time since 2001, largely a result of measles outbreaks occurring elsewhere in the world. Measles vaccine is especially important for people planning to travel anywhere outside the U.S. who have had two doses of measles vaccine, or other evidence of immunity

Charlevoix resident attains U.S. citizenship

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

Back in Jamaica, she was used to the images of America she saw on television: high rises and beautiful beaches. She was expecting America to be like Miami and New York City.

So, when Andrea Miller, 36, finally came to the United States and landed in Michigan, she couldn't believe she was actually there.

"My first winter here, it was so cold that I just cried," said Miller. "I didn't know how people could live here. The first time it hit single digits (in temperature), I was ready to go home."

Andrea met her husband, Michigan resident Dennis Miller, while he was on vacation in Jamaica.

They were married and she moved to America a year later.

Miller will have lived on U.S. soil for 11 years as of Aug. 28.

On Thursday, July 24, she went down to the Gerald Ford Museum in Grand Rapids where she was sworn in as a U.S. citizen.

"There were about 80 people there, all from different countries," she said of her experience in Grand Rapids.

"My advice to anyone who is here illegally is to do it," she said of becoming a U.S citizen. "It's not hard. They give you a book, you study it and then you take a test. It's just like school, except there's only one subject. It's a very fair and simple process."

Miller said it only took 11 months to obtain her certificate for U.S. citizenship. She said she got it because it makes things easier on her and her family. She said there's less paperwork, less hassle when traveling to other countries, and it's easier to bring family members from Jamaica to the U.S.

"I thought about it a lot before I applied," Miller said. "Even though I'm a U.S. citizen, I still love Jamaica very much."

Miller said the process of getting her citizenship was very simple. "The people there make you feel very comfortable and it was just smooth, smooth sailing," Miller said. "It's a very simple thing, to just learn about the country you're going to live in. To learn about the price that had to be paid for freedom."

Miller said she doesn't get to go back to Jamaica as often as she'd like, and the last time she went home was four years ago.

She and her family will typically stay for two weeks.

However, she said she talks to family back in her homeland nearly every other day.

"My advice to anyone who wants to come to Jamaica is to go during the wintertime," she said. "Why leave 80-degree weather here in the summer for 120-degree weather in Jamaica?"

Miller said she will never get used to the weather in Michigan.

"I'm just learning to cope with the cold weather. I try to get all of my shopping done all at once and dress warmly. I like to stay where it's warm," she said. "It's warm all year around. Also, the food there, it's always fresh. No matter what time of the year it is."

But, nine months of cool temperatures aside, Miller is happy in the United States.

"(In America) there's better jobs, better opportunities for education, the cost of living, health care and you experience things here that you don't get there (Jamaica), like four seasons," Miller said. "I love the Fall. It just looks like these oceans of color that God painted."

Miller works for Harbor Industries where she makes display fixtures and has worked there for the last seven years.

She lives in Charlevoix now with her husband, her 14-year-old daughter Nasstassia Ewurs, and her 14-month-old baby daughter Trista.

such as previously having the disease.

Anyone born before 1957 is considered immune to measles and does not need the vaccine, but people are "strongly urged" by the department to get vaccinated. Initial symptoms of measles are fever, which usually climbs above 101° F, along with coughing, runny nose, and red, teary eyes. After about three days of the initial illness, a characteristic red raised rash appears on the face and moves down to cover the body over the next several days. The rash may eventually become blotchy and may last five or more days. Complications of measles include pneumonia, ear infections, encephalitis, seizures, and, though rare in the U.S., death.

• United Way

Char-Em United Way has successfully completed all of the United Way of America membership requirements. Over and above the annual requirements, Char-Em United Way completed a mandatory organizational self-assessment in 2006 as part of this process. The certification mandates completion of 13 requirements for United Way of America membership along with verification of the status of 44 indicators that a United Way demonstrates the intent of the membership requirements.

Char-Em United Way works to advance the common good by supporting local programs and services including, meeting urgent and basic needs, improving financial stability, helping youth succeed, increasing independence and self sufficiency, and promoting individual and family health and wellness and projects like Day of Caring, Project Connect, Stuff the Bus and the Poverty Reduction Roundtable.

• Health department accreditation

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan has earned full accreditation from the Michigan Local Public Health Accreditation Program, recognizing the agency's excellence in implementing public health standards from Michigan Departments of Agriculture, Community Health, and Environmental Quality. Organizations that earn this certificate have demonstrated to a team of surveyors during a series of on-site visits that its programs and services are of the highest quality, measurable, and accountable.

Law enforcement

• Sheriff George T. Lasater and Acting Undersheriff Chuck Vondra are presenting the Sheriff's Office Life Saving Award to Margeaux Leakas and Lacy Flanigan. The awards will be presented at 11:30 a.m. on Monday July 21. These two young ladies are employees of the Belvedere Club. The incident they are being recognized for is as follows: At approximately 3:24 p.m. on Saturday, June 21st Robert Leitz, 64 of Sister Bay, Wisconsin was operating his vessel in Round Lake when a speed adjustment caused him to fall from the vessel. His safety lanyard and life vest were not being worn which caused the vessel to continue to run and eventually turn and strike Mr. Leitz, who was already exhausted from swimming after his vessel. Mr. Leitz was rescued from the water by the two young ladies and brought to shore where he was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital for lacerations to the upper right side of his body and face.

• At approximately 1 a.m., July 27, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputies along with Charlevoix City Police, State Police and Charlevoix EMS all responded to a personal injury accident at 5907 M-66 N in Marion Township for a 28 year-old male that had been struck by a car.

Witnesses say Joseph Reedy of Central Lake pulled into the driveway of 5907 M-66 N when he and 28 year old Alva Noirot were horsing around. Reedy, driving his 1999 Red Dodge Neon, accidentally hit the accelerator and struck Noirot in the legs. EMSL officials stated Noirot suffered two broken legs and was transported to Charlevoix Are Hospital, then transferred to Northern Michigan Hospital.

Deputies investigated the incident at the scene and arrested Reedy for allegedly operating while intoxicated, third offense.

The Peninsula
at Evergreen Pointe

These waterfront home sites offer a panoramic view of Lake Charlevoix. Those on the peninsula's west side feature spectacular sunsets and the twinkling lights of Charlevoix in the distance. The sun rises over the east side of the point, which opens to Lake Charlevoix's quiet southern arm. Architectural styles of these classic homes will hearken back to the days of grand summer cottages of Harbor Point, Martha's Vineyard and The Hampton's. Turrets, gables, cupolas and weather washed pastel colors along with bead board, wainscoting and large front porches will define the ambience of living at The Peninsula at Evergreen Pointe.

Stop the Alba Injection Well - Water Sustains Life

It is scientifically inaccurate to call CKD leachate "water". Although the caustic pH levels are "treated", the heavy metals and contaminants still remain.

The Friends of the Jordan River ask all involved parties, including the MDEQ and EPA, to help CMS in the isolation, containment and treatment of the CKD leachate on site at Bay Harbor.

*Trucking and disposing of this CKD Leachate at the head of our Jordan River and Lake Charlevoix Watersheds is unacceptable, risky and sets a dangerous precedent for all of Northern Michigan in disposal of industrial waste.

CCCF grants available

The Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation invite nonprofit organizations, educational institutions and municipalities in need of funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Emmet County or Charlevoix County, meet an urgent need or enrich life for local residents in some way.

The deadline for grant requests is Oct. 1. Call (231) 536-2440 or visit www.c3f.org for application information.

19th pool auction

This log cabin playhouse was donated by Savanna and Alyssia Joseph to the 19th Annual Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction which begins at 5:30 p.m., Aug. 10 at Charlevoix Country Club. Tickets are $75 per person or $125 for a couple. Call 547-0982 or 547-9796 to make reservations. The public is invited to an auction preview Aug. 9 at the country club. Other auction items include two cars, two boats, football tickets for University of Michigan and Michigan State, including five tickets on the 50-yard line for the Michigan State vs. Ohio State game, a week at a Key West hotel and more. Donations may be dropped off at the pool, located at 11905 US 31 north in Charlevoix. For more information on donations or volunteering, call 547-7444 or 547-6960.

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past.

Agreements reached earlier this year between the CMS Land Company, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and Resort Township have paved the way for a scheduled reopening of East Park in 2009. Here are answers to some of the questions we hear most often about our work in East Park.

Q: What environmental steps have been taken at East Park?

A: Environmental work at the park includes:
- The installation of more than 800 feet of collection lines along the shoreline to catch water coming from the dust pile,
- Relocating about 30,000 cubic yards of cement dust to remove contact with ground water,
- Shaping the pile to maximize water run-off,
- The installation of a watertight liner over the pile, followed by a sand and soil cover over the liner,
- The installation of 10 wells south of the park to divert water around the dust pile is currently on-going,
- At the suggestion of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, CMS installed a "Downstream Defender" to filter storm water before it makes its way to the lake, and
- The entire site has been seeded and the grass is becoming well established.

Q: How environmentally effective have the remedies been?

A: Environmental results have been impressive. Since the collection lines have been installed, pH readings in the lake routinely have been less than the action level of 9. According to testing protocol developed by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, the amount of mercury making its way to the lake over a period of a year has been reduced about 65 percent. Continued improvement is expected when the diversion wells are installed and all remedies are working in concert.

Q: What amenities are planned for the park?

A: Only the eastern (original) side of the park had any structures on it and the township plans to begin that replacement work this fall. One of the side benefits of the environmental work at East Park is that the useful size of the west side of the park has about doubled. The township plans to add additional amenities to the west side of the park in the future, including restrooms and a pavilion, depending on budget and securing grant money. See park rendering at left.

Q: What agreements were reached with Resort Township?

A: The agreements between Resort Township and CMS Land included necessary access and equipment maintenance agreements and park infrastructure replacement costs. At the beginning of the project CMS Land committed to replace park structures removed during the environmental work at the park. CMS and the township agreed that the township could better realize its goals for the park if they conducted the replacement work and CMS reimbursed the township $390,000 to replace the removed infrastructure.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect the bay for future generations.

Keith Carey Cup Final Results

The final matches of the 2008 Keith Carey Cup were completed during last week's Venetian Festival. A total of 30 golfers participated in four categories this year. This year's winners and runners-up are as follows:

Chris Wyniawskij defended his title from last year and defeated Chris Putnam to win the Men's Championship Division. This was Chris' third title in a row. Dennis Dominic defeated Kory Van Horn to win the Men's First Flight title. Glen Taylor defeated Jack Barker to win the Men's Senior Division title. And finally, Fran Marschner defended her title by defeating Kate Beaudoin to win the Women's Division title. This is the fifth time Fran has won the Women's title. Congratulations to the winners and a special thanks to all those who participated to make this year's tournament a success. We look forward to next year's tournament and hope for even greater participation. Thank you from the Charlevoix Golf Club Staff. Congratulations to Steve Trecha of Charlevoix who had a hole-in-one at the Charlevoix Golf Club on Saturday, July 26. Steve carded his ace on the par three third hole, using a six iron from the blue tees.

Suspects could face decades in jail if found guilty

DRUGS

ing to hide cocaine while in the backseat of a patrol car.

"Approximately 16 grams (a ball the size of a plum) of heroin and three grams of cocaine packaged in five separate wrappings was found in his (Anderson's) underwear," Hankins stated in his affidavit of probable cause.

The men were subsequently arrested and arraigned the following day, today, July 31 and are currently lodged in Charlevoix County Jail on $100,000 bond each.

Hankins estimated the drugs' street value of $2,000 to $3,000. Hankins and Vondra believe the suspects had spent at least the last week in Traverse City and were allegedly on their way to Emmet County to sell the drugs.

"We have no idea if this is part of a larger operation or just these two gentlemen," Hankins said.

Quinn faces two counts of possession of controlled substances, narcotic or cocaine, with intent to deliver on school or library property which each carry a two to 40-year sentence and $75,000 fine.

Anderson faces two counts of possession of controlled substances for heroin and cocaine, with intent to deliver on school or library property. Since he is being charged as a habitual offender with second offenses on each charge, his sentence could be as many as 160 years in prison with fines topping $225,000, if found guilty.

Hankins said the bust could not have been made without cooperation by the Cheboygan and two Charlevoix policing agencies.

"This large quantity of drugs was taken off the street before it was delivered in this community," he said. "We are a long way from the inner city, but I'm not surprised to see those drugs being utilized in the area. We have had similar cases that involved similar drugs."

He added, "The same drugs that are available in Pontiac or Detroit are, unfortunately, available in northern Michigan also."

The suspects are scheduled for a 3 p.m., Aug. 19 preliminary hearing in Charlevoix's 33rd District Court.

Local economy on upswing

BUSINESS

Internet. If you decide to buy parts through the Internet, you don't get to talk to anyone or get an opinion," said Cole. "But if you come in here, you get our professionalism and the understanding that we're going to set you up with the right part(s) you need."

"Our objective is to go above and beyond the expectations of every one of our guests," said Jeff Spreckseli, General Manager of the Weathervane. "(Our main attraction to the restaurant) is definitely the food and our location. We're a landmark property here in town."

Sprecksell said the toughest part about the business is finding good help, but right now they have a pretty good staff.

Also, letting people know that they offer value-priced entrees can sometimes be a challenge. "We're a 99% scratch house, which means that we make all of our food from scratch, so that can be very labor intensive," he said. "Our chef is very good with money. We've designed the menu around profitable things."

The Weathervane restaurant has been around since the 1960s, but has been owned by the Stafford's since 1986. As an earmark fine-dining restaurant in Charlevoix, they stand as a testament that business is good and remains strong in the area.

"The Spring started off slow. May and June's business weren't down, but acting in more of a straight line," said Jacqueline Dipert, owner of the Clothing Company. "July has been good though."

The Clothing Company, which has been in business on Bridge Street for 35 years, can attribute much of its good fortune to Charlevoix being such a beautiful place to visit, according to Dipert.

"The view, the people, the traffic, which isn't good for everyone, but it certainly is for us," Dipert said, noting some of the advantages to owning a business in downtown Charlevoix. "We get a lot of night business here, too, which is different from a lot of other towns."

Keith Carey, DDA Executive Director, said that any lack of business can certainly be attributed to the economy, the increase of Internet businesses and the creeping up of big-box stores.

"These challenges also present opportunities for small business owners," said Carey. "They provide a level of customer service that the Internet can't provide. Say what you will, people love convenience, but they want that hands-on experience of going into a store and trying something on or seeing it up close before buying it."

Carey said that for a long time, everything was centered around the East Park project but owners didn't see it as a negative. "To an owner, there was nothing but a positive outlook. Those owners were looking at it and saying, 'we're being challenged now, but look at what we're going to end up with.'" Carey said.

"Generally, owners are seeing an increase in sales. In my opinion, it has a lot to do with gas prices. We may not be getting as many summer visitors as years past, but I think we're getting a lot of people from around the area deciding to stay closer to home instead," Carey said. "The business we're getting from locals (this year) is replacing what we used to get from out-of-towners."

"I think we have a real sense of community among business owners and that makes us stand out. We have a unique location, too," Carey said. "Among the business community and community leaders, I think we have a very forward-looking set of people."

Charlevoix City Council members are working to increase pilot awareness of the duration and amount of noise generated by idling planes and jets. Council members are also working to eliminate noise generated by aircraft from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. in order to increase the peace and tranquility in the neighborhood which surrounds the municipal airport.

Council members deal with plane noise

BY A.J. HOFFMAN

Some city officials have a problem with noise levels at the municipal airport.

Mayor Norman Carlson expressed his concern at the July 21 city council meeting because planes have been flying at all hours of the night.

Carlson

"For a smaller residential community, these jets are flying over a heavily populated area and it's making a lot of noise," said Carlson. "It's annoying."

Carlson said that the issue had been brought up before, but at the time, a new city manager was settling in and there were more important issues that needed to be dealt with.

78-year-old grandmother just getting started

BY A.J. HOFFMAN
STAFF WRITER

"It wasn't as scary as a roller coaster, but you're up higher than a Ferris wheel," said Audrey Lehman. "We were up so high in the air that we couldn't even hear anything."

The 78-year-old and a group of friends recently spent a weekend parasailing as a first of what could be many adventures.

"It was like being suspended in air," said Lehman. "You could see everything and it was just awesome."

Parasailing is where a person is put in a harness and attached to a vehicle, typically a boat, by a long cord and suspended in the air by means of a parachute.

Lehman has had a relatively long life, but she's nowhere near done living it yet. As the mother of seven children, who are scattered around the country, and two great-grandchildren, she's living life to the fullest.

"It's wonderful. The last (great-grandchild) was born while I was in Florida. She'll be 2 in November. My other one was born on July 1, while I was here," she said.

Lehman was a nurse for 40 years. She's out-lived two husbands, each of whom she was with for 20 years.

Both Lehman and one of her daughters, Beth Egler, agreed that it was Lehman's children and her faith that kept her going.

"We were so young when Dad died that we just clung to each other," said Egler. "Four of us kids were still at home. One of my sisters was actually decorating for her senior prom on that day."

Egler said her mother had a rough childhood; Lehman lost her mother when she was 12 years old and her father when she first got married at approximately 23 or 24.

While some children may fear for an elderly parent's safety when engaging in something so adventurous, Egler's reaction to her mother going parasailing was, "Great. Can I go?"

She said all of her brothers and sisters were very supportive and proud of her.

Egler said her mother hasn't always been so adventurous.

"She's always been the stoic one. We've always counted on her to be our rock," said Egler. "I think she's figured out that she's not going to live forever."

A fond memory Egler had of her mother was when she was 17 years old and she wanted to go to a recording school in California.

"We flew out to this school in California and found this hole-in-the-wall studio and she said, 'now what do you think, Beth?' Then we just forgot about it and had three days of fun."

Lehman said that, when parasailing, they keep you airborne for 15 to 20 minutes.

She also said you can go up there by yourself, but it's really more fun to go up in pairs.

"It was funny because the company that we went to for parasailing in Traverse City had these big smiley faces on their parachutes and we had big smiles on our faces too," Lehman said. "Some people were a little apprehensive, but we were mostly just excited. We've all been waiting for this for a year."

Lehman, who was a nurse at Charlevoix Area Hospital for 40 years, now summers in Charlevoix.

"It's great satisfaction. For me, it was just a joy to help people come back and get better. Or, to have them come back and tell you what a good job you did," she said. "It's the most beautiful place in the world. We used to vacation here all the time and finally we moved here. It's just the beauty and the people that keep me here."

Today, Lehman is enjoying her golden years. She keeps busy as a member of the Red Hat Society and keeps company with her friends.

Her daughter Beth said that now after two husbands, she enjoys eating peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for dinner if she wants.

As a mother, Lehman always taught her children to be honest to themselves and to other people. Most importantly, to be themselves. Her advice to young people: "I just think they should be true to themselves and grow up to be good citizens."

"We're going to have to start a bucket list," Lehman said of her adventures. "I went sailing on a windjammer once, but I can't think of anything that would top parasailing to add to the list."

Lehman said that she and her friends are hoping to go up in a hot air balloon in two years, but until then she said she will enjoy her memories of parasailing.

"It was certainly one of the highlights of my summer. I would absolutely do it again," she said.

The unbalanced balance

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

The balance of nature is an idea we are all familiar with.

I would like to suggest that it is a bad idea, unsupported by current science.

We should probably alter the language if we are to understand our relationship to the rest of the natural world.

Language changes slowly in response to changes in human understanding.

Words from the past persist and can sometimes be the cause of confusion.

Consider the word "witches" for example.

Jacob Bronowski wrote some decades ago that science, as a way of understanding the world, began to thrive only when "educated people no longer believed in witches."

Currently, true believers in witches as the cause of human events like disease or calamity are rare in much of the world. You could almost say that education eliminates witches, at least as the cause of things.

The last serious outbreak of witch-belief in this country was in the late 1600s in Salem, Mass. After the trial, at least one of the judges who had condemned supposed witches to death, Samuel Sewell, apologized publicly and asked forgiveness for his participation.

Mr. Sewell was a graduate of Harvard, and certainly at the forefront of what passed for education in the 17th century.

Today, witches persist as children's costumes at Halloween, but the meaning of the word "witch" has changed almost completely. The idea of witches as manipulators of events is useable in poetry or in fiction, but not in reality.

Now, about the balance of nature: According to Webster and others, "balance" suggests equilibrium, or a pretty much unchanging situation.

Research in Ecology over the past fifty years would insist that the situation in Nature is almost always not one of equilibrium, but one of large, often rapid, changes.

What Nature shows us, when we look carefully, is not balance, which sounds sort of delicate, but rather resilience, which implies a sturdy possibility well beyond delicate balance.

Some of you may remember that, not too many years ago, Lake Erie was pronounced pretty much dead as an outcome of the pollution poured into it from all the surrounding large cities.

Lake Washington, in Seattle, Wash., was similarly reported to have died.

Both lakes, and many others as well, were apparently able to come back from being dead, when pollution levels were reduced.

As someone once said, "Dead is dead." Dead means seriously unbalanced, but resilient suggests the possibility of reconstruction from what remnants remain.

I can find no current reference in the literature of science to the balance of nature. It might be useful in poetry or works of fiction, but what nature shows us is not balance, it is resilience.

An unbalanced watch will surely cease keeping appropriate time.

If the natural world is anything like a well-balanced watch, it is like a watch that can repair itself: unusual in watches, but an obvious characteristic of living things.

It is, of course, possible to obliterate nature completely, kill all the organisms, even the bacteria, and move on. But any change short of complete elimination of life calls into play the truly remarkable resilience of the natural world.

Geological history suggests that life on earth has recovered from at least three or four events sufficiently catastrophic to eliminate 90 percent, or more, of all living things. Let us not celebrate a delicate and easily perturbed "balance of nature."

Let us rather celebrate the "resilience of nature," which has been so convincingly demonstrated by the history of live on earth.

Fear and loathing in Gohs' living room

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Before I officially begin this column, let me say it's great to be back. I've been so busy with the new job and all, that I just haven't had time to devote the full 13 percent of Gohs' usual research and hilarity you've come to know, and possibly tolerate, in the Crying Towel.

As always, those hyper gimps in the legal department are working to stifle my creative freedom, as if libel were a bad thing. So, here's the disclaimer: As far as you know, the following events are true. Only the expiration dates and name of a major corporation which rhymes with "humble tea" have been changed to protect my dignity and the company's rear.

That being written, I have not been single for over 14 years; Ladies, please try to control your sorrow.

So, when the wife decided eight months ago that she would be taking the kids to Florida for a week, I was psyched.

Fast-forward to last week and they were on their way to the 40-square-miles of evil theme park turned autonomous aggressive gift shop and propaganda emporium known to communists and terrorists nation-wide as Disney World.

For several thousand dollars you too can send your family to a 100-degree sandbox to be reprogrammed by the maniacal masterminds behind such atrocities as Herbie Fully Loaded starring Lindsay Lohan who plays the drug-addled driver of a Volkswagen beetle suffering from gender confusion. These are the same folks who brought you the 88-minute romp of an Italian woodcarver with a penchant for all things arboretum and an unhealthy desire to live with a young boy.

Plant a tree indeed.

To keep the food budget under a cool grand during their stay, we devised a plan to pack PB&J, chips, cookies and pop tarts; the idea being that a cheap breakfast, lunch and snacks would allow them to have fine dinners each night without breaking the bank.

This seemed fine and dandy, or at least OK and mediocre, since the TSA Web site doesn't prohibit food in luggage. But, Fourth Amendment be damned, the wife was pulled out of line for having too many cans of tuna in her carry-on luggage.

Perhaps I missed the Department of Homeland Security memo "Kindergarten teachers armed with tuna determined to attack U.S."

Concerned my wife may in reality be a terrorist, I contacted Brand X Tuna corporate headquarters via e-mail demanding information on any ties they may have to Al Quaeda. I have yet to receive a response.

I sat home, alone, wondering how I would tell mother the wife was an enemy combatant. I called Handsome Stranger's house for some cheering up, but he'd apparently skipped town. Gone were my dreams of poker with the fella's and beer 'til dawn.

My veritable whirlwind of bachelor debauchery had fallen short of even the lowest expectations while simultaneously exceeding my average crest of self-inflicted discomfort.

I could hear the tour guide on my at-home vacation: "Thank-you for flying Torquemada Airways. Loneliness and depression are located to the left and right of the aisle. As you can see, paranoia is clearly marked at each end of the plane and, in case of emergency, please feel free to freak out."

That first night was spent dining on generic tomato soup and saltines in front of "George Lopez" reruns; I get it, your daughter is a tramp and your mother is an awful human being. Can we move on?

Insomnia took hold and did not let go, which is lucky for me because I got to watch "Revenge of the Nerds III" while wondering if that banging noise outside was the Spanish speaking gent from whom I'd been receiving cryptic phone calls daily through winter '06. He would call and talk to me in Spanish for as long as I would stay on the phone, 45 minutes one night. I just kept saying "I'm sorry, sir, no habla Espanol."

I pulled the covers over my head and prayed for daylight.

Day three: the pizza boxes, cracker wrappers, issues of Mad magazine and dirty dishes which decorated the coffee table were a desperate cry for help, but no one could hear.

By day five I had become more raccoon than man, sprawled on the living room floor, eating instant mashed potatoes and bacon bits from a saucepan while guffawing like a buffoon at "Futurama."

I hope I come back as a wisecracking, beer-guzzling, pipe-bending robot.

By the evening of day six, I was helping Handsome Stranger erect some strange 40-foot monstrosity consisting of eight ropes and various sections of steel pipe held in place by off brand duct tape: God, I wish I was kidding.

Escaping Stranger's compound without being impaled, I headed home to find the family tan, relaxed and unpacking.

I told the wife of my horrifying week and we made a deal. She said she'd never again leave me alone for more than 24 hours as long as I promised not to publish this column.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Gohs, no habla Espanol."

LETTERS to the editor

THANKS, NORWOOD

Editor:

Last Tuesday (Aug. 5) night was an emotional roller coaster, (I am) very grateful for the votes I received but also very humbled by the closeness of the contest.

We worked very hard for the support of the people that voted for us and will continue to work hard for all the people of Norwood Township.

We may not always agree on everything we do, but we must strive to meet that middle road where the good of the township is the goal to be reached.

Now is the time to put our differences behind us and work to heal the wounds that have been inflicted in the past.

The new board does not take office until November, but already we are opening a dialog with the townships north and south of us to respond to the threat of the invasive grass species phragmites.

You will be hearing much more about this in the near future.

We wish to establish active boards to control the Norwood cemetery and the township park, to work with the Norwood Historical Society to the extent that we can and to continue the road program.

In the near future, I will have up and running an e-mail address where you can contact me with your questions or concerns, ideas you may have to better serve the township or just vent your feelings.

Once again, thank you for your support

Frank Hamilton
Norwood

NOT OK WITH CMS

Editor:

CMS, accept your responsibilities.

CMS knowingly and willingly assumed responsibility for pollution problems at Bay Harbor.

Now they want to spread the pollution to other sites rather than eliminate the problem at Bay Harbor.

Their solution is to transfer their (non)hazardous leachate to Alba for injection into a deep well which could potentially contaminate the Jordan River Valley water table and eventually migrate into Lake Charlevoix, Round Lake and Lake Michigan.

Another solution being talked about is possibly transferring this (non)hazardous leachate to the cement plant in Charlevoix, to potentially add another area to be polluted with CMS material.

The obvious is all too simple.

CMS needs to remove the cause of the pollution at Bay Harbor, not redistribute their polluted waste to other area.

CMS and their management should be held accountable, both financially and possibly criminally for not solving the problem.

Very simply, CMS is responsible for properly eliminating the problem and not transferring the problem to another area.

Concerned my wife may in reality be a terrorist, I contacted Brand X Tuna corporate headquarters via e-mail demanding information on any ties they may have to Al Quaeda. I have yet to receive a response.

I sat home, alone, wondering how I would tell mother the wife was an enemy combatant. I called Handsome Stranger's house for some cheering up, but he'd apparently skipped town. Gone were my dreams of poker with the fella's and beer 'til dawn.

My veritable whirlwind of bachelor debauchery had fallen short of even the lowest expectations while simultaneously exceeding my average crest of self-inflicted discomfort.

I could hear the tour guide on my at-home vacation: "Thank-you for flying Torquemada Airways. Loneliness and depression are located to the left and right of the aisle. As you can see, paranoia is clearly marked at each end of the plane and, in case of emergency, please feel free to freak out."

That first night was spent dining on generic tomato soup and saltines in front of "George Lopez" reruns; I get it, your daughter is a tramp and your mother is an awful human being. Can we move on?

Insomnia took hold and did not let go, which is lucky for me because I got to watch "Revenge of the Nerds III" while wondering if that banging noise outside was the Spanish speaking gent from whom I'd been receiving cryptic phone calls daily through winter '06. He would call and talk to me in Spanish for as long as I would stay on the phone, 45 minutes one night. I just kept saying "I'm sorry, sir, no habla Espanol."

I pulled the covers over my head and prayed for daylight.

Day three: the pizza boxes, cracker wrappers, issues of Mad magazine and dirty dishes which decorated the coffee table were a desperate cry for help, but no one could hear.

By day five I had become more raccoon than man, sprawled on the living room floor, eating instant mashed potatoes and bacon bits from a saucepan while guffawing like a buffoon at "Futurama."

I hope I come back as a wisecracking, beer-guzzling, pipe-bending robot.

By the evening of day six, I was helping Handsome Stranger erect some strange 40-foot monstrosity consisting of eight ropes and various sections of steel pipe held in place by off brand duct tape: God, I wish I was kidding.

Escaping Stranger's compound without being impaled, I headed home to find the family tan, relaxed and unpacking.

I told the wife of my horrifying week and we made a deal. She said she'd never again leave me alone for more than 24 hours as long as I promised not to publish this column.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Gohs, no habla Espanol."

LETTERS to the editor

THANKS, NORWOOD

Editor:

Last Tuesday (Aug. 5) night was an emotional roller coaster, (I am) very grateful for the votes I received but also very humbled by the closeness of the contest.

We worked very hard for the support of the people that voted for us and will continue to work hard for all the people of Norwood Township.

We may not always agree on everything we do, but we must strive to meet that middle road where the good of the township is the goal to be reached.

Now is the time to put our differences behind us and work to heal the wounds that have been inflicted in the past.

The new board does not take office until November, but already we are opening a dialog with the townships north and south of us to respond to the threat of the invasive grass species phragmites.

You will be hearing much more about this in the near future.

We wish to establish active boards to control the Norwood cemetery and the township park, to work with the Norwood Historical Society to the extent that we can and to continue the road program.

In the near future, I will have up and running an e-mail address where you can contact me with your questions or concerns, ideas you may have to better serve the township or just vent your feelings.

Once again, thank you for your support

Frank Hamilton

NOT OK WITH CMS

Editor:

CMS, accept your responsibilities.

CMS knowingly and willingly assumed responsibility for pollution problems at Bay Harbor.

Now they want to spread the pollution to other sites rather than eliminate the problem at Bay Harbor.

Their solution is to transfer their (non)hazardous leachate to Alba for injection into a deep well which could potentially contaminate the Jordan River Valley water table and eventually migrate into Lake Charlevoix, Round Lake and Lake Michigan.

Another solution being talked about is possibly transferring this (non)hazardous leachate to the cement plant in Charlevoix, to potentially add another area to be polluted with CMS material.

The obvious is all too simple.

CMS needs to remove the cause of the pollution at Bay Harbor, not redistribute their polluted waste to other area.

CMS and their management should be held accountable, both financially and possibly criminally for not solving the problem.

Very simply, CMS is responsible for properly eliminating the problem and not transferring the problem to another area.

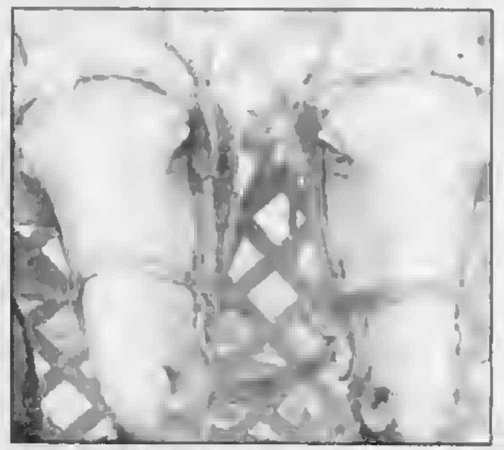
Bird's-eye view

A young boy admires the work of Michael Van Houzen of Holland. Van Houzen's wood carvings of birds are all hand-carved out of basswood. The leaves and plant work is made out of brass and welded on.



Not horsing around

Lori Hough's animal sculptures are all made out of paper macha. "All of my work is of animals, mostly," she said. "I'm just passionate about animals." Hough, who is from Fremont, Michigan, had steady foot traffic through her tent and display area throughout the 50th Waterfront Art Fair.

OBITUARIES

Martha Morgan: 1928 - Aug. 7, 2008

Martha Morgan, 80, died suddenly on Thursday, Aug. 7, 2008, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Martha may be best remembered as the German daycare lady who cared for many Charlevoix children for over two decades, both in her home and at the First Congregational Church. Caring for children was a reoccurring theme in her life and one that brought her great joy. Born in Germany in 1928, her first job was as a children's nurse. She also raised two daughters and cared for her grandson until her death.

She was working in a commissary on a U.S. Air Force base in Germany when she met William Morgan, an American serviceman. They moved to the United States and were married in 1963.

Until her husband's retirement from the U.S. Air Force in 1976, Martha lived the life of a military wife, moving often. They settled in Charlevoix in 1972. Although she missed Germany and retained her German citizenship, she always considered Charlevoix her home.

After her husband's untimely death in 1983, she raised her daughters on her own and was proud of their accomplishments. She enjoyed spending the last five years with her grandson Evans Their favorite activities were bird watching and playing board games, which she would always let him win.

Martha valued all of her friends, many of whom she met through the Charlevoix Senior Center. It was there she came out of her shell socially and enjoyed activities and crafts. Through the Center she learned to play the piano for the first time in her 70s.

She had a special love for flower gardening. Despite the progressive deterioration of her knees limiting her mobility, she continued to maintain gardens every summer.

Martha was a happy person who found joy in the simple things. She will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

Martha is survived by her daughter Trish Morgan-Beane (Dave), daughter Melinda Morgan (Gordon Compton), grandson Evan Beane, niece Jutta Stapf, niece Brigitte Bohrman, and great-niece Meike Stapf.

A graveside service will be 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 12, at St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix Visitation will be 3-7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Donations may be made to the Charlevoix Senior Center.

Gerald "Jerry" LaFreniere: Sept. 22, 1940 - Aug. 7, 2008

LaFreniere

Gerald "Jerry" LaFreniere, 67, died Thursday, Aug. 7, 2008 at his home on Beaver Island.

He was born on Sept. 22, 1940 in Gaylord, the son of Vernon H. and Musette (Belfy) LaFreniere.

On Aug. 30, 2003 on Beaver Island, he married Marie Connaghan.

He served in the United States Army during the Vietnam Conflict. He was a member of the Amvets Post #46 and Holy Cross Catholic Church, both on Beaver Island.

Jerry worked for over thirty years for the Beaver Island Boat Company.

He had lived his whole life on Beaver Island.

Jerry is survived by his wife, Marie LaFreniere of Beaver Island; six children, Michelle (Michael) Sowa of Beaver Island, Gerald Jerry" (Tammy) LaFreniere of Beaver Island, Deborah (John) Robert of Beaver Island, Becky (Tim) Gerace of Howell, Rory (Virginia) Connaghan of Beaver Island, and Keith Szczepanski of Eaton Rapids; thirteen grandchildren; and one brother, Leon LaFreniere of Ludington,

He was preceded in death by a wife, Sandy LaFreniere and one brother, Paul LaFreniere.

A mass was held on Monday, Aug. 11 at noon at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island.

Visitation was held on Sunday from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m. at his home on Beaver Island, with a Rosary Service at 8 p.m. Memorials may be given to the LaFreniere Family and a Garage Party will be held at Unfinished Farms on Beaver Island on Aug. 29.

Robert S. Gibson: Feb. 21, 1945 - Aug. 4, 2008

Robert S. Gibson, 63, of Norwood died Monday, Aug. 4, 2008 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memory sharing service was held Friday, Aug. 8, 2008 at 3 p.m. at his home, 815 Lakeshore Drive, Norwood.

Please bring pictures and stories to share. Robert was born on Feb. 21, 1945 in Traverse City the son of Lester and Helen (Prause) Gibson. He graduated from Leland High School in 1963 and received a B.A. and Masters in Psychology from Western Michigan University. He served two years in the United States Army including a tour in Vietnam from April 1969 to April 1970. Robert had worked as a licensed psychologist at the Kalamazoo Psychiatric Hospital and Traverse City Psychiatric Hospital. He retired in 2002. He married Barbara Hartter on March 29, 2002 in Paw Paw after a 10-year committed relationship. They made their home in Norwood. Robert had enjoyed running. He was proud that he had run in both the New York Marathon and the Chicago Marathon. Robert is survived by his wife, Barbara Gibson of Norwood; two children, Laura (Joe) Pleva of Grosse Point and Patrick Donnelly of Kalamazoo; three grandchildren, Clare, Cecilia and Colleen Pleva, all of Grosse Point; two sisters, Sharon (Barton) Osborn of Honor, Nan (Marty) Lickteig of Honor; one brother, Jack (Deb) Smith of Marine City; as well as several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents. Memorials may be given to the Little Traverse Conservancy, 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs, MI 49740 or the Fetzer Institute, 9292 West KL Avenue, Kalamazoo, MI 49009. Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix, MI.

Melvin Durbin: Died Aug. 3, 2008

Melvin Durbin, 76, died Aug. 3, 2008.

Beloved husband of Renee Durbin.

Dear father of Cam (Dr. Buddy) Weisman, Tracey (Dr. Lance Anderson) Durbin, Perri (Michael) Cauley, Leilani Leigh Durbin, Cory (Bryan) Esterline and Skip Durbin.

Proud grandfather of Casey Morrison, Grady Morrison, Drew Morrison, Eden Schwartz, Jared Boe, Jaclyn Cauley, Danielle Cauley, Jackson Esterline, Caitlyn Esterline, Ty Esterline. Loving brother of the late Irving Dubrinsky and the late Gerald Dubrinsky.

Cherished brother-in-law of Howard (Dayle) Mevis, Alan Mevis and Maureen O'Donnell. Devoted son of the late Rose and the late Philip Dubrinsky and the dear mother-in-law of Edythe (the late Marvin) Mevis.

Service was at Ira Kaufman Chapel. Interment was at Clover Hill Park Cemetery.

Do not worry in these troubled times

...FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

These are troubled times, for America in general and Michigan in particular.

Read the newspaper and you'll quickly find all the parts and pieces needed to assemble a doomsday scenario where life as we've known it implodes before our very eyes.

Consider some current issues: the violent and unpredictable climate, wobbling financial institutions, the crippled mortgage and housing industry, the soaring cost and questionable availability of food and energy, the degraded utility and transportation infrastructure, stressed public services, unaffordable health care, and corrupt, polarized federal and state government.

The list could go on, but you get the idea.

The world seems to be careening out of control, and as much as we might care for the polar bear and the rain forest we are increasingly focused on how to just keep our family fed, the mortgage paid, and enough gas in the car to get to our not-so-secure job.

The times are ripe for an epidemic of worry. When our security and lifestyle is threatened by forces we can't even influence, much less control, it is a natural human response to fret.

Natural and common as it is, worry isn't productive.
